COURT UPHOLDS COLLEGE RIGHT TO FORCE DRILL

Decision Applies to Grant Schools.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court today upheld the right of land grant colleges to make military training compulsory, even for students who object on conscientious and religious grounds.

JUSTICE PIERCE BUTLER.

The opinion of the court, delivered by Justice Pierce Butler, affirmed the decision of the Supreme court of California, which had denied a writ of mandamus to two sons of Methodist ministers suspended by the state university. They had been suspended upon refusal to take the required R. O. T. C. courses and their fathers, as guardians ad litem, thereupon sought to compel the board of regents to reinstate them.

The students, Albert W. Hamilton and W. Alonzo Reynolds Jr., according to the opinion of the court, are members of the Methodist Episcopal church, the Epworth league and connected religious societies, and their fathers for many years have been ordained ministers of the church.

Church Resolution Cited.

The opinion cited a resolution of the Southern California Methodist Episcopal conference which recalled a resolution adopted in 1928 by the general conference denouncing war as an instrument of national policy. The general conference was memorialized to petition congress to grant exemption from military training to "such members of the church who conscientiously believe that participation in war is a denial of their supreme allegiance to Jesus Christ."

"Appellants," says the opinion, "as members of that church, accept and feel themselves morally, religiously and conscientiously bound by its tenets and discipline as expressed in its quoted conference resolutions. Each is a follower of the teachings of Jesus Christ and holds as a part of his religious and conscientious belief that war, training for war, and military training are immoral, wrong and contrary to the letter and spirit of his teachings."

Refer to Peace Pact.

The students also contended that the principle of compulsory military training was repugnant to the Kellogg-Briand peace pact, a contention which the court deemed worthy of "little consideration." Their constitutional objection was that compulsory military training was repugnant to the 14th amendment, violating their "privileges and immunities" and depriving them of "liberty" without due process of law.

The court held that the privilege of attending the university came from the state and not from federal sources and that the order of the board of regents in no way violated the due process clause.

"The fact that they are able to pay their way in this university but not in any other institution in California is without significance upon any constitutional or other question involved here," says the opinion.

Students Not Drafted.

"California has not drafted or called them to attend the university. They are seeking education offered by the state and at the same time insisting that they be excused from the prescribed course solely upon grounds of their religious beliefs and conscientious objections.

"Government, federal and state, each in its own sphere, owes a duty to the people within its jurisdiction to preserve itself in adequate strength, to maintain peace and order and to assure the just enforcement of law. And every citizen owes the reciprocal duty according to his capacity to support the government against all enemies."

The privilege of the native born conscientious objector to avoid bearing arms, the court held, comes not from the constitution but from the acts of congress. The court did not pass on the question of whether a land grant college, under the terms of the act of 1862, must make military training compulsory, but pointed out that Wisconsin and Minnesota have made it elec-

ICKES OUTLINES HUGE PWA PLAN FOR PRESIDENT

Wants 2 Billion for a Starter.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—An extensive public works program, calling for a new flood of federal easy money over a long term, until industry can absorb the unemployed, was submitted today to President Roosevelt.

The plan was drawn out of the portfolio of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes at a session of the Warm Springs "swimming pool cabinet."

While no definite sum was set for a program which may range over three to five years, the secretary said he was prepared to begin with two billion dollars of projects by late spring or early summer. Once this was launched, he said, many more projects would crowd to the federal trough.

Cheered by Credit Report.

Cheered by favorable reports of the government's credit brought by Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, who accompanied Ickes, the President lent a ready ear to the proposal. Morgenthau reported the administration's venture into the loan market for 900 million dollars more of the people's money for New Deal expenditures "a huge success."

"The reception was excellent," Morgenthau smiled. "The whole bond market is selling above Saturday's close. That tells the story, doesn't it? It shows bond buyers have confidence in the integrity of the government and in the administration policies."

Awaiting only his colleague's financial representations, Ickes launched into a glowing exposition of his plan. He began with the declaration that there is no immediate prospect of abandonment of the dole. He said direct relief cannot be done away with this winter, but people can be taken off relief before the coming year is old by enlargement of public works.

For Self-Liquidating Projects.

He expressed himself for self-liquidating projects. He listed among these housing, slum clearance, subsistence homesteads, railroad grade crossings, and loans to states, counties, and cities for various improvements. He said such projects could be made self-liquidating within a year.

Following the conference Secretary Ickes in an interview said it would be possible to start on low cost housing within 60 days. Other projects should be started much quicker than at the inception of the PWA because machinery has been perfected.

The only hindrance to speedy development of low cost housing was the problem of getting land, he said. He declared that the present system of filing "declarations of taking" was a bit cumbersome.

"We have had trouble with the constitutional provision holding no man may be deprived of his property without due process of law," he explained blandly. "Some real estate men are trying to hold us up. But we have lawyers now working on it."

He held the "due process" clause was impeding New Deal planned economy and added "the law could be improved."

400 Millions for Crossings.

He declared he could spend 400 million dollars on railroad grade crossings in the first year. He explained such an expenditure could be made self-liquidating in several ways. He listed taxing of passenger tickets, freight automobiles, and gasoline.

Asked if he felt his original public works program had "primed the pump" for private enterprise, he said: "A large proportion of the original 3 billion 300 million was earmarked for the navy, TVA, and other departments. The same was true of the second appropriation of 400 million.

"You couldn't expect a sum like that to do the job we had planned for. There was not enough money and not enough assurance of continuing the PWA. We've got to have a public works program until we do the trick—until private enterprise comes in to take up the slack.

"As soon as business picks up we can pull out. Nobody wants the government to continue public works indefinitly. It's a stop gap. But not one for months. It is a job for years."

Secretary Ickes denied reports that he and Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins will clash over work relief control, although he favors public works extension and Hopkins work relief projects similar to those of the extinct Civil Works administration. Ickes said the President will choose between the plans.

Secretary Morgenthau said that in

WAKES UP MINUS 2 GIRLS, 3 MEN, AUTO, AND $500

Alex Bechtel, 32 years old, of Marinette, Wis., came to Chicago several days ago in a borrowed automobile and with $500 in his pockets. Last night Bechtel was found unconscious in Milwaukee avenue near Wheeling. The $500 and the automobile were gone.

After he had been revived the visitor, who is a baker by trade, said that he had been stopping in a boarding house at 111 West Elm street, where he met three men and two girls.

"We all started out to have a ride this afternoon," he continued. "The men slugged me and tossed me out at Wheeling."

According to Bechtel, who was taken to the county hospital, the girls are Laverne Serri and Gertrude Linquist. The only one of the men he knew by name is Archie Ketchel, he said.

Irish Rioters Throw Ink; Halt Royal Wedding Film

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The screen of the Savoy theater, leading motion picture house in the city, was splattered with ink today and then torn in half when rioters raided the theater during a showing of the London royal wedding film. The youthful rioters at first demanded the withdrawal of the picture showing the marriage of the duke of Kent and Princess Marina. When the showing continued, they attacked the screen. Pandemonium ensued in the crowded theater and the showing stopped.

Expect Arrest of Suspect in Speer Murder

Greenfield, Mass., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—New evidence which may lead to an arrest was produced today by Mrs. Charlotte Welles Speer at the opening of the inquest into the death of her husband, Dr. Elliott Speer, headmaster of Mount Hermon Preparatory school, murdered in his study on the school campus Sept. 14.

Mrs. Speer, the last of eight witnesses questioned at a "star chamber" inquest, was on the stand nearly three hours. Judge Timothy M. Hayes barred the public on the motion of District Attorney Joseph T. Bartlett. He said the evidence points to one man as the murderer. He said his reasons for asking a secret hearing were to prevent the suspect from "framing a defense" or from "absconding" when it became apparent he would be held for murder.

Dean Also Is Witness.

Mrs. Speer was preceded by Thomas E. Elder, dean of the school, who is on leave of absence.

On the night of the murder Mrs. Speer was on the second floor of the Speer home putting her children to bed when she heard the shotgun blast which killed her husband. As she reached the bottom of the stairs she met her husband. He collapsed in her arms, fatally wounded. His dying words to her formed an important part of his wife's testimony today.

Mrs. Speer and Dean Elder will be recalled to the witness stand later, District Attorney Bartlett predicted at the conclusion of the first day's testimony.

Dean Elder's testimony occupied less than 15 minutes. He was one of the first of the faculty at the school to reach the Speer home on the night of the murder.

Novel May Be Clew.

A new angle of the case developed today when District Attorney Bartlett revealed that a murder mystery novel in the Speer library where th headmaster was killed portrayed in its plot almost the exact circumstances of the Mount Hermon murder.

In the book, "The Public School Murder," published in England, the headmaster of the school is shot by a person living on the campus, who creeps up to the headmaster's study window and shoots him as he is preparing the next day's work. One difference in the plot and the actual murder is that the murderer in the book used a rifle, while the murderer of Dr. Speer used a shotgun. Officers have a list of names of persons who had borrowed the book.

800 in Polish Hospital Go on Hunger Strike

WARSAW, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Eight hundred patients of the Infant Jesus hospital started a hunger strike today because of the introduction of a new dietetic régime. The hospital management said the change was not made for reasons of economy but to introduce new methods as an experiment in nutrition.

BEST CHRISTMAS TRADE SINCE 1930 PREDICTED BY U. S.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Government statisticians concluded today, on the basis of official and private figures, that business would enjoy the best Christmas trade since 1930. John Dickinson, assistant secretary of commerce, declared he saw in the improved retail trade the basis for "sound recovery."

In making their prediction of greater spending this year officials relied on federal statistics showing increased farm income, higher factory pay rolls, increased government emergency expenditures for job-creating projects, more stable bank conditions, and on what they interpreted as a more confident, optimistic frame of mind on the part of the people.

"All of the evidence indicates the people are in a greater spending mood, but not for reckless spending such as we saw some years ago," Dickinson said. "This mood to buy can be directly attributable to more employment and more money in the people's pockets."

MOTHER, 62, WINS A REPRIEVE IN "MERCY KILLING"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Mrs. May Brownhill, frail 62 year old mother who was condemned to death for the "mercy killing" of her imbecile son, was assured of a reprieve today in a communication from the office of the home secretary. Hundreds of appeals for clemency have been received by the home office since the woman was sentenced to death last Saturday.

The home secretary's communication was addressed to George Lansbury, Labor leader, who, with George Bernard Shaw, is leading a movement to save Mrs. Brownhill from the gallows.

At the murder trial the aged mother testified she gave her invalid son 100 sedative tablets and turned on the gas in his room. She declared her action was caused by fear for the future of her son, whom she had nursed for 30 years, when she was faced with an operation from which she might not recover.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The "Foreign Club," huge gambling casino completed a few months ago at a cost of more than $500,000, was closed tonight by order of the governor of the state of Mexico. It was reported that the order originated with President Lazaro Cardenas, who is known to oppose gambling, and also that it was based on complaints of merchants that their sales have dropped sharply since the club started doing business.

Post Battles for His Life on High Flight

OFF FOR HONOLULU

Bartlesville, Okla., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Wiley Post, the globe girdler, soared into the stratosphere today and announced upon his return here that he had flown "above 48,000 feet." The official altitude record is 47,352 feet. The actual height to which Post flew his plane today cannot be determined until experts in Washington examine the sealed barographs he carried.

Post was indefinite about the height to which he rose because a valve on his supercharged "diving suit" jammed at 35,000 feet and he waged a "life and death" struggle for thirty minutes before giving up his flight.

"I was too busy trying to work that condemned valve to look at the altimeter," he told reporters. "The valve regulated the flow of oxygen into my suit and the way it was jammed it would have let in too much and probably would have burst the suit.

Rip Means Quick Death.

"I'd have lasted about ten seconds, not more, if that suit ripped. I was pretty busy till I gave up and came down into heavier air."

The danger of bursting the suit, it was explained by Mel Mollenkopf, Post's chief mechanic and manager, was a real one. Three suits which were made for Post during the nine months' preparation for the flight burst while they were being tested.

At the greatest height he reached today the thermometer on his wing registered 70 degrees below zero, Post said. He was constantly fighting rough winds of terrific force as he rose, he said, and as a result he lost his way.

He came out of the sky at Muskogee, Okla., 90 miles southeast of Bartlesville, two hours and ten minutes after the takeoff. After procuring gasoline for his empty tanks he flew back to Phillips field here.

Climbs in Spiral.

Post took off shortly before 8 o'clock this morning and soon had disappeared from view in a wide spiral climb. He said he went to 20,000 feet over Bartlesville, orienting himself by two lakes, one east and one west of the town. He switched in the second supercharger at that height and began building up pressure in his suit.

Five thousand feet higher he noticed the jammed valve and began the fight which lasted for fully twenty minutes before he turned earthward. He calculated his maximum height by the time he was in the air. At 30,000 feet, he said, his cabin monoplane was still climbing at the rate of 1,000 feet a minute. Post closed his interview by stating that he intends to make another attempt to climb to 60,000 feet after his motor and suit are rechecked.

Uses His Old Plane.

Post's altitude flights are being made in the Winnie Mae, the 6 year old high wing ship in which he twice flew around the world. It is powered with a Wasp motor supercharged to develop more than 575 horse power at 35,000 feet. Actually there are two superchargers used, one an auxiliary which can be switched into action above the 20,000 foot level.

For himself, Post has designed and constructed a rubber and canvas suit. At the 50,000 foot level the air pressure is less than 2 pounds per square foot, while humans are normally accustomed to the sea level pressure of 14.7 pounds per foot. Using liquid oxygen, Post inflates his suit as he rises to the rare air, and, unless complications develop, maintains a comfortable pressure within.

GERMAN-FRENCH SAAR PACT SEEN MOVE FOR PEACE

Nazis to Buy Mines for $59,000,000.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Dec. 3.—Germany's pledge to buy the Saar coal mines and to extend political guarantees to Saar basin citizens brought about an accord with France today which removes much of the danger from the Saar plebiscite to be held Jan. 13.

In one section of the accord Germany agrees to pay 900,000,000 francs [$59,400,000] and 11,000,000 tons of coal for French mines and French credits in the area. There is a special agreement on the mines in the Vaant region—some of which actually extend under French territory. Germany will pay a few francs royalty for each ton of coal taken from these mines for five years. France got title to the mines in post-war reparations agreements. The terms of the cash payment are not disclosed, but are framed to avoid upsetting Germany's precarious foreign exchange situation.

Guarantee Racial Equality.

In the political agreement Germany guarantees she will [1] extend to non-voters the same standing as that of voters, [2] give all persons equal rights to social insurance and state assistance, and [3] grant inhabitants equal rights regardless of language, race, or religion. Thus, Jews are promised equal treatment with gentiles.

The agreement was drawn during several days of hard work by members of the league of nations Saar committee, including Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, Lopez Olivan of Spain, and Ambassador José Maria Cantilo of Argentina. The agreement was signed by Count de Chambrun for France and Ambassador Ulrich von Hassell for Germany, both envoys to Rome.

France and Germany will write identical letters to the league stating these guarantees. The special committee will submit its report to the council of the league called to meet Wednesday. A league commission now governs the Saar under terms of the Versailles treaty. At the plebiscite the Saar will vote whether it will remain under league rule, go to France, or to Germany, the latter being taken for granted.

Committee Report.

The official communique with regard to the agreement said:

"This morning the last meeting of the Saar committee of three took place with the ambassadors of France and Germany present. The president of the committee announced that an agreement had been reached between the French government and the German government on all questions which were submitted to the examination of the committee. This agreement was signed by the French and German governments through their respective ambassadors and delegates.

"On Tuesday the committee will meet at Geneva to write a report which will be submitted to the council of the league of nations convoked for Dec. 5.

"In closing the work of the committee in Rome, Baron Pompeo Aloisi in the name of the committee thanked the delegates and experts of the French and German governments and above all the financial subcommittee of the league of nations for the most effective coöperation which they had given."

Praises Negotiators.

Olivan, the Spanish committee member, receiving the foreign press this afternoon, heartily praised the coöperation of both French and German experts and said he hoped the agreement reached today would bring peace to Europe. Tonight the committee of three was en route to Geneva.

The political guarantees would be binding alike on France or Germany should the plebiscite go one way or the other. Nothing was said, however, regarding the third possibility, that of continuance in status quo under league supervision, but the committee defined in a meeting several weeks ago what the status quo would mean if the Saar voters made this choice.

Germany Elated.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Nazi Germany glows with the accomplishment of the Saar agreement reached in Rome and diplomatic circles believe it removes some of the most dangerous stumbling blocks on the road to a Franco-German rapprochement.

German official circles declared: "We hope this will help to convince the world that Germany genuinely and sincerely wants peace."

Berlin is also elated over the conversations between Chancellor Adolf

Hitler's personal representative, Joachim von Ribbentrop, and French Foreign Minister Pierre Laval in Paris, which promise "an era of better relations."

REVIVE REICHSTAG FIRE

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 4 [Tuesday].—Under a three column headline entitled "How I Set Fire to the Reichstag," the important Paris daily Le Journal is publishing today the alleged confession of Karl Ernst, chief of the Berlin Brandenburg storm troops, who was slain in the June 30 purge in Germany.

The alleged confession says he and two assistants, at the instigation of Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, German minister of air, and Minister of Propaganda Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, fired the reichstag Feb. 27, 1933, as a means of rousing Germany against the communists.

The publication comes at the very moment when an accord on the Saar is being reached at Rome between Germany and France and when Chancellor Adolf Hitler is making efforts to convince French veterans of his pacific intentions.

Ernst, according to Le Journal, says Goebbels wanted first a fake attack on Chancellor Hitler, but Goering thought that might put ideas into people's heads, so Goebbels suggested the burning of the reichstag.

Goering supplied the phosphorus material that ignited itself in the air, as well as the gasoline with which the curtains and seats were soaked, according to the purported confession.

Then, the alleged confession related, other Nazis found Marinus van der Lubbe, the young Dutchman who was executed for the crime, and persuaded him to help set the fire.

Curiously Ernst thought Chancellor Hitler did not know of the plot until afterward and that he was honest when, on the same night, he pinned the blame on the communists and ordered a general roundup of their leaders.

TWO MORE UNITS GO OVER TOP FOR COMMUNITY FUND

Two more trade groups in the 1934 Community Fund campaign passed their quotas yesterday, bringing the number of successful soliciting units to 13 and the total of pledges to $2,671,085.95. Campaign leaders thereupon predicted the $3,000,000 goal would be reached within ten days.

Prompt return of all outstanding pledge cards would achieve this result, they asserted. Accordingly, Clarence B. Randall, chairman of the trades and industries' division of the campaign, has asked all group leaders to meet him this afternoon at the drive's headquarters in the Conway building.

To date, 2,883 concerns with 448,378 employés have received pledge cards. The pledges of working men and women average $2.65. If this average obtains for the 200 concerns yet unreported, the $3,000,000 is assured. Outstanding team reports of yesterday, with the percentage of quota attained, follow:

MARTIN INSULL'S CASE CONTINUED TO 10 A. M. TODAY

The case of Martin Insull, former president of the Middle West Utilities company, who was to go on trial yesterday on a charge of embezzling $344,000 of the company's stock, was postponed until 10 a. m. today by the trial judge, Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court.

The postponement was due to delay in preparing the jury venue and to the inauguration of new officials of the Criminal court elected in November. Both the defense and Assistant State's Attorney John O'Hora agreed to the continuance.

Insull and his attorney, John E. Northup, were in court. They indicated a defense similar to that employed by Insull's brother, Samuel, and 16 co-defendants in federal court in the mail fraud trial which resulted in their acquittal nine days ago. That defense was that the defendants were innocent victims of the depression and committed only errors in judgment, not crimes.

GERMAN PASTORS FACE TRIAL ON TREASON CHARGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—German authorities today threatened to place charges of high treason against a group of Protestant pastors of the free confessional movement. The pastors had issued a statement which government authorities said were full of lies. No arrests have yet been made.

The statement, it is reported, said the authorities planned to arrest all leaders of the opposition movement to Reichbishop Ludwig Mueller's church dictatorship.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—A Greco-Bulgarian border commission today began to investigate the killing of five Mohammedans who had fled into Greece from Bulgaria, according to a dispatch from Athens. The killing, it is charged, was done by Bulgarian guards on Greek soil last Friday.

Behind this incident lies one of Europe's most remarkable stories—the migration back to their ancient homeland of seven million Moslems of Turkish descent and the great fear of a reinvigorated Turkey, which this migration is causing in the Balkan countries.

See "Another Japan."

They see in it the creation of a menace—another Japan—at the very gates of Europe, and have taken steps to prevent such a development.

Orders have been given to shoot down Moslems who try to cross the borders into Turkey, and would-be immigrants have been killed. Wholesale arrests have been made. Even those who embark on Danubian or Black sea boats for Istanbul have been ordered apprehended.

According to available figures, 250,000 European Moslems have already been attracted into Turkey by the stable government of Mustafa Kemal Pasha and the economic hopes raised by the Turkish five year plan. Since the Turkish republic is only eleven years old, this figure is considered ominous.

Sets Up Separate Régime.

The Turkish government has taken steps to care for the influx. Kemal has formed a separate government of western Thrace, Turkey's sole remaining province in Europe, to deal with the infiltration of Moslems from Jugo-Slavia, Bulgaria, Greece, Rumania, the Ukraine and Poland. Most of these territories once knew the might and majesty of the Ottoman sultan.

The eastward movement of Turkish Moslems is the ebb tide in the 20th century of a flow that took place in the 15th century when the Turks, with fire and sword, poured into western Europe and changed its history.

In the eyes of many Europeans the present pacific emigration from western Europe may in the near or remote future have an important effect on the destiny of mankind.

Fears of Danger.

There are two aspects of the fears of danger. One is political. The other is economic.

Politically, Turkey, which is and has been underpopulated because the Ottoman Turk migration always has been westward, has not given reason for much worry in the past, at least according to London opinion. However, there is now the spectre of millions of additional Turks in Anatolia, the richest mineral field in the world.

The population of Turkey is "officially" 16,000,000. The census was taken haphazardly, however, and the real population is held to be at least 20,000,000.

The addition of more people will permit the Turkish army to increase its strength by 15 per cent. It has already done so this year, according to figures reaching London. These figures do not take into account the immigrants.

The economic menace of a fully populated Turkey is especially significant in view of the country's five year plan. Already great advances have been made. Coal mining has risen in one year from an output of 1,400,000 tons on the Black Sea litoral to 1,900,500 tons. The Turkish government has invested $20,000,000 in the chrome mines. The investment is returning 23 per cent to Kemal, it is reported.

The output of boracite has risen from 5,000 tons, in the Sultancay district alone, to 7,500 tons. Turkey is rich in copper, and a new company has been formed with Turco-German capital of $20,000,000 for exploiting the Erghani mines.

MACHINE LAYS BUFFALO GRASS; STOPS EROSION

A machine which lays buffalo grass sod was exhibited at the International Live Stock show yesterday by the department of agriculture as a means the farmer may employ to save his fertile top soil from dissipation by high winds.

Buffalo grass, regarded as the best anchor for the soil, is difficult to start from seed, it was explained, although it grows readily when sodded. The machine cuts the sod into four-inch squares and drops one square on every three square feet of soil.

MIGRATE TO ANCIENT HOMELAND

Seven million European Mohammedans of Turkish descent are migrating to Turkey. They are attracted to their ancient homeland by the stable government of Mustafa Kemal Pasha and the economic hopes raised by his five year plan. Nations of Europe, particularly the Balkans, are viewing the migration with alarm. They see in it the creation of a strong Turkish nation—a menace at their gates.

ROYALISTS SEEK SPANISH RULE IN CORPORATE STATE

Combine Forces with Extreme Right.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

MADRID, Dec. 3.—A combination of monarchist forces and extreme rightists is preparing an unexpected bid for power under a modified "corporative state" plan, it was reliably stated tonight in high monarchist quarters.

The purpose of the plan, which is to be announced shortly, was described as to give the Spanish republic "a type of modern corporative state based upon the old Spanish traditional system," ruled by rightists.

The scheme has the double objective of terminating the centuries-old Carlist-Bourbon conflict and the creation of an ambitious "national non-partisan bloc" under the leadership of former Minister José Calvo Sotello.

Sotello would revive and improve "certain traditional institutions" in Spain. Among provisions of his plan would be a system by which guild and labor organizations would be granted representation as such in the cortes, or parliament. Parties such as the Socialists would be outlawed.

Prominent Republicans viewed the movement as the beginning of a veiled monarchist restoration campaign. This opinion was strengthened by information from monarchist sources that negotiations were being carried on for an attempted reconciliation of the Carlists and the Alfonsists, the two factions which for generations had divided Spain's monarchist régime.

2,000 CUBAN REDS SEIZE 10,000 ACRES OF FARMING LAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Dec. 3.—Two thousand communists today ejected landowners and farmers at Realengo, near Guantanamo, confiscated properties covering 10,000 acres, and proclaimed a soviet republic independent of the national government at Havana.

The communists, headed by Antonio Mireles, a Cuban, and a board including five Spaniards and three colored Jamaicans, proceeded to distribute the confiscated lands among native communists, according to dispatches which Secretary of Justice Raul de Cardenas received. Mireles declared the communists intend to expand their republic to include 330,000 acres.

All available military forces in Oriente province were ordered to Realengo to wipe off the organization.

Rumania Receives First Envoy of Soviet Russia

BUCHAREST, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Rumania today received its first diplomatic envoy from soviet Russia, ending in friendly fashion the historic controversy over possession of the rich province of Bessarabia, which was annexed by Rumania after the world war. The soviet republic sent Mikhail Ostrovsky as its first minister to Rumania since czarist days. King Carol received the bolshevik envoy with fullest royal ceremonial.

WORKERS REFUSE TO LET NAZIS CUT PAY FOR WINTER RELIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Although strikes are punishable by prison sentences in Germany, workers in several Berlin and Westphalian plants have succeeded in enforcing their claims through systematic passive resistance—another form of strike.

Early last week workers of a Berlin factory discovered 20 cents had been extracted from their meager pay envelopes for compulsory winter relief.

They rebelled, pointing out that their average incomes of about $8 a week were barely sufficient for them to exist. Workers were called into the main court where the leader of the factory's Nazi organization harangued them on the spirit of sacrifice while the police were being summoned.

The workers listened and then silently returned to their places, but remained motionless beside their machinery. The police refused to arrest them. They argued that they could not arrest persons who were committing no illegal act.

Impressed by the desperate earnestness of the men, the factory managers agreed to pay the weekly relief donations themselves.

Similar incidents occurred in the Oberschoeneweide cable plant where a three hour day was scheduled to be introduced because of a shortage of rubber and copper. Workers went on a passive strike. As a result they now are paid on a basis of five hours a day.

BEAUTY'S ILLNESS DELAYS HEARING OF $500,000 SUIT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 3. — The $500,000 breach of promise action brought by Angela Joyce, British actress and winner of a "Miss England" beauty title in 1930, against Lord Revelstoke, 23 year old heir to a million dollar estate, stands indefinitely postponed.

ANGELA JOYCE.

Miss Joyce is ill in a hospital at Hampstead, North London, and the breach of promise case, which was listed among the special jury actions of the king's bench division of the high court beginning Nov. 26, did not appear on today's list.

"It may be months before I am well enough to face the ordeal of the court case," said Miss Joyce. "My recent operation for mastoid was most serious, but the doctors say that I am out of danger now."

Lord Revelstoke married Flora, the daughter of Sir Thomas and Lady Fermor-Hesketh, last March.

BINGHAM'S PLEAS FOR U. S.-BRITISH TIE STIR EUROPE

Wonders if Roosevelt Inspired Words.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 3.—A furor of excitement was caused in diplomatic circles today by the publication of a series of interviews, or rather an almost identical interview, in British papers with Ambassador Robert Worth Bingham of the United States. In the interviews the ambassador advocated the closest union between Great Britain and the United States and declared that now is the most advantageous time to bring it about.

The interview, which appeared first in the Sunday Observer, was published in a slightly different form in the Daily Express and Manchester Guardian today. It is practically a paraphrase of Mr. Bingham's speech at the Thanksgiving dinner of the American society in London last Thursday.

Diplomats Begin to Wonder.

The speech attracted little attention. The Observer interview attracted little more, but the emphasis in repetition has set the diplomats to wondering if the speech and interviews were not inspired from Washington.

A high authority has declared the speech and interview were made on Mr. Bingham's own responsibility. The ambassador is quoted as saying at a private dinner the other night that if he could bring about an Anglo-American union he would die happy.

It will be remembered that Bingham, before his appointment as ambassador to the Court of St. James's, was noted for his Anglophile utterances. There is no doubt that the speech and interviews have caused embarrassment to Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador at large, who is a delegate to the naval conversations here, and other American envoys abroad. They are trying to find out how far Bingham is speaking with the mouth of Mr. Roosevelt and how far with his own.

Hint U. S. Will Join League.

On top of this, the News-Chronicle, which usually is well informed, today carried a long cable from New York suggesting that the United States is getting ready to join the league of nations either as an associate or as a full member. The article also suggested that the league might modify its constitution in order to meet some of the United States' objections.

The British foreign office frankly is puzzled and would like to know what is going on. Naturally it welcomes any rapprochement which would add the strength of the United States to that of Great Britain, but its information from Washington is vague and conflicting.

The consensus seems to be that Ambassador Bingham is flying the kite on his own responsibility.

Feathered Mules to Fly in Loop Hotel Bird Show

Mules with gay colored feathers will trill and flutter about in the Hotel Sherman for three days, starting Friday. The mules are hybrid songbirds obtained by crossing canaries and finches. They will be among the 1,000 bird pets on display at the third annual "national open" show of the Greater Chicago Cage Bird club. It will be held in conjunction with the championship show of the American Cage Bird club.

ICKES OUTLINES HUGE PWA PLAN FOR PRESIDENT

Wants Two Billions for a Starter.

the Dec. 15 refinancing the government will replace 450 million dollars of one year certificates bearing 2¼ per cent interest, with the same amount of eighteen month notes bearing but 1⅛ per cent interest. The other half of the current offering is 450 million of 3⅛ per cent bonds due 1949-'52.

The secretary said preparation of the budget is progressing satisfactorily, but declined to reply to numerous questions as to whether it would be balanced, how big the deficit will be, and the like.

Ickes arrived from Atlanta by motor with Morgenthau. They were taken to the swimming pool by President Roosevelt to meet the other members of the Warm Springs cabinet—Rexford Guy Tugwell, No. 1 brain truster and undersecretary of agriculture, and Hopkins. All four will remain until the President leaves for Washington Wednesday.

Ickes Prefers Shallows.

At the pool Ickes at first refused to don a swimming suit, saying: "I'm a Pennsylvania Dutchman and don't like water." He was persuaded to join the others and out of deference to him the conference was held in the shallow end of the pool.

Another member of the Washington cabinet, Postmaster General James A. Farley, arrived during the day. He was not invited to join the swimming pool cabinet. Farley was not hurt, however, as he knows his colleagues do not regard him as a true New Dealer and cares less, as long as favorable election returns roll in under his chairmanship of the Democratic national committee.

A note of retrospect was sounded during the day in the visit to the little White House of Jeremiah Millbank, New York capitalist who collected 1932 campaign funds for Hoover. Mr. Millbank said he had not come to "change religion," but for a social call in view of his position as one of the trustees of the Warm Springs Foundation.

CITY'S CUSTOMS RECEIPTS SET A NOVEMBER MARK

Customs receipts for the port of Chicago in November were the highest for that month since establishment of the customs office here in 1846, Collector of Customs Anthony Czarnecki said in a report yesterday.

The November total this year was $1,814,425, the collector's statement said. Receipts for the same month in other years were as follows: 1933, $645,648; 1932, $704,919; 1931, $564,778; 1930, $668,010; 1929, $1,151,549, and 1928, $1,338,707.

Collector Czarnecki attributed the marked increase this year to the stimulation of Chicago business with foreign countries during the last two years by a Century of Progress. November is usually the peak month of the year, Mr. Czarnecki said, due to the Christmas business increase.

6 BANDITS ENTER HOME BY A RUSE AND STEAL $6,000

The life savings of Mrs. Anne Bordenaro, 450 North Green street, were stolen yesterday by six bandits who gained entrance to her home by a ruse and found the money, $6,000, hidden in a tin can on a bedroom closet shelf.

MRS. ANNE BORDENARO.

Mrs. Bordenaro's daughter, Mary, answered a knock at the front door early in the afternoon after she peered through a window and saw a feminine figure standing there. The "woman" turned out to be a man in disguise, who thrust a revolver at her and walked in, followed by another man. A few minutes later they let four others in.

After threatening the mother and daughter, the robbers ransacked the house, found the money, and fled to the street. They disappeared in an automobile as the daughter telephoned Capt. John F. O'Brien of the Racine avenue police.

CHIEF OF G. O. P. POINTS WAY TO REVAMP PARTY

Accepts Borah's Demand for Action.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—Special.]—Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, accepted today the demand of Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and other Republicans for action looking to a reorganization of the party.

CHAIRMAN FLETCHER.

Refusing to resign and reasserting his own view that the Republican party ought to continue to fight the New Deal on the ground that it is retarding, instead of aiding, recovery, Mr. Fletcher pointed out the prescribed procedure for reorganization that is open to those Republicans who disagree with him.

Upon petition of only 16 of the 105 members, he announced, a meeting of the national committee will be called to hear the case for reorganization. If the views of those favoring reorganization should prevail Mr. Fletcher and other officers would be replaced.

Mr. Fletcher's acceptance of the challenge leaves it up to the Borah group to procure 16 signers of a petition for a meeting of the national committee. Some of the Republicans demanding reorganization have asserted recently that, although conservative Republicans control the party's governing body, there is a substantial number of the 105 committeemen and committeewomen in sympathy with the reorganization movement.

Informed tonight of the Fletcher statement, Senator Borah had no comment to make, saying he would make a statement tomorrow.

The Republican chairman said he did not know whether "reorganization of the party" means a "change of party policies and principes" or a change in the organization personnel or both.

"If it is a change of principles that is desired, let those advocating such a change submit to the party rank and file concrete proposals looking to that end," said Mr. Fletcher.

"If there is a popular demand for the adoption of a new set of principles by the Republican party and the submission of a party program based upon those principles a good place to present such a program in concrete form would be in congress, in the form of legislation drafted and offered by the members of the Republican minority. No one wishes to prevent this. On the contrary, I hope it will be done.

No Platform Rights.

"Neither the Republican national committee nor its officials have the right or the authority to write a party platform. Such usurpation upon the part either of the committee or its officials would instantly be bitterly criticized—and properly so—by those who are now criticizing the national organization for what they term a do-nothing or stand-pat attitude.

"If it is a change in the official personnel of the national committee that is desired by those asking for a 'reorganization of the party,' their freedom of action is unimpeded.

"The Republican national convention adopted a rule providing that a meeting of the Republican national committee must be called upon a petition containing the signatures of sixteen members of the national committee representing sixteen different states.

Chance to Present Case.

"In event the committee were called in that manner, there is not the slightest doubt that it would accord those back of the reorganization movement the courtesy of a full opportunity to present their case to the committee. If they were convincing, the committee would select a new set of officers who would assume the responsibility of paying off the existing deficit, financing the committee from now until the convention of 1936 and making all arrangements for that convention."

Mr. Fletcher said that his sole aim has been to "keep the party together as a militant and harmonious organization." He thought the "record speaks for itself."

"In spite of the fact that the last campaign was fought on a wide front and without adequate funds," he went on, "the latest available election statistics show that the Republican party polled over 45 per cent of the total vote cast on Nov. 6.

No Intention of Resigning.

"In view of certain dissident opinions, I think it timely to state that I have no intention of resigning as chairman of the Republican national committee. To do so at this time would plunge the party organization into confusion.

"On the other hand, I would have no desire to remain in office if I should not have the confidence and support of the committee which elected me and the rank and file of the party. I was not a candidate for the chairmanship, but accepted the post as a matter of party and public duty. I am not identified with, or subservient to, any group or faction, or any financial or sectional interest."

The chairman made it clear that in his opinion the ten billion dollar work relief scheme now under consideration by the administration justifies a Republican policy on no compromise with the New Deal.

Attacks New Deal.

"I am opposed," he said, "to the muddling of the 'New Deal.' I believe it is sapping the morale and stamina of our people and is not aiding recovery. I believe it is a failure. Indeed, the present performances of the administration itself clearly admit the failure of its so called recovery program to produce the results claimed for it. Yet, in spite of all this, the administration is about to embark on a still more reckless course."

While he might convene the executive committee, Mr. Fletcher said, it would be only to consider organization and financial questions.

"I had hoped," he explained, "that the year and a half which will elapse before the meeting of the next Republican national convention would afford all elements of the party an opportunity to advance and discuss the policies which they believe should be adopted when the next national convention assembles to formulate its program and nominate its candidates.

Time to Discuss Plans.

"The intervening time would give party workers and the party press an opportunity to consider the various proposals advanced. The Republican party and its national, state, and local organizations would have nothing to lose and much to gain from such a period of candid discussion.

"There has been no attempt and there is no desire upon the part of the Republican national committee to discourage the freest discussion of the future policies of the party.

"To the contrary, I have been in communication with all members of the national committee, all Republican state chairmen, and approximately 2,500 county chairmen, asking for a candid expression of their opinion as to what policies the party should pursue in the future and what concrete suggestions they had to offer in that regard."

SHIPS BATTLING TO REACH PORT IN LAKE STORM

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Caught in the brunt of the second gale in three days, numerous lake freighters and other craft were battling tonight to make port. Half a dozen reached harbor late today, several hours overdue.

Sweeping in from the southwest, a blizzard blanketed Wisconsin, bogged down highways in the north and west parts of the state, and disrupted railroad travel. In some places, a biting rain accompanied the high wind.

With a cargo of grain battened down against the heavy seas, the steamer J. S. Manuel made port at 6 p. m., many hours overdue. Due at noon, the steamer Mariposa of the grain fleet wirelessed it was barely making three miles an hour against the heavy wind which reached a peak velocity here of 47 miles an hour, a record for December.

Other grain freighters overdue from Canadian ports were the Mapleton, the Magog, and the Bayton. Car ferries and packet freighters were endeavoring to maintain their schedules tonight.

CITIES' CLANGOR PERILS HEALTH, ENGINEER SAYS

The increased noise which has followed nearly every outstanding mechanical invention of modern times forms a challenge to the health and nerves of city dwellers unless it is properly controled, according to Harold R. Berlin of New York, head of the acoustical department of a corporation making sound absorbing materials. He addressed a meeting of 200 architects, engineers, and representatives of schools and industries last night in the Palmer House. The lecture was sponsored by the Chicago chapter of the Producers' council, a manufacturers' organization.

HAROLD R. BERLIN.

Modern metropolitan life increases the need of privacy and of quiet, the engineer asserted. Hence the acoustical engineer confronts new problems, among them the task of perfecting noise absorption in schools and offices to increase efficiency and to spare nervous tension.

THREE TYPHOONS HIT PHILIPPINES; SHIP SINKS, 5 DIE

Manila Escapes Storm; Natives Chief Victims.

MANILA, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Typhoons struck tonight in three areas of the Philippine archipelago at once, climaxing a season of storms in which the dead and missing exceed 400.

One storm struck at Northern Luzon, the island on which Manila is located. Another assailed the Island of Palawan, coming in without warning out of the agitated China sea. A third was brewed in the island strewn Pacific within striking distance of Samar, the farthest east of the Central Philippines.

The Cagayan river, which bisects the province of that name near the northern tip of this island, was out of its banks tonight, but what damage it had wrought had not been learned. The motor vessel Lindberg, whose net tonnage was 136, succumbed to the waves, five of her crew losing their lives.

Death Toll Mounts.

The death toll from last Thursday's storm continued to mount, authorities tonight counting 28 known dead and 70 missing. This disturbance was most severe on the Island of Leyte, which lies west of Samar in the central group. Manila, which suffered in earlier typhoons this season—there have been eight in less than three months—escaped this one.

The principal sufferers in these storms are the natives, whose fragile shacks are not built to withstand the high winds of 90 miles an hour or more or the floods.

Beat Off Snakes in Flood.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 3.—(AP)—After a night of terror which many spent in trees beating off snakes swimming in surrounding waters, thousands of residents of flood devastated communities near here watched swollen rivers recede today.

The unprecedented flood, gravest disaster in the state of Victoria's history, cost the lives of 40, left approximately 8,000 homeless, and caused damage estimated at about $5,000,000.

Handicapped by lack of boats, relief workers employed airplanes to drop blankets and supplies to marooned refugees.

The township of Kooweerup was evacuated, leaving 2,000 homeless. Six residents were drowned. At Gippsland, hospital patients were rescued through a hole in the roof.

Quake Hits Central America.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Guatemala and Salvador in Central America were shaken by a heavy earthquake shock last night, the Tropical Radio company was informed today by a massage from Puerto Barrios, Guatemala. The report said no damage resulted but gave no details.

U. S. OPERATIVES SEIZE STILL IN OWN BACK YARD

Agents of the federal alcohol tax unit under E. C. Yellowly yesterday seized a 500 gallon still in operation and arrested an attendant almost in the shadow of the new postoffice building, Canal and Van Buren streets, where the unit has its offices. The distilling plant occupied all floors of a three story building at 751 Van Buren street, formerly used for storage. The agents also confiscated six 3,000 gallon vats of mash and 35 gallons of alcohol, and arrested William Sander, 35 years old, 2050 West Division street.

A KENTUCKY EXPERT OFFERS DEFINITION OF 'CORN WHISKY'

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Irvin S. Cobb of old Kentucky may have answered the efforts of the Federal Alcohol Control administration to obtain a definition of "corn whisky."

The administration said today in a formal statement that some authorities and distillers had been asked to submit evidence to be offered at a hearing called Wednesday to determine just what words best describe what southerners call "cawn."

"The distillers code authority," the control administration said today, "has submitted the following rather comprehensive definition by the outstanding authority, Mr. Irvin S. Cobb." Mr. Cobb is quoted as follows:

"'This here fiery stuff called corn whisky, whether white or red, is an unlawful offshoot from the bourbon tribe and among Kentuckians, at least, is regarded as but an illegitimate orphan of the royal line, born out of wedlock in the shine of the moon, left as a foundling on the doorstep of some convenient bootlegger, and abounding in fusel oil.

"'And it was not this corn whisky or "moonshine," but true and regal bourbon [which averages 60 per cent maize] that the late Will Lampton had reference to when he penned his immortal verse with its forgiveably libelous tag line:

Kentucky, O, Kentucky,
How I love your classic shades,
Where flit the fairy figures
Of the star eyed southern maids.
Where the butterflies are joying
'Mid the blossoms newly born,
Where the corn is full of kernels
And the colonels full of corn.

"'Warning: Illicit corn liquor may easily be identified by these: It smells like gangrene starting in a mildewed silo; it tastes like the wrath to come; and when you absorb a deep swig of it you have all the sensations of having swallowed a lighted kerosene lamp.

"'A sudden violent jolt of it has been known to stop the victim's watch, snap both his suspenders, and crack his glass eye right across—all in the same motion.

"'Personally, I would recommend it only to persons who are headed for the last hiccup and want to get it over with as soon as possible. And if you must drink it, always do so while sitting flat on the floor. Then you don't have so far to fall.'"

The administration said that the famous Kentuckian's definition would be given "careful consideration."

DEMOCRATS HOLD JUBILEE AS NEW OFFICIALS GO IN

Throngs Watch Induction of County Officers.

A holiday atmosphere prevailed in the county building and city hall yesterday as jubilant Democrats assumed the offices to which they were elected in the November landslide. At the same time the only Republicans to survive the landslide—five members of the county board—took office, but this did not mar the Democratic celebration.

The corridors of both buildings were filled with milling minor politicians, job holders and well wishers. Flowers were banked high in the rooms where the ceremonies were held.

The inductions of Sherif John Toman and Assessor John S. Clark were attended by Senator Lewis, Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, and other leaders.

Throngs Sees Toman Inducted.

The ceremony for Toman took place in the city council chambers, where for the last 22 years he had served as an alderman from the 23d ward. Floral wreaths lined the walls and the mayor's rostrum. The hall was jammed and the throng overflowed into the corridors.

Judge James J. Kelly acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers. These included Senator Lewis, Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly, Attorney General Kerner, Ald. Jacob Arvey [24th], and Judge Harry M. Fisher. Members of the new sherif's family occupied seats on the rostrum.

After being given a diamond studded star, Sherif Toman said:

"The only thing I demand from employés of the sherif's office is service, courtesy and honesty. Those not willing to abide by these three rules may as well resign at once. The county jail will receive especial attention. If I hear of any violation of the rules and I cannot find the guilty one I'll fire the whole floor. And if I can't do that I'll fire myself. I'm going to be sherif."

Assessor Clark Takes Office.

The ceremonial scene was duplicated an hour later in the assessor's office on the third floor of the county building, where Mr. Clark, former chairman of the city council finance committee, took office. A crowd filled the office to hear practically the same speakers. J. L. Jacobs, outgoing assessor, also spoke.

"I intend to work out a program of uniform taxation," Mr. Clark announced. "I can help a friend if he's overtaxed, but I can't help any one who desires to be undertaxed.

"This is the toughest job in the state. I realize I am sitting on a keg of dynamite. I personally will be responsible for the making of two million assessments, involving upwards of seven billion dollars in valuations."

Certain changes will be made in the assessor's office, but these will be announced later, Mr. Clark said. Appointments also will be announced later in the week, he intimated. The assessor said he would hold himself responsible to the taxpayers for equitable assessments.

New County Board Sworn In.

Clayton F. Smith, new president of the county board, presided over ten Democratic and five Republican members at induction ceremonies and the first meeting of the new board. The new Republicans are William N. Erickson, H. Wallace Caldwell, and Carl J. Carlson. Those reëlected are William Busse and George A. Miller.

New Democratic commissioners are President Smith, Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, Fred Fischman, Frank Bobrytzke, and Mrs. Lucy Palermo. Those reëlected are Maurice F. Kavanagh, Peter M. Kelly, John E. Traeger, Daniel Ryan, and Miss Mary McEnerney.

The first action of the new board was to approve the $3,000,000 bond furnished by the incoming county treasurer, Robert M. Sweitzer.

The new county clerk, Michael J. Flynn, administered the oath to the county commissioners, having first been sworn in himself by Sweitzer, outgoing clerk. Appropriate ceremonies accompanied the Sweitzer-Flynn inductions.

Sweitzer Appoints Two Aids.

Mr. Sweitzer, who pledged himself to run his office on a business basis and to modernize its methods, announced the appointment of Horace Lindheimer as assistant treasurer and Ben E. Cohen as attorney. His staf will work nights, the treasurer added, so that the 1933 real estate and personal property tax bills may be placed in the mail by Dec. 7.

Emmett Whealan, new Democratic member of the board of tax appeals, and Fred W. Brummel, Democratic member who was reëlected, were also sworn in during the day. County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki began his thirteenth year on the county bench while Mayor Kelly and others looked on.

The Criminal court building on the west side was also a scene of Democratic rejoicing. Thomas J. Bowler, new clerk of the Criminal court, was sworn in by Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan in a flower banked courtroom. Frank Sain, newly appointed warden of the county jail, celebrated by making a tour of the jail with Sherif Toman. William Milota, new chief bailif, also took office.

Six judges of the Superior court, who were reëlected last June, began their new terms. They are Chief Justice Joseph Sabath and Judges Martin M. Gridley, Ross C. Hall, John J. Sullivan, Donald S. McKinlay, and Walter P. Steffen.

Formalities of induction were dispensed with by Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. He explained that the ceremonies held when he first took the office in June, 1933, were too recent to be repeated. Mitchell C. Robin, reelected clerk of the Probate court, began his new term.

Twelve Municipal court judges, all Democratic, were installed during the day. New judges are Eugene L. McGarry, J. M. Braude, George B. Weiss, Le Roy Hackett, Joseph J. Drucker, Joseph B. Hermes, and Stephen Adamowski. Those reëlected are Frank M. Padden, Francis Borrelli, Matthew D. Hartigan, Harold P. O'Connell, and Gibson E. Gorman.

Joseph T. Baran and George Seif, new Democratic trustees of the sanitary district, will be inducted at the annual meeting of the district's board today. At the same meeting Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, is expected to be elected president of the board, succeeding Thomas J. Bowler.

NEW OFFICIALS TAKE OFFICE IN DU PAGE COUNTY

Two Democrats and six Republicans—five of the latter reëlected—were inducted into office in Du Page county yesterday. Congressman Elect Chauncey W. Reed acted as master of ceremonies at the installations, which were held in Wheaton.

The newly elected Democrats are: William A. Robinson, clerk of the Circuit court, and Arthur L. Hellyer, county treasurer. One new Republican took office. He is Arthur Bennett, sherif.

The other Republican officials, all of whom were reëlected, are: County Judge Win Knoch, Probate Judge Edgar F. Thoma, Probate Clerk Bernard M. Long, County Clerk Clarence V. Wageman, and County Superintendent of Schools Lewis V. Morgan.

Separate Opinion About Same.

Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo delivered a separate opinion, in which Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes and Justice Louis Brandeis concurred. This opinion, coming from three noted liberals, was just as strong as that of the majority in upholding the action of the university.

Justice Cardozo said that religious liberty was protected against invasion by the state by the 14th amendment, just as it is protected against invasion by the nation by the first amendment. However, he said he could not find in the order of the regents any obstruction to the free exercise of religion, adding:

"The conscientious objector, if his liberties were to be thus extended, might refuse to contribute taxes in support of war, whether for attack or defense, as irreligious or immoral. One who is a martyr to a principle—which may turn out in the end to be a delusion or an error—does not prove by his martyrdom that he has kept within the law."

MISSING GIRL, 15, ARRESTED WITH ACCUSED BANDIT

The detective bureau was notified yesterday that a missing Chicago girl, 15 years old, has been in the custody of Sherif G. B. Jensen of Calumet county, Wis., since Nov. 25. The girl, Marcel Tarvid, 8444 South Ashland avenue, was arrested on that date with an accused robber who gave the name of George Johnson, 21 years old.

Chicago police were told that the girl was with Johnson the day before his arrest when he is alleged to have used a stolen automobile in the robbery of a Hilbert, Wis., filling station, and seriously wounded a farmer in making his escape.

The Tarvid girl was reported missing at Gresham police station Nov. 20 by her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Tarvid, who said yesterday she may go to Wisconsin in an effort to obtain the girl's release.

A debutante meets a big moment!

The other evening I met one of my Season's Big Moments.

I was downtown with Jack, and he introduced me to Blue Ribbon Ale.

"Try a bottle," he said. "You'll find it gives you just the right glow."

It did. It was full of what I called "bottled brilliance." And I didn't need to force it down just because it was the thing to do. It was the mellowest drink I've ever tasted. I had several and remained brilliant. I didn't turn into just some one whom Jack had to take home.

Which set me thinking that, when it comes right down to it, the drinks I really like are those that have gayety, lift, without being overenthusiastic. Those which never carry you past the point where enjoyment is spoiled.

I'm not selfish. I like to let my friends in on my Big Moments. So I'm telling you now that you ought to try a bottle of Blue Ribbon Ale. You'll like it, the first time. And if your tastes are anything like mine, you'll like it better the better you know it. Which, after all, is the test, isn't it, of drinks or men?

Who am I? Oh, just another North Shore Debutante, who knows what she likes, and knows that all her friends also like . . . .

STATE GENERAL TAX HELD KEY TO RELIEF SOLUTION

Horner Is Criticized for Delaying Decision.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, leader of the Republican minority in the Illinois assembly, gave a new turn yesterday to public discussion of the state relief fund problem.

He expressed some amusement over Gov. Horner's latest repetition of his statement that the question of the state's providing 36 million dollars for depression charity next year is a matter to be determined by the legislature.

"That," says Schnackenberg, "is a startling and unprecedented exhibition of modesty. The question is squarely before the governor right at this moment. It is exclusively in the jurisdiction of the state tax rate board of which he is a member and of which he is considered the head.

Tax Action Key to Solution.

"That board, we were told emphatically when he called the assembly into special session last month, should determine before the end of the year whether the state tax on general property, meaning real estate and personal property, is to be levied next year and, if so, what the amount will be.

"Until the governor and his associates on that board, State Treasurer Martin and State Auditor Barrett, make that decision the members of the legislature will have nothing before them."

The governor's position has been that it is up to the new assembly as soon as it meets on Jan. 9 to take immediate action for the production of $3,000,000 a month as demanded by Federal Relief Director Harry Hopkins in exchange for assurances that any federal funds will be available for Illinois after Jan. 15.

Postponement in Prospect.

For many years it has been the custom of the state tax rate board to meet late in December and fix the rate for state purposes. At last year's meeting the board decided to abate the levy for this year. This was possible because the state sales tax had been diverted from the charitable purpose for which it was passed to the general revenue fund.

Gov. Horner, it is known, has hoped that a similar abatement would be possible this year, the hope being based to some extent on the thought that the relief emergency would have passed by this time. Now it is believed he is considering postponing action by the state tax rate board until after he learns whether it is possible to obtain adequate and timely action by the assembly.

There is nothing in the law requiring the board to take final action this month. The statute designates the time as "annually on the assessment and equalization of property" so that a postponement or a recess until some time in January might be possible.

If a state tax is put back on the books this year—it used to be 7 per cent of the total in Cook county before it was suspended—it would be possible to appropriate 36 million dollars for relief in 1935 from the sales tax, which next year is expected to total 50 millions, and still leave a large sum for general state purposes. It has been estimated roughly that with this residue from the sales tax and the revenue from beer, wine and liquor, which this year has been a new addition to the state income, it would be necessary to levy only a small general property tax for state purposes.

It has been pointed out that the question whether any general property tax shall be levied has been placed by the legislature in the hands of the governor, treasurer and auditor, and that a revision of this statute transferring this power elsewhere probably could not be passed.

Considered Simplest Solution.

Discussions on the point raised by Schnackenberg publicly for the first time have led to conclusions that the restoration of the general property tax and the provision of relief funds from the sales tax proceeds is the simplest means of complying with Director Hopkins' ultimatum.

It has been reported that Washington feels that Illinois did its share so long as the sales tax went to charity, but that it was wrong in diverting that money from the poor to the benefit of holders of real estate.

JOBLESS WOMEN DENIED FOOD BY RELIEF AGENCIES

Disclosure that the practice of giving free meal tickets to destitute women hunting employment was halted last June brought outbursts yesterday from two members of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, which had not been notified of the discontinuance. As a result the program was ordered to go into effect again immediately.

After lengthy consideration, the commission authorized the meal ticket program two years ago. It was assumed that it was still being carried out until Victor A. Olander, a commission member, was informed it had been discontinued by staf executives five months ago.

"This is a serious matter, Mr. Olander said. "Here we have a situation where a penniless girl looking for a job can't get a meal to tide her over unless she goes on the relief rolls, while any tramp can get taken care of instantly at the shelters. By thunder! I think we ought to take as good care of such girls as we do of a bunch of hobos."

Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, another member, declared it was a "humiliating experience" to learn from an outside source that the commission's program had been dropped without its knowledge.

BIRTH CONTROL DEMANDED FOR RELIEF CLIENTS

League Urges New Policy by Charity Agencies.

A demand that relief agencies abandon their present policy and permit case workers to direct relief clients to birth control clinics was made last night in a resolution adopted at a meeting which marked the tenth anniversary of the Illinois Birth Control league. The meeting, held in the Chicago Woman's club at 72 East 11th street, was sponsored by the Birth Control league, the Social Hygiene league, and the club's committee on birth control.

Relief case workers and social service workers comprised a large part of the audience of several hundred. The resolution was adopted over a few faint "noes." It was drafted by Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai congregation, who was not present. The resolution will be forwarded to relief officials.

Present Policy Attacked.

"The Cook county board [which is primarily responsible for charity in Cook county] and the unemployment relief agencies do not permit their social workers to recommend their 'clients,' in need of birth control information, to consult the birth control clinics operating in Chicago," the resolution said.

"More and more of these 'clients' are becoming the recipients of public charity. Scientific information properly given by those qualified to do so at birth control clinics is cheaper and better than that gotten from stores and other agencies.

"The present mode of procedure, which forbids social workers from recommending these duly authorized agencies, falls below social and religious standards of our time and generation.

Attitude of Churches Cited.

"The Catholic church has felt the need of dealing with this problem by having some of its leaders urge the practice of birth control by a method set forth in the book, 'The Rhythm of Sterility and Fertility in Women.'

"All other religious bodies have already gone on record sanctioning birth control.

"We demand that the Cook county board and the unemployment relief agencies fall in line with an enlightened public opinion founded upon the social, ethical, and religious demands of the present crisis."

Dr. Rachelle S. Yarros, medical director of the birth control league, declared that a survey of 8,000 families in five cities, made by the United States Public Health service and the Milbank Foundation, established that the highest birth rate is among relief clients.

Joel D. Hunter, director of the United Charities, said that birth control should not be forced on relief clients, but that they should be "helped to see the problem of voluntary parenthood objectively." Also, he said, they should be shown what the community has to offer for the solution of this problem.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, said recently that there is no data to show what the birth rate is among relief clients in this state.

SAYS EXTORTION NOTE CAUSED SON OF JUDGE TO KILL

Kennamer's Pal Quotes Him to Prosecutor.

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 4 [Tuesday].—(AP)—John F. Conway, assistant county prosecutor, early today quoted Robert [Tom] Thomas as saying Phil Kennamer, 19 year old son of a federal judge, had confided to him he killed John F. Gorrell because of an extortion note allegedly intended for H. F. Wilcox, wealthy oil man.

Thomas, one of many Tulsa youths questioned in connection with the slaying of the 23 year old dental student last Thursday night, was quoted by Conway as saying he met Kennamer at a suburban café about fifteen minutes before the body was found.

Didn't Believe Him Serious.

His story of the meeting as related in his signed statement said in part:

"'I've just killed John Gorrell,' Phil said. 'Is that right?' I said. Of course, I didn't think he was serious. I thought it was a joke, so I wasn't serious.

"I said, 'Did you do a good job of it?' 'Yes, I did,' Kennamer answered. He then said he killed Gorrell because of that extortion note."

The statement said Kennamer then showed Thomas a letter which demanded $20,000 from Wilcox under threat that his daughter Virginia would be kidnaped.

Sanity Test Proposed.

Previous to the revelation to the prosecutor by Thomas a sanity test was projected for Kennamer, who is held for the murder of Gorrell.

County authorities expressed meanwhile the desire to question Homer F. Wilcox Jr., son of an oil-wealthy family. The latter young man's sister, Virginia, was the reported object of a kidnaping plot.

Holly Anderson, county prosecutor, said he was "eager to talk" to young Wilcox concerning reports to the police that he drove the motor car in which Kennamer went to Thomas Wade's roadhouse Thanksgiving night after Gorrell was shot twice through the brain.

Expects to Ask Father.

"I am sure," Anderson said, "that as soon as we talk to W. F. Wilcox Sr., he will help us confer with his son. But we do want to talk to him and try to clear up some perplexing angles of the case."

George Dye, brother-in-law of Wilcox and a vice president of his oil firm, tried to reach the elder Wilcox by telephone this afternoon in Chicago and New York to learn where the boy is now.

"He had checked out of his hotel in Chicago and had not yet reached New York [Waldorf hotel]," said Dye. "I believe he is on the Twentieth Century, as I was told plane schedules have been canceled due to bad weather."

Dye said the elder Wilcox had a conference with other oil men in Chicago and presumed he was going to New York on oil business.

Young Kennamer, who surrendered on Saturday with the assertion he had been forced to kill Gorrell in self-defense, pleaded not guilty today. He is the 19 year old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer.

Hear Girl Was Threatened.

Miss Virginia Wilcox, has been named in sworn statements as the intended victim of a proposed extortion plot attributed to Gorrell. Miss Wilcox and her father have said they knew nothing of the plan.

Officials would not discuss a theory that young Kennamer and Gorrell, 23 year old son of a Tulsa physician, were involved in illegal undertakings.

U. S. WILL SEEK INDICTMENTS IN TAX CONSPIRACY

Income Levy Expose Source Told.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Thomas N. McCarter, a New Jersey public utilities operator, was revealed today as the man who exposed an income tax evasion conspiracy labeled by officials as designed to "sell out the government."

This word was forthcoming as it became known that treasury officials will ask the District of Columbia grand jury this week to indict two federal employés and possibly six persons in all.

Two Employés Ousted.

The alleged conspiracy came to light a week ago. At that time Secretary Morgenthau described the treasury's informant as a "high class business man" and "good citizen." He spoke this praise less than twenty-four hours after McCarter announced a court fight against President Roosevelt's power program.

McCarter, president of the Edison Electric institute and head of the New Jersey Public Service corporation, went to Morgenthau with a report that New York tax consultants had offered to "fix" a $150,000 tax case on a 20 per cent commission basis. As a result, two important employés of the internal revenue bureau have been dismissed and two others are to be dropped.

An investigation now is under way of every tax case settled by the dismissed employés during fourteen years. The cases were said to involve several million dollars.

Seen as Star Witness.

McCarter, who is expected to be the government's star witness in the grand jury proceedings, announced in New York a week ago Sunday that Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, and James M. Beck, former solicitor-general, had been retained by the Edison institute to fight the Tennessee Valley authority's projects in the courts.

A report prepared by Baker and Beck, he said, held the Tennessee Valley legislation was "palpably" unconstitutional.

While at first declining to name the "high class business man" who gave him the information, Morgenthau said of him:

"From my standpoint that man was a good citizen. I invite any other business man in the country to coöperate with us if approached in such a way."

FOUR SUSPENDED AT LOUISIANA IN CENSORSHIP ROW

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Dr. James M. Smith, president of Louisiana State university, said tonight that four of 26 journalism students, suspended in the Reveille censorship controversy, have been "indefinitly suspended" and the 22 other reinstated in the university.

The Reveille, the college publication, was placed under a censor because the paper sought to publish a letter from a student criticizing Senator Huey P. Long's mock ceremony which named half back Abe Mickal of L. S. U. to the state senate. Its editorial staf then resigned.

Those dismissed were Sam Montague of New Orleans, president of the student body of the school of journalism; D. R. McGuire of New Orleans, Stanley Shlosman of Marshalltown, Ia., and L. Rea Godbold of Brookhaven, Miss.

HUEY REPLIES TO EDITORS.

Action taken here Saturday by the Western Conference of College Editors, censuring Senator Huey [Kingfish] Long of Louisiana for "meddling" with the educational affairs of his state, brought a telegram yesterday to Howard Hudson, editor of the University of Chicago Daily Maroon.

The message, 900 words long, came from the Kingfish himself. He listed in detail accomplishments he said he had wrought in his state's program of education from grade schools to Louisiana State university and Tulane university. His telegram closed thus:

"I believe every one of you would be ashamed of your action in lending your arm to such an effort if you understood the truth."

COURT TEST OF NRA GETS UNDER WAY; PICK JURY

Battery Maker Forced to Plead "Not Guilty."

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—A legal test of the National Recovery act, watched with interest by small business men throughout the country, started today when Fred C. Perkins, a wet storage battery manufacturer of West York, went on trial in the federal District court in this city.

He is accused of violating the NRA approved code of his industry by paying workmen, numbering from ten to twenty, depending upon the condition of business, less than the minimum wage of 40 cents an hour called for by the code.

Pick Jury Speedily.

A jury of seven men and five women, members of the so-called "middle class," was chosen with dispatch before Federal Judge Albert L. Watson of the middle district of Pennsylvania.

Harold B. Beitler, former president of the Pennsylvania Bar association, as chief of defense counsel, argued that the National Recovery act was unconstitutional and did not specifically provide jurisdiction of federal District courts in any cases save those in equity. Beitler's argument disclosed that the defense probably would base its case in the District court upon a contention that the acts complained of were not acts in interstate commerce.

Perkins, who is a former Cornell football player and engineering graduate, 56 years old, was not permitted to "stand mute" before the court, as his intention had been, but automatically had a plea of not guilty entered for him.

This was because his reputed violations of the code under the law, comprised a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $500 for each count in the "information," an information in this case being tantamount to a bill of indictment in a felony.

Held Guilty of Breaking Code.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye today found the Pockrandt Lumber and Fuel company of St. Louis park in contempt of court for violating the temporary restraining order forbidding the company from selling materials below the retail lumber code price. He deferred sentence until a later date.

Youth Dies of Wounds by Unidentified Assailant

Frank Denges, 21 years old, 4319 Wrightwood avenue, who was shot Thanksgiving night by an unidentified assailant while standing at Irving Park boulevard and Clarendon avenue, died early today at the Bridewell hospital. John Logan, 21 years old, 3611 Palmer street, who was also wounded, is recovering at the hospital from bullet wounds in the body and leg. Witnesses said the youths were shot by a man who apparently resented the manner in which they asked him for directions to Sheridan road.

RUSSIA SEIZES 71 IN PLOT; RENEWS DEATH PENALTY

White Guards Face Trial on Terror Charges.

MOSCOW, Dec. 4 (Tuesday).—(AP)—Wholesale arrests of white guards were announced early today by soviet officials as the body of the assassinated communist leader, Sergei Kirov, was being removed from Leningrad to Moscow. The white guards were accused of preparing terroristic acts against soviet officials. In the roundup of the alleged terrorists, 39 were seized in the Leningrad region and 32 in the Moscow area.

The arrests followed the central committee's decree invoking anew the death penalty for Russian terrorists and providing swift trial and prompt execution of penalties, with no appeal from death sentences.

In addition to the arrests, the chief of administration of the commissariat of home affairs at Leningrad, named Medvieff, together with six of his assistants, was removed from office for negligence in safeguarding the state's security.

It was announced the White guards will be tried by a military collegium of the Supreme court. Medvieff and his assistants also are to face trial.

New Details of Murder.

At the same time the government announced the details of the crime hitherto withheld.

Kirov, secretary of the central executive committee and Dictator Josef Stalin's right hand man, was killed by a revolver shot fired at close range into the back of his head. The shot shattered his skull and produced almost instant death. The commissariat of domestic affairs issued a statement saying the murder took place as Kirov, going to his office in the Leningrad Soviet building, passed the room where visitors are received.

Leonid Nicolieff, 30, a former employé of the workers and peasants inspection bureau, approached Kirov from the rear and killed him. He was arrested there. Kirov then was carried to his office and physicians were summoned. They found him without pulse and used all possible means to revive him.

The announcement said Nicolieff had confessed and was still being questioned, but gave no indication of his motive or present political affiliations.

Nation Is Grief Stricken.

Not since the death of Lenin has the passing of a public figure caused such widespread grief throughout the soviet republic.

Thousands of workers were still awaiting an opportunity to pay tribute to the dead leader when Uritzky palace was closed last night and Kirov's body put aboard a train for Moscow for the funeral.

Aged bolsheviks who fought with Kirov to establish socialism and suffered in Romanoff prisons for thirty years accompanied the cortège. Three days of mourning was proclaimed in Moscow and all places of amusement ordered closed.

Leaders of the communist party from all parts of the soviet union will gather for the funeral rites Thursday in snow covered Red square.

NEW REIGN OF TERROR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Dec. 3.—A revival of the reign of red terror has been authorized by the presidium of the central executive committee of the communist party. It has authorized an unannounced number of immediate executions of all prisoners suspected of plotting terrorist acts, as well as of prisoners serving under suspended death sentences.

The committee also has announced that from now on it will refuse to consider pleas of clemency on sentences passed in soviet courts. The GPU, or secret police, has been instructed to refuse to forward such pleas to Moscow. The decree orders that no quarter be given terrorists or enemies of the soviet state.

Genrikh Grigorevich Yagoda, former chief of the GPU, is now commissar of the ministry of interior, which is the new name of the GPU. Yagoda's reputation equals that of the dead originator of the dreaded cheka, Felix E. Djerjinski. His suppression of the separatist movement among Ukrainians, where he laid waste to entire districts, executing and exiling the inhabitants to Siberia, between 1930 and 1932, won him the title of commissar.

The soviet's new slogan, "Terrorize the terrorists," is chiefly directed against the white Russian secret organization, which has been operating in Russia for the last seven years.

Hundred Reported Seized.

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 3.—According to reports received here today, arrests in Russia in connection with the murder of Sergei M. Kirov total several hundred, including many prominent soviet officials. From various localities on the Gulf of Finland it is reported gunfire was heard in the vicinity of Kronstadt.

Finnish refugees who have just arrived from Russia tell of serious unrest in many large timber and labor camps between Leningrad and the White sea. Open disturbances are said to have occurred. Anti-bolshevik agitators, it is reported, are trying to start a revolutionary movement in concentration camps. In some camps near the White sea, it is stated, disturbances have become so alarming that picked troops have been called.

U. S. TECHNICIANS SPOT FLAWS IN SOVIET INDUSTRY

Find Russians Deaf to Expert Advice.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, Nov. 11.—[By courier and mail.]—So-called American specialists or technicians, a large number of whom are connected with soviet factories, apparently still are experiencing considerable difficulty in inducing managements to adopt methods of production which would result in economies and increased output. They frequently air their views in the Moscow Daily News, a four page English language newspaper.

The specialists' views and complaints often provide an interesting cross-section of conditions prevailing in new industries which were established during the first five year plan.

For example, Robert Robinson, American foreman in the gauge grinding department of the first state bill bearing plant, complained that his rationalization proposals which were approved several months ago, "had not yet been put into effect." Two of his proposals had to do with the measuring and checking of precision squares. He said that 100 of these squares were lying idle in the tool crib because of inaccuracies, whereas an indicator costing $25 would rectify the situation and result in great saving. The only indicator in the plant was the one Robinson brought with him from the United States.

Slow on Generators.

Another writer connected with the auto-tractor electric equipment plant said that while American factories produce from five to ten certain types of generators and starters the Russian factory is only able to make one. He stated that young soviet engineers sent to the United States for instruction purposes had returned with reports showing the high quality and methods of production in certain American automobile plants. The factory here, however, was described as "still slow in mastering American technique." Referring to the problem of preserving the life of instruments, he said "nothing has been done so far." He also praised the cleanliness prevailing in American factories, a condition which he described as "conspicuously absent here."

L. Laukkonen, another foreign employé connected with a plan at Lipetsh, criticized the management of the cooperative store where the employés obtain their food. The store is supposed to remain open each day of the five day week.

"One sometimes spends hours waiting for it to open," he wrote. "During September there were no fruits, vegetables, nor tobacco to be had."

Manager Fails to Appear.

Thirty-one foreign employés called a meeting and invited the manager of the shop to appear and discuss the situation. The manager failed to show up. The engineers passed resolutions of complaint which were sent to the head office in Moscow. Whether the complaints brought results was not stated.

J. Adams, American technician at the Moscow knitting mill, Factory No. 12, stated that for two years he had been in charge of repairs and reconstruction and had ample opportunity to watch the system at close range. He then listed eight company officials, ranging from the director to the assistant foremen, who are supposed to keep the machines in condition.

"This complicatd and unwieldy administrative system results in nothing but confusion and irresponsibility," Adams wrote. "Nothing is better calculated for 'passing the buck' than such form of administration. Seven of the executives do nothing but 'administer,' issue orders and write reports. The actual work is done by the assistant foreman and the repair brigade, usually without control or direction."

His complaint, as in the case of most of those published, ended up with these words:

"How much better we do it in America."

Julius Gillis, an American engineer employed by a zinc plant, complained as follows:

"Every suggestion which I made met with opposition by a group of young Russian engineers, although none of them possessed more than a very little experience. Instead of wishing to learn, they obstructed all my orders."

Linotype Machine Problem.

The matter of the proper method of taking care of linotype machines received considerable attention. Paul Shames, an American operator, in a letter said the Russian method was wrong.

He was employed by the Iskra Printshop of Moscow. Under the system prevailing here each operator cleans and oils his machine in the morning. Consequently the machine stands idle for thirty minutes. In addition the operator is allowed two additional hours in each of the five day weeks for general overhaulage.

Shames pointed out that "under the system in the United States the operator starts setting type immediately upon coming to work while the matter of cleaning, oiling, and repairs is handled by special men, thus resulting in improved work and increased production."

His recommendations were discussed, then rejected.

NATIONAL PARK MARKS SCENE OF GRANT'S VICTORY

Vicksburg Battlefield Is Preserved.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Vicksburg, Miss., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Here in 1863 Gen. U. S. Grant fought a campaign which in retrospect is acknowledged as one which "only Napoleon's first campaign in Italy can rival in imagination of conception and brilliancy of execution."

A national park fringes three sides of the hilled city, preserving the confederate earthworks that defied repeated Union attacks for two years of the civil war. On the west flow the waters of the Yazoo river in the old Mississippi river bed.

Cannon on these bluffs, 250 feet above the river, controled the waterway for the confederacy. In the spring of 1862 a Union fleet of gunboats from New Orleans bombarded the fortress but failed of its purpose. Sherman had been repulsed in a land attack when Grant took command of the expedition on Jan. 29, 1863.

Plaques Recount Story.

In the national park metal plaques describe the movements of troops during the siege from May 18 to July 4. Trenches, rifle pits and gun placements are in a good state of preservation, so that the tablets have the effect of animating this ten miles of life scale relief map. Cannon are in place, contributing to this impression of actually witnessing combat.

The picture is mellowed by bronze, marble, and granite monuments memorializing the heroism, devotion, and sacrifice and none of the bitterness of the combatants. From the rank and file the conqueror and conquered share honors.

Looking back upon today's city of Vicksburg, population 22,943 according to 1930 census, there is much of the old town of 5,000 as it was in civil war days. A courthouse built in 1858 raises its belfry from a hillock. There are antebellum mansions, some of red brick and some of frame, mostly colonial, but with some showing a Queen Anne influence from river commerce association.

Ancient Fort Site.

This is part of the United States, open to free trade and social intercourse. The Stars and Stripes wave from a schoolhouse flagpole. On the waterfront is a federal barge line's wharf. Four civilian conservation corps camps are engaged in landscaping the battle ground.

From one lookout northwest of the city a confederate gun placement, supposedly the site of the Spanish Fort Nogales in 1791, there's a view of the steep 250 foot wall of earth with traces of its civil war fortifications giving a ready comprehension of its invincibility to ordinary military measures.

The army and navy having failed in attacks, President Lincoln proposed unusual measures. He directed that a canal should be dug to move the fickle course of the river away from Vicksburg. Vicksburg was on a horseshoe bend. The Mississippi now cuts across this loop, due to an act of nature and not to Grant's canal.

This plan failed, as did another scheme to cut the west levee well above Vicksburg for a waterway connection with the Red river, flowing into the Mississippi about a hundred miles below the city.

Grant Solves Problem.

All plans failed until Grant inaugurated a scheme that was victorious because of its sheer daring and its excellence of execution.

The essence of the Grant plan was an attack upon Vicksburg from the south and from the rear. Sherman made a demonstration on the north to cover the march of 43,000 overland through the swamps and thickets on the west bank of the river. Transports with volunteer crews ran through a confederate bombardment so they could serve as ferries for the federal army farther south.

On the east bank of the Mississippi, severed from its base of supplies, foraging for provisions, the Union army fought five battles between April 29 and May 17, driving the confederates, under Gen. Johnston, from Jackson and forcing the Vicksburg army to retire to its entrenchments.

Lays Siege to City.

Repeated assaults upon the fortifications swelled casualty lists. Grant then dug in around Vicksburg, digging ever closer to the enemy. Underfed and overpowered, the confederates surrendered.

With the fall of Vicksburg the Union army took control of the Mississippi river. It was the beginning of the end of the civil war.

THE TRIBUNE roadster, on a tour of the grounds of civil war history while en route to southern winter resorts, is leaving here tonight for Chattanooga, Tenn. Vicksburg is a long detour, probably too long, for Chicagoland motorists driving to Florida this winter. However, it is on a Chicago to New Orleans route. It is 800 miles here by direct highway from Chicago via U. S. 61 from Cairo, Ill. Most of the 241 miles south from Memphis, Tenn., is gravel.

Sullivan to Seek New Law on Impaneling Grand Juries

Chief Justice Denis E. Sullivan of the Criminal court announced yesterday that he would seek amendment by the general assembly of the present Illinois grand jury law, under which the jury commissioners are obliged to draw the names of exactly 23 men, the number necessary to constitute a grand jury.

An Illinois Supreme court decision six months ago held that 23 men, no more, no less, might be summoned. Previously extra veniremen were called to take the places of those who had died, or who had legal excuses for not serving, or whom the deputy sherifs could not find.

Since the Supreme court ruling, however, not once has a full jury panel been obtained on the day for which it was summoned. The presiding judge has no alternative but to order the sherif to go out into the highways and seek the needed jurors.

The December jury which was to have been impaneled yesterday was eight men short. One of the men summoned, whose name Judge Sullivan would not reveal, begged to be excused because he had made arrangements to take his sick wife to a sanitarium. It is a case of life and death, the judge was told and the wife would not go without the husband.

"The present system gives the judge do discretion," Judge Sullivan asserted. "Now and again a man does have a good and sufficient reason, which is not strictly a legal reason, to be excused from jury service.

"Under the present system it is possible that undesirable men will be placed on the grand jury. I know of several occasions on which deputy sherifs went to the nearest saloon and picked up some of the unemployed customers. I have no way of knowing the qualifications and background of the men brought into court by this method.

"The jurors summoned from the jury commission office are men of known reputation and integrity. They have all been checked up by the commissioners before their names are placed in the jury box. They are men who can be depended on in case an important investigation comes before the jury. Men selected at random from the streets and saloons could impede or even ruin an important investigation."

Some of the Criminal court attachés pointed out that under the present system a sherif could, if he wished, practically control the grand jury by purposely not serving men on the jury panel and then packing the venire with his friends when sent to get men from the highways. The remedy for the situation, Judge Sullivan declares, is for the general assembly to change the jury act to allow the judge to summon more than the 23 men now called for service.

POLICE QUESTION CALL; LET BANK ROBBERS ESCAPE

City's 3d Crime of Sort in Year Nets $3,300.

Bank robberies have been comparatively so few and unsuccessful in Cook county during 1934 that yesterday when police headquarters received a telephone message that the Hamilton State bank at 3916 Broadway was being held up a few second were lost in making sure the call was not a hoax. Those few seconds enabled seven bandits to escape with $3,300, according to Capt. Patrick B. O'Connell of the Town Hall station.

Four of the bandits entered the bank at 9 o'clock in the morning, yelling, "Yippee! Yippee!" and wildly waving their weapons, which included one machine gun. Carl Specht, 4037 North Central Park avenue, saw the machine gun from across the street and ran to a telephone to give the alarm.

Has to Explain Circumstances.

"Where are you calling from and how do you know the bank is being robbed?" inquired the operator who answered the telephone, then, as Specht told Capt. O'Connell later, he was asked to give his name. Capt. O'Connell was notified and hurried to the scene with a squad, arriving as the robbers' automobile was turning a corner east from Broadway. It quickly vanished in heavy trafic after it reached the outer drive.

During the holdup three of the gunmen remained outside, one at the wheel of the automobile. The car bore license tags of a machine stolen Sunday night. The four who entered the bank wore handkerchiefs over their faces.

Bankers' Official Comments.

"This was the third robbery of a bank in Chicago this year," said M. A. Graettinger, executive vice president of the Illinois Bankers' association, "and the ninth in Cook county. Of the nine only four were successful in that the robbers obtained cash, and the aggregate loss of all the robberies was $25,000.

"The infrequency of the robberies was due to much improved conditions. The county was better policed than in other years and the banks have been more careful. Bank robbery is no longer profitable. On two attempts the robbers were driven away by tear gas; in one attempt two of the robbers were killed; and in another several bandits were seized. The record for 1934 is a great improvement over other years."

SUPREME COURT ORDERS WALLACE TRADE SUIT TRIAL

Editor Charges Plot on Publishing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—A case in which Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and other publishers of middle west farm journals were accused of an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of trade today was ordered by the United States Supreme court to go to trial on its merits. The lower courts had dismissed the case on jurisdictional grounds.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who stands in the forefront of the trust and monopoly baiting New Dealers, was head of the Wallace Publishing company, one of the defendants, when the alleged conspiracy was formed. He is still "editor on leave of absence" of the publication, Wallace's Farmer and Iowa Homestead.

The case is a civil matter, in which the petitioner, the Indiana Farmer's Guide, is seeking damages of $146,131, under the Sherman anti-trust act. The provisions of the sections make conspiracies and combinations seeking to monopolize trade punishable by triple damages.

Opinion Is Unanimous.

The unanimous opinion of the Supreme court, written in strong language by Mr. Justice Butler, states the defendants made no denial of and impliedly admitted the truth of the facts asserted when they relied merely upon a contention that interstate commerce was not involved.

The Indiana Farmer's Guide charged that the defendants—Prairie Farmer Publishing company, Wallace Publishing company, Wisconsin Farmer company, McKelvie Publishing company, Webb Publishing company and the Midwest Farm Paper Unit, Inc.—entered into an unlawful combination to destroy competition in the farm journal advertising business. The Midwest Unit Agency was incorporated in 1931 as successor to one founded in 1928, and the officers and directors were representatives of the other defendant companies. The defendants, it is charged, made use of this agency to secure advertising at combination rates which were much lower than the total of separate rates.

Says Paper was Wrecked.

The complaint charged that the rate for advertising in all the defendant publications was almost $300 a page less than the rate if the advertiser wished to advertise in all but one of them and in one outside paper. The petitioner charged that the scheme "sapped the lifeblood" of his paper and that the scheme was conceived and designed for the purpose of obtaining a monopoly of the farm paper business.

The Federal District court granted a motion of the defendants to direct a verdict in their favor on the ground that interstate commerce was not involved.

"Respondents take no issue with the petitioner's assertion of fact," says the Supreme court opinion, "but impliedly assuming its correctness, they argue . . . the trial court did not err in holding that there can be no restraint or monopoly of interstate commerce when the subject matter of the complaint does not relate to interstate commerce at all.

"Thus by a construction that is utterly untenable, they support the very basis upon which the petitioner maintains the district court rested its decision. Inferentially, their contentions go far to show—and in the light of all the circumstances we find—that the trial court's direction of verdict and its judgment rests solely upon the ground that petitioner failed to introduce evidence that its business or that of the respondents included interstate commerce.

"The respondents had opportunity here to show that although given on untenable grounds, the judgment below is right and should be affirmed. But the respondents suggest nothing to justify the direction of the verdict and judgment in their favor," the opinion concludes.

In 1929 Wallace and the members of his family who had controled the Wallace Publishing company bought out a competitor, the Iowa Homestead, owned by Dante Pierce.

MANY men of the South have been "in tobacco" for years—growing tobacco and curing it—buying it and selling it—until they know tobacco from A to Izzard.

Now folks who have been in tobacco all their lives, folks who grow it, know there is no substitute for mild ripe tobacco.

THRONGS WATCH WINNERS PICKED AT STOCK SHOW

Many Prizes Carried Off by Colleges.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Farmers dominated the mixed crowd of rural and city people who swarmed around the judging arena yesterday at the International Live Stock exposition. Special fares brought farmers in on trains and buses from all parts of the country. Despite rain and snow many of them came in their automobiles.

Visitors filled nearly all the amphitheater seats during the day and stood eight deep, some with chins resting on the rim of the oval, watching the experts cull out the herds and flocks, leading up to the final selection of champions and grand champions.

Watch Expert from Scotland.

For hours yesterday all eyes were centered on Walter Biggar, the cattle judging expert from Dalbeatie, Scotland, as he worked among the candidates for the grand champion beef animal award, the highest prize of the show. The interest in the Scottish judge became more intensified when over the grape vine route word was passed around that Mr. Biggar probably would name the grand champion this afternoon. This will make the eleventh grand champion picked by Mr. Biggar.

The judges worked rapidly yesterday and at the close of the day they were ready to announce many of the important awards. Agricultural colleges made competition keen for individual breeders and went out of the arena with most of the ribbons on sheep.

In the sheep breed classes Purdue university, Lafayette, Ind., exhibited the champion individual Hampshire wether. The reserve went to Iowa State college, Ames, Ia. Purdue also won the championship on a pen of wethers in this breed, with Iowa State college coming in again for the reserve championship award.

U. of Kentucky Wins.

The individual Cheviot wether championship was won by the University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., while the reserve went to Hal B. Clark, Clarkshill, Ind. Hob & Nobs farm, Francestown, N. H., was awarded the championship on the best pen of Cheviot wethers. The reserve went to T. Harris & Sons, Kokomo, Ind. Champion and reserve prizes were won by Michigan State college, East Lansing, Mich., for exhibiting the two best Shropshire individual wethers. Over in the Shropshire sheep pens the champion individual wether was exhibited by Iroquais farm, Cooperstown, N. Y., with Michigan State college taking the reserve title.

Colleges continued winning even in the grade and cross breed classes. The championship award on the best grade and cross breed of medium wool or down type of wether went to Purdue university and the reserve to Oklahoma A. & M. college, Stillwater, Okla. The Oklahoma school also won the championship pen class of grades and cross breeds; Purdue university took the reserve honor.

Best Individual Wether Picked.

Individuals came in for a little glory in the long wool grade and cross breed class when H. M. Lee, Highgate, Ontario, Canada, won the championship for having the best individual wether. The reserve title was won by Charles J. Shore, Glanworth, Ontario, Canada. Mr. Lee and Mr. Shore took the champion and reserve awards respectively in the pen class of long wool, grade and cross breeds.

Three state agricultural colleges also took all the major lamb awards. The grand champion wether lamb of the show, a Shropshire, was fitted and shown by Michigan State college. The reserve grand championship, a grade and crossbred lamb, was entered by Purdue university.

The grand championship for a pen of three lambs was awarded to Purdue university for Southdown lambs. The reserve grand championship awarded for a pen of three lambs which were grade and crossbred was awarded to the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college.

In the hog division only a few awards were announced, including the championship title won by Edwin Sweetland Jr., Dryden, N. Y., who exhibited the best Berkshire barrow. Michigan State college captured the reserve. In the Berkshire pen class of barrows Purdue university won the championship and Michigan State college the reserve title.

In the class for senior yearling shorthorn bulls, Bapton Orator, from the Prince of Wales' E. P. ranch at High River, Alberta, finished second to Thomas E. Wilson's Edellyn Coutt Calrossie. Sultan Browndale, owned by Mr. Wilson, was first choice as senior shorthorn bull calf, with the prince's Princeton Neptune second.

Oklahoma Team Scores High.

Over in the hay and grain show students from the Oklahoma A. & M. college won first in the intercollegiate crop judging event, scoring 3,747 points out of a possible 4,239. This gave the Oklahoma school two legs on the new silver trophy offered by the Union Stock Yard and Transit company. The trophy must be won three times before it becomes the permanent property of the institution. The College of Agriculture, Raleigh, N. C., and the Kansas State college, Manhattan, Kan., each own one of the silver trophies. The University of Nebraska has one leg on the new cup.

The trio from the Kansas State Agricultural college, Manhattan, Kan., was second in this judging contest, scoring 3,730, and Michigan State college, East Lansing, Mich., third, with a score of 3,630 points.

The highest individual score in the event was made by Richard Potts, a member of the winning team. His score totaled 1,294 out of a possible 1,413. Potts' teammates were Orvile Dill and Hershel Price. J. D. Roberts of the North Carolina Agricultural college had the second highest individual score of 1,255 points.

Pick Champion Oat Grower.

A champion oat grower was crowned late yesterday when judges selected the grain exhibited by Ellis Aldrich, 25 year old Fairgrove, Mich., farmer, as the best oat sample in the show. The award to Aldrich was the first ever obtained in the National Hay and Grain show at the International by a Michigan grower.

The oat sample weighed 46.5 pounds to the bushel. Herman Trelle of Wembley, Alberta, Canada, pressed Aldrich closely for the award. Trelle won the wheat championship three times in previous shows and is ineligible to compete again for a period of years in wheat classes. Trelle's grain this year weighed 50.9 pounds to the bushel.

5 GUNMEN LOCK 17 IN AUSTIN DAIRY; GET $1,000

CRIMINAL COURT.

Sam Masacchio and Sylvester Blasky, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Denis E. Sullivan.

Five well dressed young men armed with pistols held up the Austin Dairy company offices at 4700 Walton street in Austin yesterday afternoon and escaped with about $1,000, after locking the company's president and general manager with 15 other employés in a refrigerator.

Hilding Benson, 1351 North Lorel avenue, the president, and Walter Halleman, 4648 Washington boulevard, the manager, were in the office with a number of drivers checking in their collections when the gang, headed by a leader they called "Mike," entered. All were forced to lie on the floor, then stand one by one as they were searched and later herded into the ice box. "Mike" forced Halleman to hand over about $800 from the office safe. Another bandit took $17 from Benson's pockets. Several drivers surrendered a total of about $200.

1,600 4-H CLUB YOUTHS PARADE, SELECT LEADER

Indiana Boy Named Best Future Farmer.

The green four-leaf clover of the 4-H Clubs of America outshone all else at the International Live Stock Exposition last night as 1,600 farm boys and girls from 44 states paraded through the arena of the stockyards' amphitheater. They are attending the 13th National 4-H Club congress.

Bearing the emblems and banners of their craft—that of scientific husbandry—the boys and girls, whose average age was 15, gave to the massed onlookers a sense of pride in the "future farmers of America," a title pressed upon the club members earlier in the day in a message from President Roosevelt.

Best Qualified Boy Chosen.

The climax of their evening celebration was the naming of Lester Schutz, 17 years old, an Indiana farm boy, as the "best qualified" 4-H Club boy of the entire 450,000 enrolled in the United States, and the presentation to him of a herd of pure bred Aberdeen-Angus cattle.

Lester started his 4-H work at the age of 8, has realized a total profit of $4,870.83 from it, and has made a noteworthy record in live stock and corn projects. As a reward for his achievements in the latter field, he was proclaimed national 4-H champion Sunday and given a $400 scholarship to an agricultural college. Yesterday's title, however, is the apex of 4-H achievement.

A son of Jacob Schutz of Lafayette, he is 6 feet 2 inches tall, a senior in Buck Creek High school, lives on a 95 acre farm, owns five head of cattle, and plans to attend Purdue university on his scholarship.

Another Indiana Youth Honored.

Another Lafayette, Ind., boy, Max Skinner, also 17 years old, was named national 4-H meat animal champion, which carries a $300 scholarship as a prize. Max has completed nine years of club work, in which he used 1,050 swine, 43 cattle, 13 sheep, one colt, and 160 acres of land. The gross proceeds from his work were $5,198.34.

Honors veered to Oklahoma, however, when it came to canning, for Emma J. Scudder, 18 years old, of Wann, Okla., was named national 4-H canning champion. Chosen from forty state canning champions to be the national winner, Miss Scudder canned 5,074 quarts of foods in eight years, with a gross income of $4,222.53. She received a $400 scholarship.

Miss Helen Whitcomb, 19 years old, of Albany, Wis., was chosen national champion in 4-H home economics. Since enrolling in club work at the age of 12, Miss Whitcomb has had a total income of $2,472 from 36 home economics projects.

Other winners, who drove into the arena in a massive farm wagon behind a six horse team, were Thomas K. Parkinson, 18 years old, of Francisville, Ind.; Donald L. Rinner, 17, of Noble, Ia., and Max H. Gerard, 17, of Minneapolis, Minn., all of whom were awarded $300 scholarships for club achievement records.

News of The Tribune Experimental Farm — By Frank Ridgway

Making Feed Go Far

Dec. 3, 1934.

NEW methods of preparing and feeding concentrates and roughage to live stock are being introduced on THE TRIBUNE Experimental farm this winter. With more than 500 head of cattle, hogs, sheep, and horses to feed from a supply of slightly more than 700 tons of roughage and less than 600 bushels of grain, it is necessary to devise ways and means of utilizing every part of the plant including coarse stalks and stems.

Beginning the first of this month, Clarence Thurow, manager of the farm, adopted the practice of grinding into meal all of the corn fodder, alfalfa hay and soy bean hay before it is fed to the live stock. It is estimated, according to Mr. Thurow, that by grinding corn fodder, including the stalks, leaves and ears, into a coarse meal the feeding value of this material is increased 30 per cent. The feeding value of alfalfa hay and soy bean hay is increased 20 per cent, it is claimed by experienced feeders.

A new combination grinder and cutter has just been installed in one of the farm's granaries near the new 80 foot silo. The corn fodder and hay are run through the grinder at a rapid rate. The resultant coarse meal is blown into a distributor near the top of the granary. The collector is equipped with pipes through which the meal may be distributed to any one of four bins. In this way the meal made from the different crops is kept separate to be mixed with other feeds, if necessary, at the time it is fed.

"By running our 126 tons of fodder through the grinder it is equal to increasing our present supply about forty-two tons," said Mr. Thurow, who is acting upon the advice of experienced feeders in testing the value of meal made from roughage commonly grown in the corn belt.

"We will run through the grinder our entire supply of about 150 tons of alfalfa hay and soy bean hay, which will give us the equivalent of an additional 30 tons of hay."

This week Mr. Thurow will begin feeding corn fodder meal instead of silage which has been fed this fall along with soy bean hay, alfalfa hay and corn sirup to the two year old steers. To these steers he will feed also meal made from the hay. Alfalfa and soy bean hay will be fed to the yearling steers along with silage. Within a short time the 30 calves, which have been running on grass since they were brought to the farm a few weeks ago, will be fed silage and meal made from alfalfa and soy bean hay.

Today Mr. Thurow said that with the feed grinder he would be better able to follow the plan of hauling the fodder in out of the field, using it first, and saving hay and silage now under cover. Enough silage will be taken off the top each day to prevent spoilage. It will be fed to the yearlings, he added.

5,757 STUDENTS TO GET FEDERAL AID THIS MONTH

A total of $86,355 in federal funds has been made available to 33 colleges and universities in this state by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission for December, it was announced yesterday by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the commission. The money will go to aid students whom the college presidents certify could not continue their education without financial assistance. Average pay of $15 a month will be given to 5,757 young men and women.

YOUTH ADMITS HE SHOT 2 DEAD IN FILLING STATION

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Faced with the telltale chart of a "lie detector," Theodore Blackman, 19 year old Negro, confessed this afternoon that he killed Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boyd early today in a suburban gasoline filling station where Boyd was employed.

The Negro said he shot them with Boyd's own pistol during a quarrel over money he considered due him for work on the home the Boyds were building, according to Detective Chief Emmett D. Kirgan.

Blackman, a former employé at the station, said he shot Mrs. Boyd accidentally while he was struggling with Boyd for the gun. The Negro was quoted as saying he then killed Boyd to "cover up."

He was traced by checking lists of former employés of the filling station. He was found at his home with his clothing blood stained and with $11.35 which he admitted picking up from the floor of the station. He at first insisted the shots were fired by a fourth person, though he admitted being present when the couple was shot down.

Boyd, who was 37, and his wife, Edythe, 35 years old, formerly resided at Parkersburg, W. Va. They had been living in an automobile trailer while making ready a permanent home.

DIES IN POLICE STATION.

Peter Flannigan, 54 years old, who was given shelter Sunday night in the Grand Crossing police station, was found dead yesterday morning in his cell.

Have you found the SUNNY PACKAGE on your grocer's shelf?

It's a delicious ready-to-eat cereal. Millions of Americans have found Kellogg's ALL-BRAN a safe, effective means of correcting common constipation—the kind caused by lack of "bulk" in the menu.

Laboratory measurements show that ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in this tempting cereal is more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables—because it resists digestion better. Within the body, it absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this cleans out the intestinal waste.

Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases with each meal. If this fails to give relief, see your doctor.

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or cook into appetizing recipes. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ILLINOIS IN FEDERAL RELIEF.

Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly are facing a peculiarly embarrassing subject. The federal relief administration demands that they find ways of raising 3 million dollars a month for the aid of the state needy as a condition for the continuance of federal donations.

Comparison of internal revenue payments and federal relief disbursements, state by state, shows that states which may be called class B pay little and receive much while class A states give much and receive comparatively little. In these tabulations, for instance, it is shown that federal government share of relief in South Carolina was 99.4 per cent; Arkansas, 98.6; Georgia, 94.7; Alabama, 96.3; Louisiana, 98.5; Florida, 96.2; Mississippi, 99.4; North Carolina, 92.6, and Tennessee, 96.2.

Putting it another way and picking out a few of the heavily subsidized states, Alabama paid less than 4 million dollars in internal revenue and received 27 millions in relief. South Carolina paid a little over 3 millions and received nearly 20 millions. In Florida the proportion was about $1 paid and $3 received; Louisiana, $1 to $2; Arkansas, $1 to $10, etc. In Illinois the taxes paid were 162 millions; the return in federal relief was 85 millions. Illinois paid about 33 per cent of its own relief needs and approximately such percentages run for the other federal revenue producing states.

The party which in its national administration has discriminated in favor of the southern and some of the smaller western states is the party of Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly. Apparently they are not very cordially received in Washington and have no hope that they will be able to get anything like parity of treatment for Illinois. They are considering an increase in the sales tax as a means of complying with the federal demand that they raise more and get less from the treasury.

No account, apparently, is taken of the fact, first, that one reason Illinois has difficulties in dealing with its own problem is because it is so heavily taxed for the support of other states, and, second, that its money is taken out and no proportionate return made. Neither the governor nor the mayor likes to consider what may happen from an increase of a nuisance tax, but neither sees the way clear to get the money otherwise. The Democratic federal government puts the Democratic governor of Illinois and the Democratic mayor of Chicago in a tough spot and does so without any consideration for the two Illinois officials or any sense of equity in dealing with the people of Illinois.

THE TREATY MAKING POWER.

A report issued by the Harris Foundation of the University of Chicago suggests that the treaty making power as constituted in the constitution be amended. Instead of the consent of two-thirds of the senate, a majority of both houses would then be sufficient to ratify. The report says that the present provisions have "not worked well."

Wouldn't it depend on what results were thought good, whether the judgment would be that the treaty making provisions have worked well or badly? If it be conceded that every treaty negotiated by an administration is good, then the failure to ratify would be unfortunate. Americans who are persuaded, as various election returns showed a majority to be, that the league of nations should not contain the United States in its membership are grateful that a minority in the senate was able to resist the tremendous pressure of the Wilson will and prestige when it seemed almost impossible that the country could be kept out of this European political arrangement.

One quite certain that the United States should have joined the league would want to make the process easier. Thus far the way to the world court has been blocked to the satisfaction of Americans who fear the consequences of making such a commitment. It is conceded now that if the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with Great Britain regarding the Panama canal had been ratified it would have been a most serious mistake. Still further back in history a senate accepting snap judgment on a question actually declared in a treaty with China that it was an inalienable right of a person of one country to emigrate to another; in other words, that the Chinese had the right, which the United States recognized, to enter this country as they pleased. That treaty was as short lived as it was foolish.

It proves to be a very good thing that the enthusiasm of negotiators working under the high pressure of their own zeal or egotism cannot easily be embedded in a treaty at a moment when only a few senators are giving any consideration to all the possible consequences of what is being proposed.

If agreements are not to be scraps of paper they should contain only such commitments as a long view will justify. The experience of Japan in signing several solemn treaties which it has found expedient or necessary to dishonor should be a modern instance admonishing against the impulsive signing on the dotted line. It happens that there have been but few defeated treaties when the failures could be regretted by any American considerate chiefly of the welfare of his own country.

THE INVENTION OF THE CENTURY.

Postmaster General Farley has made a tremendous discovery. In the history of the human race it will rank with the invention of the mariner's compass and printing. It puts an end forever to financial worry. With characteristic modesty he has not sought to attach his name to his invention, but it would be an ungrateful nation, indeed, which did not do him the honor of calling his contribution to human happiness the Farley surplus.

Like all great ideas, it is essentially simple. Mr. Farley reported that his postoffice department had made a profit of 12 million dollars. The treasury department's accountants report that Mr. Farley's department has operated at a loss of 52 million dollars. The difference arose from the fact that the treasury had included all of the department's expenses and Mr. Farley had left out 64 million dollars of them.

The idea is a beautiful one and no doubt will be universally employed as soon as the appropriate changes have been made in the criminal law. Under the Farley system you can't lose and if you can't lose you have nothing to worry about. Everybody can have a Farley surplus. Michigan is tied for the conference championship. John L. Sullivan is the undefeated champion, and so is every other fighter who ever stepped into the ring. The knockout punches don't count.

Bankruptcy is out. Debts are assets. The more you spend the greater your Farley surplus. The cigar box is always full no matter how many have been smoked. Family quarrels over the tooth paste situation are forever ended because the tube will always be full.

The treasury department may be counted upon to acknowledge its error within a few days. Obviously the Farley surplus is superior to the Morgenthau system of putting all the deficits in a separate account and pretending that the deficit account doesn't exist. The Farley system is simpler and it produces much more satisfactory results. Its adoption in all government accounting may be confidently predicted; and once that has been accomplished, the last government deficit will have disappeared. It will be easy then to determine who is the greatest secretary of the treasury since Hamilton. The crown will go to that secretary who has omitted from his books the largest sum of expenses.

Economists have been spending a lot of time debating whether the United States has really entered upon a surplus economy. The debate is now concluded. Thanks to Mr. Farley, we have.

POLITICS AND PEOPLE.

Two Texas teams carried off first and third places in the collegiate live stock judging contest at the International Live Stock show. They represented the Texas Technological college and the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical college. A 17 year old Indiana farm boy is announced as national champion in the 4-H corn raising contest in the club congress which is held in connection with the stock show. The clothespin may be small and the comment which it holds disproportionately large, but how well the American people seem to do everything but their politics.

Texas, of course, raises the picture of Pa and Ma Ferguson. The two college teams reflect a great deal more credit upon what are probably the predominating qualities of the Texans than do the two eccentric political characters whose husband and wife act wins the approval of the Texas voters. No one would say that Indiana politics presents an ideal picture of Indiana life, and yet in everything else the people of Indiana will measure up to the standards that Americans would like to think are accepted and prevail.

Mr. Bilbo is not a real yardstick for Mississippi life and yet the electorate will turn fuzzy wuzzy, just as in Louisiana it does so to make Huey Long the chief character in a political bedlam. If Americans were inviting the celebrated guest from Mars to see what they could most reasonably pride themselves upon they would take him to such exhibitions of their ability as the late World's Fair, or to the live stock show, or to a great automobile factory, and would certainly hide from his view and perceptions any sitting of congress and most of the aspects of the burocracy.

Peculiar failures in politics and government seem to be the price which democracy pays for the vastly more valuable compensations it finds in democratic life. The highest product of democracy is not a government but a social order. The highest product is not a politician, although he is in the main the natural output of his day and conditions, but the independent man who does not regard himself as inferior to any other unless superiority is in the proved ability of the other man to do something better than he himself can do it.

When Thomas Jefferson said that the least government was the best government he had penetrated deeply into the future development of people organized as he saw them about him.

Editorial of the Day

A HEMISPHERE APART.

[Danville Commercial-News.]

The great gulf that separates the occidental and oriental viewpoints could hardly be illustrated more sharply than by the recent attempt of that Tokio trafic policeman to commit suicide.

This officer was detailed to route the Emperor Hirohito's entourage through a certain stretch of country. Somehow he made a mistake. Trafic got tangled, and the emperor's car was delayed 30 minutes. So the policeman felt that he could redeem his honor only by killing himself.

Suppose President Roosevelt travels by auto from Washington to Philadelphia and runs into a trafic jam en route; will the trafic cop who should have prevented the jam put a bullet through his heart out of sheer chagrin?

The mere fact that the question is utterly ridiculous shows how greatly the Japanese attitude toward duty, the government, and life in general differs from our own.

HOME, SWEET HOME.

"Hello, Smith, how are you?" exclaimed Jones. "Don't see you working in the garden these days, and you never come to see us any more."

"Well, old top," replied Smith, "it's not through bad feeling or anything like that. The fact is that you and Mrs. Jones have borrowed so many things from my wife and me lately that when I see the inside of your place it makes me homesick."—Toronto Globe.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

A SIX YEAR OLD GENIUS has been found in New York who cut his first tooth at eight months, began walking at fourteen months, talked fluently at eighteen months, knew his alphabet and could say it backwards at twenty months, and in a conversation today uses such words as "encyclopedia," "luminosity" and "evolution." Gosh! a child like that must be an awful strain on his father when he tries to tell everybody he meets the cute things that Junior said yesterday.

ANOTHER GERTRUDE STORY.

Sir: This is the kind of story that, when swearing as to its authenticity, you raise your left hand.

Anyway, it seems that Gertrude Stein, the noted authoress, was delivering a lecture here in Chicago recently. The audience, most of whom pretended to know what it was all about, was as attentive as any audience might be.

It took one gumptious stew, however, to wrestle his way through the row of seats, stagger up the aisle, and leave the scene of events. The manager, surprised at the fellow's nerve, approached him as he was about to leave the lobby.

"What's the matter, my good man? Was it too deep for you?"

"Deep my eye (hic). Why, that woman ish 'toxicated."

The manager waxed indignant.

"On the contrary, sir, I should say you were the one that is intoxicated.

The soused gentleman then blinked, straightened himself out, drew himself close to the other, and remarked:

"Lishen, pal, when I'm 'toxicated I shee double (hic), but I don't talk double. BILDAB.

SONNET LXXXVI.

(For David.)

When I have thought on that sweet vanished time
That was our youth a dozen springs ago,
And how the seasons went whither none know,
I come on wonder at this uneven clime
That feeds great trees and lets the small flowers die.
Let an enchantment of the senses bloom
And give its fragrance to the heart's wide room—
Yet it must fade, must dwindle, be laid by.
Layered in words, distilled of memory's oil
For tincture when the wintry blizzards sing,
Yet it is memory and no living thing,
A work of art, a recipe for toil.

But for that one flower tinctured in a tear
I might as well be here as there—or here.

CAREFUL EXAMINATION of the motion pictures made of the marriage of Prince George and the Princess Marina brings out a startling fact: Prince George was actually present. Justice at last has dawned for the bridegroom! He may be overlooked by everybody else, but all he's got to do is wait until the motion pictures are made and flashed on the screen. And then he can point his finger at the picture and say, "I told you so! Do you see that sort of blot in the picture? Well, that hain't no blot; that's me!"

LINEBOOK INTRODUCTION CONTEST—
Did the Judges Say This One?

An introduction to end all introductions this ought to be. The Linebook of 1934 is the eleventh of the literary progeny of the prolific Richard Henry Little, the deceptively benign looking individual whose countenance is a decorative note of most of the Linebook covers. R. H. L., who wears this mask of innocence above reproach, coupled with an air of "Who, me?" totes the smartest dagger this side the gray Atlantic. Apart from his kindlier side—the tales of which are too numerous to mention—he is not only an exponent of the dirty dig but both its originator and chief instigator.

Before adopting the rôle of columnist he was a reporter. Long before many of you had discarded three-cornered lingerie, R. H. L. was nobly acquitting himself on the newspaper front both here and abroad, and making his expense account something for conjecture and cuss words.

You may or may not read his Line o' Type or Two each morning over the kippers and coffee, but it's a bet that in common with Byrd in Little America, Beebe in the briny deep, and Picard in the stratosphere you do indulge in this weakness.

Fostered by the puckish Richard, this slender volume will remain engraved in your memory like a precious intaglio. Tender verses—fragments of tempo caught by facile pens, sparkling like facetted gems on a string of light; scraps of mirth and wisdom—a patch quilt of measured rhymes and immeasurable lines from the pen of R. H. L., a pen that is barbed for those who deserve it, a pen that laughs with us and at us—that's the Linebook of R. H. L. ROSALYN V. KURTZ.

WHEN CHILDREN WON'T EAT.

WE often hear the expression, "My child will not eat unless I make him." And when the child is compelled to eat, family meals become ordeals; they are anything but pleasant social gatherings. It may well be that the scolding, urging, and threatening of the child at mealtime will lay a foundation for nervous instability.

Parents are often dominated by the thought that physical stature and weight are guarantees of good health and resistance to disease. Stature is generally dependent upon inheritance and the child will resemble physically the father, the mother, or one of the grandparents. Nevertheless in order to make the child big, to make him grow, food is crowded into the youngster at the behest of the figurative hickory switch.

Now and then a child will not eat because he is ill. If he has been eating normally and loses his appetite suddenly it will be far wiser to put him to bed than to force or bribe him to eat.

Again, the child may not be hungry, even though the stomach is empty. The use of food by the body may have been slowed down for some reason and the food reserves do not need replenishing, hence the child is not hungry.

Sometimes the child wants attention. He knows that he can concentrate on himself the undivided solicitude of the household by not touching his food. He has learned that a waning appetite will bring to his plate dainties that he could not otherwise procure, and then, too, there may be rewards if he will only finish a saucer of this or a glass of that.

There are a hundred and one things that interfere with the maintenance of a normal appetite. A child is far more likely to become capricious or fussy about food if the subject receives too much attention. The New England mother who squelched the first complaint about food with the rejoinder, "Eat what is set before you and ask no questions, for conscience's sake," had no trouble with dainty appetites.

If the child is well, appetite and hunger usually may be relied upon as safe guides. While overexercise can kill appetite, underexercise is more deadly. Normal play out of doors ordinarily will bring children romping into the house at mealtime hungry as bears. Orderly procedure at the table will maintain hunger until the end of the meal. On the contrary, gulping a glass of milk without taking a breath may bring on a sensation of fullness that kills appetite.

It does not follow that the child who is always hungry is well nourished. There may be some difficulty with digestion and the child who does not gain normally while using fairly large quantities of food should be given a careful examination.

Some thought should be given to making mealtime attractive. It ought not to be a period of serious conversation over finances between the father and the mother, or of enumerating the worries or troubles of the day. Rather it should be a happy family gathering, to which the child is naturally attracted. Hurry kills appetite and nutrition as well. To this single factor much of the difficulty may be attributed. Children should be allowed to remain at the table for a reasonable period, no matter who wants to clear off the dishes, no matter how insistent is the call to attend an early movie.

In spite of all that can be done there are many habitually poor eaters. With such cases adequate food will be taken if four or five meals are planned instead of three. Sometimes the child's stomach empties slowly. If, on the other hand, the stomach empties rapidly, food is called for before mealtime arrives. A glass of milk in the middle of the forenoon and another in the middle of the afternoon has solved many problems of undernourishment.

TRENCH MOUTH.

Mrs. A. E. W. writes: My husband and I both had a mild case of trench mouth which responded to peroxide and perborate of soda. The infection seems to be quite prevalent right now. I wish you would warn the public of the danger of bleeding gums, the fact that trench mouth is contagious, and the dire results if neglected. It can get such a start before one realizes it is something out of the ordinary. People should visit their dentists when there is any trouble with the gums.

ASTHMA.

Mrs. P. B. writes: My 7 year old girl, weighing 53 pounds, had whooping cough. Since then she has complained of lack of air. The doctor says she has asthma.

REPLY.

The symptom you describe may be due to emphysema or permanent dilatation of some of the air sacs of the lung. If it is true asthma there is probably sensitivity to some protein, either the food, the clothing, or in some substance about the house. If it is asthma a physician can test for sensitivity, determine the cause and remove it. If it is emphysema an abdominal binder will help.

The DEBUNKER
By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.

Dr. Cesare Lombroso, an Italian anthropologist, once produced a theory that there was a "criminal type," with certain features, such as the "gorilla face," "criminal ear," etc. So many exceptions have been found to such a theory that it has been abandoned by modern criminologists. It is a common fact that persons of high character and standing, such as ministers and teachers, have been mistaken for crooks and criminals, while many outlaws pass us on the street and appear as "honest faced" citizens.

WARNING TO WIDOWS AND SPINSTERS.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 29.—Maiden ladies and childless widows who may be planning to buy homes in sunny Florida would do well to look before they leap into that state.

The homestead exemption amendment recently adopted in Florida reads in part as follows: "There shall be exempted from all taxation . . . to every head of a family who is a citizen of and resides in the state of Florida, the homestead as defined in article 10 of the constitution of the state of Florida up to the valuation of $5,000."

Now, after the adoption of this amendment, it is learned that widows and maiden ladies who live in their own homes are not the heads of families and are, therefore, not exempt; so hereafter their property will bear heavier burdens of taxation to cover the lack of revenue from the untaxed $5,000 on the homestead of each he-man who heads a family.

If any maiden lady or widow, in order to escape this excessive taxation on her home, should intend to take unto herself a husband, let her still beware. For in Florida a husband has the right to control his wife's income unless she goes into court and gets herself made a free agent. Then she can control her own money.

So, under the very aegis of southern chivalry, the maiden lady and the widow in Florida are between the devil and the deep blue sea.

REPLACING MACHINES WITH MEN.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—A news item caught my eye a few days ago stating that a certain cracker manufacturer discontinued the use of certain machines and thereby gave employment to about 20 people.

This idea, it seems to me, is humanitarian. It also seems to me to be the short cut to normal times, if not to prosperity. Any company that goes so far as to set aside labor saving machinery representing a large investment and goes to manual labor at a greater cost of production certainly is doing a great charitable act which should be acknowledged in more than one way.

E. H. EISLER.

THE SLACKERS.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—"Anti-makebelieve" uttered a mouthful. Can't we get all the girls in line? What about the thousands who:

1. Skin by each week on what the old man allows them for house expense.
2. Make the kids their breakfast and send them off to school.
3. Make the beds.
4. Wash the dishes.
5. Have the Sunday dinner ready when pa comes home from the golf links.
6. Do the washing.
7. Do the ironing.
8. Clean the house.
9. Mend the socks.
10. Pick up this and that around the house.
11. Wait for a special sale to buy a hat, shoes, etc.
12. Greet the old man with a kiss when he comes home from work.

Strange as it may seem, there are still thousands who do just that. But they are slackers. They are not up on the times. Come on, girls! Throw away your washing machine and buy a can opener! MAKEBELIEVE.

BANK EXAMINERS.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 27.—Referring to an article by Howard Wood in THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 24, "Bank Changes Viewed as Short Cut to Full Federal Control," permit me to suggest that in Indiana, at least, the state bank examiners were usually appointed on recommendation of the bankers, not precinct committeemen. The records of the insolvent banks of this state show clearly how badly these banker appointed examiners did the work.

The procedure in many other states was much the same. The former employés of state banks were appointed examiners and were dominated by the bankers themselves. Under direction of their former bosses the examiners examined as the bankers ordered. The banks failed by hundreds.

Is there any difference between a banker politician and a precinct committeeman? Possibly the committeeman may name an honest but inexpert examiner, but the bankers named experienced but servile examiners. D. J. MORAN.

THE REDISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Roosevelt intimates that he favors a redistribution of wealth and his gullible listeners applaud. Then he turns right around and by raising prices through the NRA makes the rich richer, the poor poorer, and eliminates or wipes out entirely the middleman. In substance his NRA strengthens corporations, encourages trusts, and glorifies combines. Standard Statistics show that for the first six months of this year 402 corporations of a monopolistic nature had net gains of 608 per cent over a like period for 1933.

Redistribution of wealth cannot be brought about by permitting corporations and industries to make from 200 to 500 per cent profit on their products, as is happening at the present time. Those profits come out of the workingmen's pockets. Redistribution can be accomplished only by limiting the profit that any manufacturer or merchandiser can make on any article. Make the maximum profit 25 per cent. But don't guarantee the profit, as the NRA does. Make the merchandiser or manufacturer earn it with his own ability.

This procedure would prevent the accumulation of great fortunes, quickly force down commodity prices, and increase the purchasing power of the workingman's dollar at least 100 per cent. This would permit the man making $4 a day [now excluded from home ownership by reason of high material prices and $12 a day labor] to buy and pay for a home built with labor at $6 per day and cement at $1.50 per barrel.

JOHN J. MANGAN.

VOLUNTEER ARMIES.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—In view of the recent munitions investigations and the proposal for an international agreement on the manufacture of arms and munitions by governments rather than private industries, why not secure an agreement by all nations that all future wars be fought by volunteers? Thus eliminate conscription!

No man, certainly no American, should ever again be drafted for slaughter!

Let's hear from the people!

Spanish-American Volunteer.

JOY OF BECOMING A GOOD FELLOW IS PRIVILEGE TO ALL

Baskets May Be Provided at Very Small Cost.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

Since the opening of the 1934 Good Fellow Christmas campaign, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, one of the most frequent questions asked of members of the Good Fellow department staf in THE TRIBUNE'S Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn is, "How much will it cost to be a Good Fellow?"

And these questioners invariably are surprised to learn how little it costs to become a Good Fellow. Coöperating with the Good Fellows are department and grocery stores which have announced the sale of Christmas baskets expressly designed to provide food for a family of four at a cost of as little as $2.75.

In addition to the food, the Good Fellows usually add candy and toys for the delight of the children. Past campaigns have emphasized that a true Good Fellow not only buys the basket he is to give but delivers it personally to the needy family on Christmas eve or Christmas morning.

Any One Can Be Good Fellow.

One does not have to be wealthy to be a Good Fellow. In fact, the majority of the Good Fellows who in the years since 1909 have carried happiness into the homes of the city's less fortunte at Christmas time have been of moderate circumstances.

Names of deserving families to whom baskets can be delivered may be obtained by calling the GOOD FELLOW DEPARTMENT any week day between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. The telephone number is Superior 0100. All the families have been investigated by the Christmas Clearing House of the Council of Social Agencies and their needs definitly determined.

If a Good Fellow so desires, he can designate the location and size of the family for whom he would like to play Santa Claus. A Good Fellow coupon is published in an adjoining column.

And already the Good Fellow parade is under way. Even before the GOOD FELLOW DEPARTMENT was opened yesterday morning, a north side resident telephoned THE TRIBUNE, after having read Sunday morning's announcement, and asked for the names of five families to which he will take baskets at Christmas time.

Many Benefits Planned.

Several benefit entertainments for the Good Fellow fund will be given. On Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock the Pabst Blue Ribbon bowling team will hold an exhibition match with the Baby Ruth team at the White City alleys, 63d and South Park way. Both of these teams are members of the Classic Bowling League of Chicago. Tickets at 25 and 50 cents each are now on sale at White City. James A. Tinney of the Pabst team staf is in charge of arrangements.

All proceeds of benefit performances will be used by THE TRIBUNE for the purchase of baskets. They will be delivered the day before Christmas by TRIBUNE circulation trucks. Any cash contributions, in lieu of personal basket contributions, should be sent to the GOOD FELLOW DEPARTMENT, 1 South Dearborn.

PRESIDENT'S SON, CARRYING BABY, STARTS BATTLE

Elliott Roosevelt, second son of the President, his wife and their baby daughter, Ruth, left Chicago yesterday after a two day sojourn. They boarded an Alton train in the Union station for Fort Worth, Tex., to spend a few days with Mrs. Roosevelt's parents.

Although Mr. Roosevelt's arrival Saturday was unheralded and unreported, his departure was tempestuous. The climax came when the brawny young man became irritated as a photographer made a "speed flash" of him carrying the baby. Switching the baby to one arm, young Roosevelt grasped the photographer's overcoat sleeve, seeking to seize the plate, and ripped the sleeve from the coat.

"I'll smack you," Roosevelt exclaimed, with much fervor, but the photographer ducked sidewise and escaped. Later, explaining that they had no objection to posing but that they did not wish their child included, Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt allowed themselves to be photographed.

Mr. Roosevelt, who is associated with the aeronautical chamber of commerce in Washington, came here "on business," he said, but he declined to explain further. Since he and his wife visited C. R. Smith, president of American Airways, at the Sherry hotel, 1725 East 53d street, it was thought possible that Mr. Roosevelt might intend to join the airline staf.

After the Roosevelt's train pulled out, Smith denied this conjecture.

"They stayed at my hotel," he explained, "because my home is in Fort Worth and I have known Mrs. Roosevelt for ten years. We think highly of her husband's qualifications, but he isn't going to work for us. I think he likes his present job."

Stampede of 4 Elephants Causes Flurry in Peru, Ind.

Peru, Ind., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A stampede by four elephants of the Hagenbeck-Wallace circus, in winter quarters here, terrorized motorists and downtown shoppers here today. Their keepers finally got the elephants under control. The elephants broke loose as they were being led to the railroad station on their way to California to take part in a motion picture.

ULM SHIP TAKES OFF FOR SYDNEY FROM CALIFORNIA

First Stop Honolulu on Long Water Flight.

BULLETIN.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 4 (Tuesday).—(AP)—The Mackay radio station here reported that it established contact briefly at 12:30 a. m. (Chicago time) with the Honolulu bound plane of Flight Lieutenant Charles T. P. Ulm and received a message: "Everything O. K."

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Flight Lieutenant Charles T. P. Ulm and his two flying companions took off at 5:41 p. m. [Chicago time] today on their trans-Pacific flight to Honolulu and Australia.

The low wing underslung silver and orange plane lifted slowly, but quickly gained altitude toward the Golden Gate.

A scattered crowd of perhaps 300, most of them with cameras, were on hand for the takeoff. Ulm expected to arrive in Honolulu tomorrow morning.

Charts Commercial Course.

Ulm and his crew, Co-Pilot George Littlejohn and Navigator J. L. Skilling, are charting the course of a new commercial air venture by which Ulm expects to inaugurate regular operations from Australia to Hawaii in two years.

Once their silver and orange monoplane left behind the Farallone islands, guardians of the Golden Gate, not a speck of land will they see until Koko Head juts up on the horizon, 2,408 miles distant.

It will be an overwater hop with which Ulm is entirely familiar, however, and one flown several times by others since Lieuts. Lester J. Maitland and Albert Hefienberger blazed the way in June, 1927.

The heavily laden plane trundled nearly the entire length of the airport runway—about 5,000 feet—before it took to the air.

Sets Ship Back Down.

After running perhaps two-thirds of the field, the plane lifted to 15 or 20 feet, but the load appeared a little difficult and Littlejohn set the ship adroitly back onto the field and turned up the dust for nearly 300 yards before he left the ground definitly.

Six years ago the Australian was co-pilot for Sir Charles Kingsford Smith on the first trans-Pacific flight in history, a 7,400 mile pioneering dash from Oakland to Brisbane, Australia, by way of Hawaii and the Fiji islands.

On the present flight the hop of 3,197 miles from Honolulu to Suva, Fiji, will be broken by a stop at Fanning island, 1,000 miles out from Honolulu and a bit to the east of the direct line course.

FLAMES CAUSE $40,000 LOSS ON STEIN ESTATE

A crowd of hundreds gathered last evening to watch a spectacular fire which destroyed the riding academy on the estate of Benjamin F. Stein, on the Telegraph road three miles southwest of Waukegan, with a loss estimated at $40,000. Mr. Stein is a member of Stein, Alstrin & Co., brokerage house.

The Gurnee fire department was summoned and battled to prevent the fire from spreading to other buildings on the estate, including the Stein home. Fifteen horses which were in the academy when the blaze started were led to safety by employés of Mr. Stein and by Deputy Sherif John Froelich of Lake county, who was passing the estate when fire broke out.

The riding academy, a two story structure, had servants' quarters on the second floor.

Here's how other large cities compare with Philadelphia in number of Individual Homes

Search all of America and you will find in no other city as many individual homes as there are in Philadelphia.

U. S. Census figures prove Philadelphia's claim to her title—The City of Homes. Philadelphia has more single-family dwellings than New York City and Buffalo combined; more than Detroit and Cleveland added together; more than the combined total of Chicago and St. Louis; more than all of Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Milwaukee combined.

Search all of America and you will not find a home newspaper comparable to The Philadelphia Bulletin. Day after day it is read in nearly every home in Philadelphia and suburbs.

Its circulation of 510,003 (average for first nine months of 1934) is Philadelphia's daily expression of reading interest in The Bulletin. Premiums, prizes or reader contests have never been used to make sales. Its circulation is two and one-half times that of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper and more than all daily morning newspapers combined.

Homes make sales! Especially today, when home repairs and home improvements are being urged as a step toward recovery.

Tell the story of your home product to this people who are so interested in home life that they have built America's greatest City of Homes.

U. S. Census Figures on Single-family Homes

Tell them in the newspaper nearly everybody reads — at one of the lowest advertising costs among all newspapers anywhere.

You'll be in good company: During 1932, 1933 and the first 10 months of 1934, The Bulletin carried more national advertising than any other week-day newspaper in America.

Here's how The Bulletin covers Philadelphia, America's greatest Market of Homes

According to a survey by the American Association of Advertising Agencies, there are 679,530 families in Philadelphia and its Retail Trading Area who read Philadelphia daily newspapers. 77.94% of these families read The Evening Bulletin. 95% of The Bulletin's total circulation is concentrated in this area.

DRIVERS' LICENSE STATUTE IS URGED BY SAFETY GROUP

Mayor's Committee Also Backs Insurance Plan.

The Illinois legislature will be urged to pass a law requiring the licensing of all automobile drivers in the state when it convenes in January, according to a recommendation made yesterday by Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee in a meeting held in the Bal Tabarin room of the Hotel Sherman. The committee also recommended that a drivers' responsibility law also be enacted.

Mayor Kelly, who spoke in favor of the drivers' licensing plan, declared that a survey of twenty-nine states which have such a law on their statute books revealed that in the first year of enforcement accidents were reduced from 25 per cent to 30 per cent.

Curbs Thefts, Says Mayor.

"The law also would assist the police in reducing the number of auto thefts," he declared.

Under the plans to be submitted to the legislature the automobile driver would be required to pay but fifty cents for his license which would be effective for three years. It would be subject to revocation for major infractions of the motor vehicle laws. The drivers' financial responsibility law would have the effect of requiring motorists to carry liability insurance unless they are able to establish personal financial responsibility.

Members of the committee, of which almost the entire membership was in attendance, heard George W. Fleming, general secretary, read a résumé of the work done by the organization since its formation last July 16.

Much Safety Work Remains.

Mr. Fleming pointed out that there still remains much work to be done by the committee as the report revealed that during the months of October and November 102 persons were killed in trafic accidents in each of the two months. He said that Western avenue continued to lead important city thoroughfares with the highest rate of fatal automobile accidents.

"More persons have been killed on this street during the last year than on any street in the world," Mr. Fleming asserted.

He recommended that a trafic division to patrol the entire city be formed by the police department and that a trafic expert be placed in Chicago. The committee took his recommendation under consideration.

JUDGE CONSIDERS ALLOWING $330,000 RECEIVERS' FEES

A motion for the allowance of $330,000 legal fees in the three year old bankruptcy litigation of the American Bond and Mortgage company was taken under advisement yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. The amount was recommended by former Referee in Bankruptcy Garfield Charles, who had reduced the original amount almost by hair.

Recommended by the referee were $45,000 jointly to the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, and to Defrees, Buckingham & Jones, attorneys for the equity receiver; $40,000 to the law firm of Cook, Nathan & Lehman of New York, counsel for the ancillary receiver; $30,000 to Frank McKey, trustee in bankruptcy; $35,000 to Attorney Louis Cohen, counsel for the trustee in bankruptcy; $30,000 to the referee in bankruptcy, and $28,000 to Attorney A. L. Shapiro, counsel for the company.

The concern has been in both receivership and bankruptcy proceedings since 1931. A reorganization has been effected and the company is being administered in liquidation by trustees. About $3,000,000 has been realized thus far for creditors. At the hearing yesterday Judge Wilkerson intimated that he might prefer to place receivers and their attorneys on a salary basis in the future if the law permitted.

Stratton May Get Job as Lake County Recorder

Reports were current in Lake county yesterday that William J. Stratton, former secretary of state for Illinois, is to become the county's recorder of deeds. The place was made vacant by the death of the incumbent, Louis O. Brockway, on Thanksgiving day. A successor to Mr. Brockway will be chosen by the county board of supervisors on Dec. 11 and several of them have announced their support of Mr. Stratton, who was defeated on Nov. 6 as the Republican nominee for state treasurer.

SUED BY HUSBAND

GLADYS GEORGE.

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Daily News says Gladys George, stage and screen star whose current show is "Personal Appearance," has been served with papers in a divorce suit by her estranged husband, Edward Fowler of Springfield, Mass.

"The complaint, which was served on Miss George just prior to her appearance on the stage for last Saturday night's performance, charges her with entertaining an actor in her Hotel Lincoln suite," the News says.

"Miss George indignantly assailed her husband and operatives of a detective agency for executing a raid on her suite, and branded the charges 'preposterous and utterly baseless.'

"She conferred with her attorney and announced she would contest the accusations vigorously."

FIRST 1935 AUTO LICENSES REACH CHICAGO FAMILY

The first 1935 automobile license plates issued by the secretary of state's office in Springfield were received yesterday by Willis Herman, 2636 Lakeview avenue and his daughter, Miss Jane Herman. Herman, who is in the men's clothing business at 28 East Jackson boulevard, said that he and his daughter usually receive their plates several days before the general distribution is started. He has had the same license number for the last ten years.

On Dec. 6 Secretary of State Hughes will start mailing plates to those who have applied for their new licenses. On that day also the sale of new plates across the counter is to begin at the Chicago office of the secretary of state at 120 South Ashland avenue.

The new plates have navy blue numerals on a battleship gray background.

EATS
A STACK OF PANCAKES FOR BREAKFAST NOW, AND FEELS NO DISTRESS
(THANKS TO A MAN NAMED PAPE, WHO DISCOVERED DIAPEPSIN, THAT IS MUNCHED LIKE CANDY TO RELIEVE SOURNESS AND GAS.)

Many men—and a great many women — are dieting needlessly. They mistake slow digestion, for indigestion. Or they don't know how easily sour stomach and gas pains can be relieved.

A man named Pape long ago discovered a simple way to relieve that acid condition causing certain foods to lie like lead in the stomach. Diapepsin, in tablets that are just eaten like candy, has brought happiness to thousands who thought they could eat only certain dishes.

If you have distress after meals, any acid discomfort at all, your stomach is probably slow in emptying. If you relieve this condition with Pape's Diapepsin, you can eat in greater comfort and enjoyment.

Test this out, and you will find that it works.

Then carry the pocket tin and take a tablet or two after meals until your digestion is "clicking" and the sourness is relieved. Pape's Diapepsin; remember the name. Your druggist will know about it.

FEDERAL JUDGE ILL; PIQUETT'S TRIAL DELAYED

The trial of Attorney Louis Piquett on a charge of harboring the late John Dillinger, his client, was delayed yesterday because of the illness of Federal Judge William H. Holly.

The case will be held on the call each day until the judge returns to the bench. Attachés of his court said that his indisposition was not serious and that he might resume his duties tomorrow or Thursday.

TWO ACTRESSES INDICTED OVER "PROMISE" SUIT

Vilma Aknay Is Charged with Perjury.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Indictments based on charges of perjury were returned here today against Vilma Aknay and Sari Fedak, European stage and film actresses, and bench warants were issued for their arrest.

The action followed an investigation by the Los Angeles county grand jury into the $250,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Aknay against Ernst Vajda, a playwright from Hungary. She dropped the action by sending Superior Judge Frank C. Collier notice she did not intend to prosecute the matter.

He Offers His Testimony.

After the action was dismissed, Vajda appeared voluntarily before the grand jury and offered testimony in connection with the case.

Miss Aknay, who was a former Hungarian stage star, had charged that twice since meeting Vajda in Budapest in 1924 she crossed the ocean to marry him but was disappointed, the playwright failing to keep the promises he had made. Miss Fedak was one of her witnesses.

During the course of the grand jury investigation of the suit and the preliminary hearings in court, process servers reported they could not locate the two actresses. Miss Aknay was threatened with contempt of court on one occasion for failing to give a deposition to Vajda's attorneys, but she contended she had not been legally served.

Ernest Lubitsch a Witness.

Among the witnesses called by the grand jury were Ernst Lubitsch, film director, and relatives of Vajda.

In summoning Lubitsch, Assistant Prosecutor Percy Hammon said the jury wanted to hear his version of a conversation at a Beverly Hills hotel last Feb. 15 in which Miss Fedak contended Vajda told her he had divorced his wife and intended to marry Miss Aknay.

They have two children. Mr. Watson is head of a stationery company bearing his name at 2732 Fullerton avenue.

BEG YOUR PARDON

Howard Carpenter, 4740 North Western avenue, yesterday said he was not taken to the Rogers Park police station or questioned by the police concerning the ownership of a pony found tethered in the rain as related in a story sent out by the City News Bureau and printed in Saturday's issue of THE TRIBUNE.

Mrs. Johanna Hoffman Boylan, of 1121 East 64th street, who was alluded to in a recent story in THE TRIBUNE as having been named as "the other woman" in some of the lengthy litigation between her husband, Col. LeRoy B. Boylan, and his first wife, Mrs. Anna Boylan, points out that she did not become acquainted with Boylan until after his separation from his first wife.

CANTACUZENE, JUST DIVORCED, WEDS A CLERK

Sarasota, Fla., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Prince Michael Cantacuzene Speransky, Russian nobleman who was divorced Oct. 27 by the former Julia Dent Grant, granddaughter of President U. S. Grant, was married here today to Miss Jeanette Draper, a former clerk in his bank.

The wedding took place at the home of a sister of the bride. The new princess, one of several sisters living here, was born in Hopkinsville, Ky. She gave her age in the license application as 36, while her husband's age appears as 56. Prince Cantacuzene is vice president of a bank and manages a large citrus grove in Florida. He was formerly a major general in the army of former Czar Nicholas, slain in the Russian revolution.

At the time of his divorce, Prince Cantacuzene had been married to the former President's granddaughter for 35 years. Mrs. Cantacuzene-Grant, as she now calls herself, is living in Washington. She was born there in the White House. She obtained the divorce on grounds that her husband had deserted her and failed to show interest in matrimonial duties. They have three children, Michael C. Cantacuzene III. of Chicago, Mrs. Ida Hanbury-Williams of London, England, and Bertha Cantacuzene of Louisville, Ky.

300,000 WOMEN BUY PURSE SIZE Velure IN 60 DAYS!

BAUER & BLACK
SURGICAL DRESSINGS AND ALLIED PRODUCTS
2500 SOUTH DEARBORN STREET
CHICAGO, ILL.

November 13, 1934.

Mr. Robert Barker,
Chicago Tribune,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Barker:

You will be interested, I am sure, in hearing of the results achieved to date by the advertising of our Velure Rapid Lotion in the Chicago Sunday Tribune Rotogravure Section.

As you know, Velure was first offered to the trade in a 50¢ size bottle with a unique merchandising plan which enables the dealer to introduce the product by selling an introductory purse size bottle at a price of 1¢. Velure was first offered to the trade September 10th of this year. Advertising in the Chicago Tribune began October 7th and has continued each Sunday since, with a full page in color on October 28th.

In the short space of two months since the introduction of this product, Velure has been placed on sale in about 75% of the drug and department stores in this area. During this time we have sold something over 300,000 purse size bottles. Lastly, and most important, a current survey indicates that Velure in the 50¢ size is today one of the four best sellers in this market.

This record is a matter of considerable satisfaction to us and should, we think, be equally pleasing to you, since your paper carried the Velure advertising exclusively in Chicago.

We were particularly impressed by the quick action secured through our Tribune Rotogravure advertising. On Monday, after the appearance of our full page color advertisement we had reports from department and drug stores throughout the area, indicating that they had received a deluge of calls for Velure traceable to this advertising. In many cases the customer brought with her an actual advertisement torn from the Tribune. This experience confirmed our belief that the Tribune coverage in Chicago and the surrounding area was adequate to put over the product.

Inasmuch as the season when hand lotions are most needed has hardly begun, we are looking forward to even more satisfactory results during the Winter and Spring season.

Cordially,

BAUER & BLACK

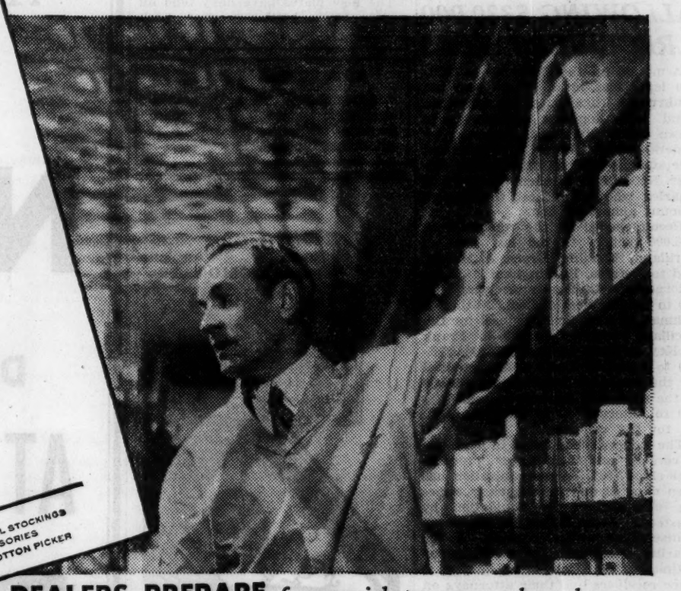
FEMININE EYES scan the Chicago Tribune as they do no other publication. On Sunday it is the shopping guide of over 610,000 families in Chicago and suburbs alone.



DEALERS PREPARE for a quick turnover when they see a new campaign in the Tribune. They rate it above all other publications for its ability to produce customers.

CHICAGO'S LOOP department stores place more advertising in the Chicago Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper because it is read by more women.

DRUG STORES place more advertising in the Chicago Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper because day after day experience has proved it pays out better.

NOTE: Circulations are averages for six months' periods ended September 30, and for city and suburban only

ON SEPTEMBER 10 of this year, Bauer & Black introduced to the trade a new hand lotion, Velure.

On October 7, the first Velure advertisement appeared in the Chicago Sunday Tribune rotogravure section, to be followed on each succeeding Sunday by other Tribune roto advertisements including a full color page on October 28.

No other Chicago newspaper has been used.

By November 13, in less than two months . . . over 300,000 women in the Chicago territory had purchased the introductory offer—a one-to-a-customer, one-cent purse size bottle of Velure!

. . . 75% of Chicago's drug and department stores had stocked the regular fifty cent size bottle!

. . . Velure had become one of the four best selling hand lotions in the market!

Backed by Tribune advertising, Velure has swept from scratch to front rank position with the selling season hardly begun. Retailers give it front counter position because they know from experience the power of the Tribune to produce customers.

By using the Sunday Tribune, Bauer & Black were able to tell the story of Velure to over 610,000 families in Chicago and suburbs. They got immediate, maximum coverage of women—far greater than any other Chicago newspaper could give.

In addition, they got the instant attention of the women of 288,000 key families in cities and towns adjacent to metropolitan Chicago.

. . . a plus coverage of women who regard the Sunday Tribune, because of its news, features and advertising, as the most important publication they can read from week to week.

. . . a coverage made doubly valuable by the prompt merchandising support given by dealers in these same communities.

Have you a good product, attractively packaged and priced, which you want to put across? Then talk to a Tribune salesman. Ask him for the details of the Velure success, and let him work with you to develop an advertising plan which can increase your sales in the Chicago market.

Contrast Styles of '25-'35 at Fashion Show

Fashions of 1925 and 1935 were contrasted in a mid-season fashion show given last night in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Sherman as the feature for the evening of the Christmas Merry-Go-Round that is being held this week for the benefit of the Chicago Lying-In hospital.

Young society women modeled the clothes.

Mrs. William G. Hale, Mrs. Charles King Corsant, and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, co-chairmen of the benefit, and Mrs. Robert Hall McCormick, who was in charge of the fashion show, were among those who entertained at dinner in the ballroom preceding the showing. Other hostesses were Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, Mrs. Francis P. Butler, Mrs. James Weber Linn, Mrs. Frederic Woodward, Mrs. Ernst Freund, Mrs. Albert Hopkins, Mrs. Harry Kempner, and Mrs. Emil Reinhold.

Mrs. Linn will be busy this afternoon and evening supervising a children's billiard tournament and a special sports night program at the Merry-Go-Round.

The billiard tournament will be held in the afternoon with classes provided for boys and girls twelve years of age and younger and for boys and girls from thirteen to sixteen years. Medals will be awarded boy and girl winners in each class.

Deborah Butler and Betty Brooks, two of the season's debutantes, will assist Mrs. Linn.

The Sports Night program will be held in the grand ballroom with stars of all fields of athletics as guests. Demonstrations of billiards, ping-pong, jiu-jitsu, golf and other sports will be given by experts, with society folk as the pupils.

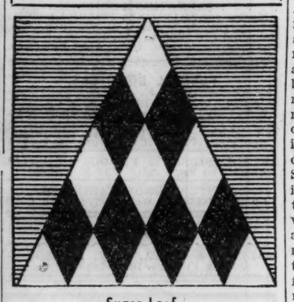
Quilt Block Is Lovely Example of Diamond Patch



Sugar Loaf.

BY NANCY CABOT.

When our grandmothers created designs containing triangular and diamond shaped patches they did not have the patterns ready made for them; they had to cut their own pieces. As a result they opened up a vista in which whole series of beautiful designs appeared—according to many, the most beautiful of all the quilt patterns. "Sugar Loaf," an example of a beautiful diamond patch block, is over 125 years old and was first made in New York.

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Illinois Deans of Women Will Meet in City Friday

The annual meeting of the Illinois Association of Deans of Women will be held Friday and Saturday at the Palmer house. Mrs. Florence Robnett, dean of women at Northwestern university, is president. The first event will be a dinner at 7 p. m. Friday, to be addressed by E. F. Fisher, Peoria superintendent of schools, on the topic, "One Foot on the Ground."

Arden Shore Will Sponsor Revue Opening

Strauss Premiere Will Be Gala Event.

BY JUDITH CASS.

As a rule it is the wife who buys tickets for benefits and the husband is told when and where they are going and whether he is to wear a black or a white tie. Sometimes the men enjoy the benefits, sometimes they don't; but it is perfectly safe to bet that every man remembers the name of the charity that stages one he does enjoy and the next time his wife suggests that there is to be another benefit for that particular charity he goes without a murmur and probably even pays for the tickets.

So tomorrow morning at breakfast when an invitation to another Arden Shore benefit is opened the masculine half of every married couple undoubtedly will say, "O. K., I'll go to that," for he will remember what a marvelous time he had at the last Arden Shore affair, the opening of the Folies Bergeres at the French Casino.

The benefit, for which invitations will be put in the mail tonight, is to be the opening of the new show at the French Casino on Thursday, Dec. 13, and the Chicago committee of Arden Shore, which is sponsoring it, expects to have little trouble in disposing of the 1,700 reservations and in making the affair one of the gala benefits of the winter in spite of the shortness of the time in which it has to work.

Johann Strauss to Lead Orchestra.

Johann Strauss, grandson of the famous composer, Richard Strauss, has come to direct the orchestra, and the cast of the new show is composed of 120 Europeans from Paris, Vienna, Budapest, and Russia. It is to be a beautiful and interesting production, so "they" say, with the finale a scene at the court of Emperor Franz Josef that is said to be most spectacular and lovely.

Mrs. Ewing Webb, new chairman of the Chicago committee, has a large corps assisting her in sending out the invitations.

Mrs. Harry A. Sellery of Highland Park was elected president of the Arden Shore association at the annual meeting held last month. The association maintains a summer camp for mothers and children at Lake Bluff and a winter camp for underprivileged boys. For years it was supported almost entirely by the north shore, committees in each town raising the necessary funds each year, but since it is entirely Chicago mothers and children who have vacations at Arden Shore, the Chicago committee is trying to do its share toward supporting the camp. The Chicago committee will meet at 11 o'clock on Thursday at the Casino. A member of the committee will be at the French Casino, telephone Longbeach 2210, every day from tomorrow morning until the night of the benefit to take reservations for the opening.

Horace Soule Jr. Coming for Christmas.

Just before Christmas Horace H. Soule Jr. will be coming on from Boston to spend the holiday with his fiancée, Miss Barbara Wendell, and to attend the parties that will be given for them preceding their marriage on Dec. 29. The service is to be read at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Chrysostom's church by the rector, the Rev. Dudley S. Stark, with a reception following at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell Jr. of 1260 Astor street.

Miss Dorothy Ranney will be the maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Elizabeth Soule, the bridegroom's sister, Miss Sargent Collier [Eleanor McCormick], and the bride's two younger cousins, Miss Griselda Higginson and Miss Alida Goodwin, all of Boston. All the ushers except the bride's brothers, Barrett Wendell III. and F. Lee H. Wendell, are from Boston, and so is the best man, Arthur Grannis Jr.

The Ambrose C. Cramers have gone to New York for an indefinite visit. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Reebie of Winnetka also are in New York, where they will remain for the next two weeks. The Horace E. Newcomets and their daughter, Miss Marion New-

The lad's uncle, Jack Ryan, took him on a tour of the building. They visited various officials and judges, including Judge Walter Stanton, in the Superior court. Judge Stanton was in chambers preparatory to going on the bench when they arrived. He chatted with young Dan for a few minutes, and the boy's behavior was exemplary. However, as soon as they got out in the corridor, he gave expression to what he really had been thinking.

At first they thought Sambo was extraordinarily stupid, but when they took him to the animal hospital in Evanston they learned that he was deaf and probably had been from birth. The dog is building up a répertoire of tricks, all in response to visual signals, and so far has learned to sit up, lie down, "speak," and retrieve.

THIS, then, is the story of the French permanent wave specialist and his experience with his dentist as heard in a loop beauty parlor by a contributor (Beulah Sunkel). As the little Frenchman wound her locks about the permanent wave curlers he related, in staccato tones, how his neighborhood dentist had contracted to made a bridge removable and of gold for $100. He was to pay $50 down, $25 when the work was completed, and the remaining $25 shortly thereafter.

He received the bridge and paid the $75, but it was unsatisfactory, and he had reason to believe that it was not gold. He took it to a loop jeweler to have the gold content determined. The salesman said that he was unable to tell at sight, and he would have to leave it. It would take three days, he said.

At the end of the three days the Frenchman returned and the salesman handed him a slip of paper. The analysis had shown 2 per cent gold, the paper stated.

"And my bridge," queried the hairdresser, putting the paper in his pocket.

The salesman replied, with surprise and regret mingled in his tones, that he supposed the Frenchman had understood that it would have to be melted to be analyzed.

The following day an ironic postscript to the incident was offered in the arrival of a bill from the dentist for the remaining $25.

Good Morning!

"365 Days in Hollywood" is singularly tasteless—like Mr. Kipling's kiss without a mustache which one of his characters compared to an egg without salt. [Dear old-fashioned man!] Anyhow—you get the idea.

The story's one of those "backstage" affairs with a pretty girl from the sticks appearing to struggle upward to—stardom, of course. The villain pursues her. The noble director protects her. Comics do tricks and there are some striving ensembles and some tuneless tunes.

Condolences to the earnest, able and unlucky cast and director who had this dud scenario wished on them.

Mix to Return to the Movies with 5 Horses

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Mascot is returning Tom Mix to the screen. Mix has spent the last two years out of pictures. And while his seasons with the circus kept the depression wolves on the run, there is something about the film colony and the chance to wear white tuxedos where they will cause the most amazement that Mix never can stay permanently away from. Instead of his old horse, Tony, which Mix formerly rode in films, Tom will make his new serial with five different horses, each a specialist in one line. The complication about this interchange of horses comes in the necessity for coloring some of the horses' black spots white and making albino patches on others.

Mascot is one of the fastest expanding of the smaller motion picture corporations. This studio has been turning out successes and attracting considerable attention inside the industry for the last two years. Mascot ends 1934 in the position with regard to the major studios that Columbia studio, then the largest of the minor film plants, occupied about four years ago. Columbia has since become one of Hollywood's major studios.

Johnny Brown, ex-football star who is now a movie headliner, prizes a phonograph record of the broadcast of the Rose Bowl game of 1931 in which Alabama beat Washington, 20 to 19. He played half back for Alabama in that game.

The stand-in for Charles Laughton in "Ruggles of Red Gap" is a plump blond fellow named Harry Bates. Bates is a former prize fight promoter from Omaha, Neb.

After watching them dance in "Bolero" and now in "Rhumba," it is this observer's duty to chronicle that George Raft is a far better dancer than his beautiful partner, Carole Lombard.

Gift Shoppers Snap Up Belts of Rhinestone

Flat Metal Vanity Case Is Another Favorite.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The Christmas shoppers are ganging up around the costume accessory collections. You should see how swiftly everything is bundled, wrapped and quickly carried home. The big successes are the rhinestone belts for evening wear, undeniable luxuries, but grand gifts for any doting aunt that understands the lure of the glitters for the gay young party goers. These shining waist line accents come in various widths and varying prices, depending upon the width. They are undoubtedly the most glamorous beltlines to be found.

You have to get down early to buy one of the new huge flat metal vanity cases, if you don't want heavy competition. They are, uncannily, lifelike versions of the flat-fifty cigaret cases done in a grand and snooty manner. The best thing about them is the very large sized mirror that will catch every feature with and without powder or lipstick. Other tricks are the compartment for a good supply of cigarets, a coin purse for the mad money, another pocket for a comb, powder puff and sufficient space for a key. They appear in swanky gold and silver metal, in stunning enamels, with decorative bits of jewelry in the center of the lid and they are going like hot dogs at a football game.

Some of the best looking mirror glass ware for decoration as well as practical purposes comes in topaz, sapphire blue and crystal. Boxes for jewelry, with plenty of compartments, cigaret boxes, boxes for odds and ends and some oblong toilet table boxes with mirrors to match. All shapes and sizes are plentiful, but the color stuff is causing most of the excitement.

Chiffon sachet bags filled with fragrant rosebuds come in flesh and peach color. You tuck them in with your lingerie. Tiny bags can be tied to your coat hangers, the bigger bags for dresser drawers, and there are some boxed sets that are slick gift solutions.

Silver kidskin bows have appeared, small, neat gadgets to anchor to the insteps of opera pumps. These silver bows can be matched with silver belts and the silver trimmings of your pet cocktail outfits with grand results. They also match the newest wide silver mesh belts that are worn with dull crêpe afternoon dresses. Big shiny square buckles keep these mesh belts in place.

For information on any article described in this column call Rhea Seeger, Superior 0100.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

A velvety liquid finishing cream and a delicate powder that is infinitely flattering are running mates in an exquisite peach and silver beauty ensemble suggested as a Christmas gift. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Fingers itched and words failed us when we saw the peach and silver beauty ensemble of powder and finishing cream one of the great cosmetic houses has prepared especially for the Christmas season. We couldn't bear to give ours away, but if you're a strong woman and can part with one to present to a friend you'll be endeared to her forever.

As a gift or a personal possession it wouldn't come under the heading of an extravagance; the price is within easy buying distance despite the fact that it is a presentation of exquisite beauty.

The powder ranks among the very finest—pure, delicately perfumed and of a texture and shade that give a misty transparency to the skin.

The finishing cream has been one of our pets since it came on the market, which isn't so very long ago. It is unlike other creams in that it is liquid, and when it is smoothed into the skin it imparts a finish of infinite softness to which the powder adheres beautifully. It's effective as a protective and deliciously flattering.

As running mates in the beauty ensemble this powder and cream are a truly feminine gift that will win any woman under a hundred years old. The lovely little jar of cream, like the powder, is in a peach colored box with silver decor, and both are set in a stunning outer box of silver paper, delicately lettered and banded in the peach.

It is one of the prettiest packages we have ever seen—and we stoutly maintain that prettiness plus the finest of products make an ideal gift combination.

You can see these beautiful beauty boxes in a couple of shops.

GUN MAY SOLVE SWINDLE PLOT'S DEATH MYSTERY

Family of Hill Clings to Murder Theory.

Investigation of the mysterious death of H. B. Hill of Springfield, former president of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company, centered yesterday in the pistol that was beside his body when it was discovered near Springfield Saturday evening, and in several bullets which had been fired into Hill's car.

The pistol and the bullets were sent to the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory. If it is found that the bullets, which had been fired into the car from the outside, came from this pistol, authorities at Springfield held that the theory of suicide would be strengthened.

Late last night examination of the bullets had not been completed. However, the laboratory brought out the serial numbers on the pistol, which had been filed off, and this information was sent to T. P. Sullivan of the state bureau of investigation in Springfield. It has not been determined that Hill was the owner of this weapon.

Family Holds to Murder Theory.

Friends and relatives of the dead insurance man continued to maintain yesterday that he had been a victim of murder. Their contention is that he was killed probably to prevent his testifying against a group of swindlers who are alleged to have plotted to loot the Abraham Lincoln company's treasury.

Joseph Baiata, ex-convict, and two of his associates, Abraham Karatz and Hayden Sanders, are under arrest here on charges of conspiring to defraud the company of $25,000.

Attorney John T. Evans, 1 North La Salle street, who had represented Hill and his company in Chicago, said that Hill told him on Friday that he was coming here to tell all he knew in an effort to expose the whole plan of Baiata.

Thompson Goes to Springfield.

Assistant State's Attorney Vernon C. Thompson corroborated the report that Hill had made an appointment to come here today and make a full statement. Mr. Thompson will be in Springfield today to coöperate with State's Attorney Alfred Greening of Sangamon county in his investigation of the death.

It was disclosed that Hill left $110,000 of insurance, with his family as beneficiaries.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Dorothy Page last night was crowned the beauty queen of radio during the broadcast of Jan Garber's Supper club over NBC. The former W-G-N singer was the winner of a contest conducted by a national fan magazine with twenty radio editors from all parts of the country acting as judges. Miss Page formerly sang with Seymour Simons' orchestra from the Blackhawk restaurant.

Lionel Barrymore, Beatrice Lillie, and Mme. Schumann-Heink head an impressive array of talent engaged for that three hour show on Christmas afternoon under the sponsorship of a Wisconsin motor manufacturer. Barrymore will appear as Scrooge, the miser of Dickens' "Christmas Carol." Alexander Woollcott will be master of ceremonies.

Other entertainers already engaged include George Olsen and his orchestra; Ethel Shutta, singing star with Olsen's band; the Don Cossacks, Russian male chorus of 36 voices; the Apollo club chorus of Chicago of 200 voices, and Clyde Pangborn and Col. Roscoe Turner, noted flyers. Other names are still to be added. The broadcast will be heard over ninety CBS stations.

Irene Beasley will be off the air for a few days—tonsils out yesterday. . . . It's a boy in the household of Jules Alberti, local CBS orchestra leader. . . . Lanny Ross is to be starred in a new Broadway musical show. . . . Gladys Swarthout has been engaged by Paramount to do a Grace Moore. Miss Swarthout will leave for the west coast at the close of the Metropolitan opera season, but she will continue her radio work. . . . Yvonne Gall, French prima donna, will leave Paul Whiteman's Music Hall next week to return to Paris to appear as Marguerite in the 2,000th performance of "Faust" at the Opera Comique on Christmas day.

Father Coughlin seems to be more popular than the New York Philharmonic Symphony—at least in Philadelphia. WCAU, 50,000 watt station in the City of Brotherly Love, has been chopping off the symphony concerts at 3 p. m. on Sundays to put on the Detroit priest. This brought on an awful howl from the Bach, Beethoven and Brahms contingent. So station executives decided to let listeners vote on their choice. The final tally: Coughlin, 112,110; Philharmonic, 7,640.

Frank Mullen has resigned as director of agriculture for NBC to become assistant to the president of Radio Corporation of America. Mullen left for New York yesterday. His successor is William Drips, formerly of Wallace's Farmer, Des Moines.

SUIT REVEALS ENVOY PLEDGED EMBASSY IN LOAN

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—How a former Polish minister to Washington borrowed $160,000 from the capital's social queen in 1919 and gave his embassy as security was revealed today in court action in connection with settlement of her estate.

The executor of the late Mrs. Mary F. Henderson, Washington society dictator in the pre and post-war periods, was granted court permission to compromise on a settlement of the balance due on the note.

The borrower was Casimir Prince Lubomirski, then minister from Warsaw. The money was lent Dec. 3, 1919, and was to fall due Dec. 23, 1935.

The executor's petition stated $30,000 has been paid. The executor was granted permission to accept $75,200 plus interest in lieu of full settlement.

Mrs. Henderson, widow of former Senator John B. Henderson of Missouri, died in 1931.

ASSEMBLYMAN DOUGLAS DIES IN COURT BUILDING

State Representative Warren B. Douglas, colored, 49 years old, 4051 South Michigan avenue, died of a heart attack yesterday while appearing as attorney in a case in the court of Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan. Judge Finnegan and opposing counsel were in conference in an ante-room when Douglas collapsed and died.

Douglas was elected last month to represent the Third Illinois district. It was his fifth term in the office, although he had ended his fourth term six years ago.

Born in Fayette, Mo., Douglas received his early education in Kansas City. After being graduated from the Kent College of Law he was admitted to the Illinois bar in 1915. He was in demand as a public speaker and frequently spoke in behalf of the Republican national committee throughout the country. His widow, Sadie, and a daughter, Gwendolyn, survive.

MARRIAGE STUDY FOR MEN MAY BE COLLEGE COURSE

University of Washington Considers Plan.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A course in marriage to instruct men students how to avoid unhappy unions is being considered by the University of Washington, Dr. Norman S. Hayner, associate professor of sociology, disclosed today.

Dr. Hayner said two-thirds of the marriages of the university's graduates are successful and the suggested course—in problems of courtship, engagement, the wedding, adjustments in personalities, child training, divorce, and the problems of the unmarried—should tend to make more of them successful.

The course, open only to senior men, would comprise "frank discussion of marriage problems." He said it would be identical with one offered at the University of North Carolina. Similar courses, he said, are offered at the Universities of Wisconsin and Michigan.

Dr. Hayner, who proposed the course here, asserted that "if adopted, this course will be offered in absolute seriousness. Haphazard guidance on matters of marriage is outdated. We need scientific guidance on facts that are known."

CITY COUNCILMEN TO ATTEND RITES FOR SEYFERLICH

Members of the city council will attend the funeral today for Arthur R. Seyferlich, fire commissioner who died Friday. They will meet in the council chambers and will go in a body to the Oriental consistory, Walton place and Dearborn street, where services will be held at 11 a. m. The men will assemble at the quarters of Engine company 98 at Chicago and Michigan avenues. They will join the cortège at the consistory and will then march to St. Paul's Lutheran church, 2835 Orchard street, where services will be held at 2 p. m. During the church ceremony they will stand at rest outside and will be dismissed when the procession has started for Rosehill cemetery.

A guard of honor, including Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan and Deputy Fire Commissioner Anthony J. Mullaney, will accompany the procession. A detachment of 200 policemen will escort the cortège from the consistory to the church.

John L. Zacharias, 72 years old, chairman of the board of the First National bank, Blue Island, and civic leader in the suburb, died yesterday in his home, 2457 West York street, Blue Island. He suffered a paralytic stroke Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Zacharias was the first mayor of Blue Island when the town was incorporated as a city in 1901. He had served seven years previously as president of the village board. Starting his business life in a feed concern operated by his father, Mr. Zacharias in 1896 helped to found the private banking house of Zacharias, Bourke & Co., predecessor of the First National bank. He celebrated his golden wedding anniversary with Mrs. Zacharias Thanksgiving day.

DRESSMAKER OF CHICAGO'S EARLY DAYS DIES AT 90

Miss Mary S. Rick, 2007 Howe street, who for more than 35 years operated a dressmaking establishment at Madison and May streets when that neighborhood was a fine residential center, died yesterday in the county hospital. She would have been 90 years old Dec. 18.

Miss Rick came to America from Germany with four brothers and a sister when she was 5 years old. Her mother died on the ship en route. Chicago was hardly more than a village on her arrival. About 1865 she opened her dressmaking shop, remaining in business until 1900. At the time of the Chicago fire she lived with a brother at Jefferson and Barber streets. She is the last surviving member of her immediate family.

Recently Miss Rick had lived with a niece, Mrs. Louise Waechter, in whose home she was injured Nov. 25 in a fall which led to her death.

MRS. LINDBERGH'S SISTER WILL BE BURIED IN JERSEY

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Morgan, sister of Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, will be held in Englewood, N. J., the family home, members of the family announced tonight.

Relatives of Mrs. Morgan, who died in a hospital early today, said Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh would not come to Pasadena.

Mrs. Morgan, 30, died after an illness of several weeks that started with an operation for appendicitis and later on was complicated with pneumonia.

Though Mrs. Morgan's death had been feared for several days, it came when hospital attachés said it appeared she was rallying from an illness of three weeks. Her mother and husband were present at the bedside.

Mrs. Morgan was the eldest daughter of the late Senator Morrow. She was married to Morgan, whose home was in Cardiff, Wales, on Dec. 28, 1932. They came to Pasadena to live last spring because of Mrs. Morgan's poor health.

SWINE GROWERS CONDEMN AAA PROCESSING TAX

A resolution condemning the present program of the Agricultural Adjustment administration which sets a processing tax on hogs alone of all domestic animals, was adopted last night by the National Swine Growers' association at its annual meeting in the Hotel Sherman.

The AAA was urged either to remove the tax entirely, or if it is to be continued, remove existing inequalities, by spreading the tax over cattle, sheep, poultry, their allied products, feed grains, and corn.

This resolution was presented by C. W. Mitchell of Springfield, Ill., secretary of the American Berkshire association, as a substitute motion after a resolution approving continuation of the existing federal program had been rejected, almost by unanimous vote. Mr. Mitchell moved for adoption of his motion after a heated debate found a majority of the swine growers opposed to the administration's program.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Maj. Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is serving sentence unjustly for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Chief witness against Colin was Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. Caermaen takes Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. After a brief honeymoon Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited the fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. It was Stornack who killed him. Caermaen has his solicitor, Jarroman, investigate Stornack. Rhoda leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen, the Rawlings, in London. Her mother follows with a court order placing Rhoda under her charge. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where the son of Rhoda and Colin is born. The baby is left there when they return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days. Rhoda flies with Colin to see their son. Mrs. Cornboise sees Colin and penetrates the mystery of his excursions from jail. She threatens to expose Caermaen if Rhoda doesn't marry Stornack. Giving up hope of Colin's release Rhoda decides to marry Stornack in order to protect Caermaen. Stornack, with his confederates, Leningway and Galston, arrange a mock marriage, in order to get Rhoda to sign over her fortune to him.

INSTALMENT XXXVIII.

TO SAVE A FRIEND.

To her mother Rhoda only made one reference to what had happened.

"You saw him kissing me," she said that night. "He had taken me by surprise. My—my feelings have not changed."

"My dear, you're being very sensible. And feelings don't matter. There's no reason at all why you should not make a success of that marriage."

"Marriage! It will be a mockery," she said, and realized that she had spoken a literal truth. She decided to follow it up. "Let's be quite clear about it, mother. I go through a form of marriage with Ralph—and after that you will never breathe to a living soul what you know about Jack?"

"Of course, dear!"

"Swear it."

"I don't see why you should be so melodramatic. But since you insist. If you do what you call 'go through a form of marriage' with Ralph Stornack, I swear by all that I hold holy that I will never tell any living being what I know about Capt. Caermaen's behavior."

The next few days were the strangest of any in her whole life. It could hardly be said that she suffered acutely. She was very nearly without any feeling. She drifted from hour to hour, surrendering her will to her mother or to Stornack or to any one who had energy enough to give her orders.

Part of her original trousseau was brought down from Cornboise hall. All the foamy delicate fabrics were unaffected by a year's change of fashion. But this did not apply to outer garments, and her mother pushed and pulled her through an energetic shopping campaign.

"I am doing my utmost for you, Ralph. But I can't have her ready before next Thursday. I'm sure you don't really mind waiting just one week longer after you've been so patient."

"I bow to the inevitable, belle mere. But lend her to me this afternoon. I want to show her our new home."

"You've chosen it without consulting her! You are a bold man."

"She will like it, I think. She likes quiet things. And as we can be married anywhere I think we'll be married there. It's a little place up the river. I spotted it the other afternoon."

Later he told Rhoda he had a surprise for her. She smiled and looked pleased, for she had set her hand to the plough and did not intend to falter.

He drove her out of London, beyond Reading, to the village of Landkey-on-Thames. On the outskirts of the village, all by itself, stood a little thatched cottage with all the traditional picturesque qualities of a garden.

"I've taken this for three months," he announced. "If you don't like it we can dump it."

"But I think it's perfectly delightful!" said Rhoda. She would have said the same whatever he had shown her. It did not matter where he intended to take her.

"It's very small, as you see," he said, producing a key and taking her inside. "Just a single room downstairs, and one over it with a tiny dressing room upstairs."

"I love small things," said Rhoda. She had discovered a formula of amiability. You just agreed enthusiastically with anything anybody said.

"We've nowhere to stow a domestic staf," he told her. "But there's a woman who lives about a quarter of a mile away who will come in and work for us—and then buzz off."

She agreed that this would be an ideal arrangement.

"I don't know what you feel about church, but I always find it rather depressing. I vote we use the powers that license gives us and have a parson to perform the ceremony in here for us."

"O, yes, that would be much better!" If that dreadful deed had to be done, the farther it were away from a church the better.

"Little girl, I do hope you will be happy here."

She must remember not to lash out when Stornack kissed her. He seemed not to mind when she did not kiss him back.

It was not until Sunday that she wrote to Colin. She began her letter with a protestation of her undying love, and then.

You will have heard that Jarroman has definitly stated that there is no hope. I have been in a sort of daze ever since he told me, but I am able to face the fact, as you are, that we have had our happiness and that it is over. In twenty years we shall not be the people we are now—a prematurely old man and woman with nothing but dim memories. So, dearest love, I have made the decision. There is neither honor nor sense in dragging Jack down into our own misery. I have decided to go through a form of marriage with Stornack. I shall not tell Jack because he would immediately give himself up in order to prevent my making this sacrifice instead of waiting until the end of the month as he promised. I shall send him a telegram when it is done. That is my decision. That is what I think I ought to do and what I shall do unless you forbid me. For I am yours, Colin.

Jack Caermaen was not able to pass the letter to Colin until Tuesday.

When Colin had read Rhoda's letter it produced no nerve storm. It produced nothing but a hard laugh.

"O no!" he ejaculated. He read the letter again and the hardness vanished.

"Poor darling! But you're quite right. This would be—this would have been—the only decent thing to do in the circumstances."

The next day, while at labor, Jack Caermaen spoke to him.

"All fixed. Same drill as before. We change over just before my release at twelve-thirty. You will be able to get to London about seven o'clock. Shall I warn Rhoda to stand by?"

"No," said Colin firmly. "There might be a hitch and it would upset her too much. I—I'll pick her up myself—on the telephone."

Thursday! A morning's work in the vegetable garden which surely must be the most dug over patch of ground in the whole world. Back to cells for dinner at midday. It was necessary to swallow the food, for there was no other means of concealing it. To have left it about would have been to invite the other warders' attention. And while he was impersonating Colin it was very necessary that Jack Caermaen should not attract particular attention. They were of the same build and the same physical type, but they did not resemble each other as twins.

Colin finished the food and waited. This was really the worst part of the whole thing. At long last came the first signal—a double cough from Warder Caermaen that meant "Get ready." Colin took off boots and clothes.

"What have you got there on the window sill, Eighty-seven?"

"Only my writing pad, sir."

"And what have you got under it?"

GASOLINE ALLEY—SH! CLARENCE IS GOING TO TALK

Precisely Made Letters Reveal Sophistication

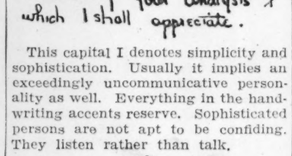
BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

Have you ever wondered how your sophistication compared with that of others? Of course, sophistication is a difficult subject to define, though your dictionary will simply say it means one who is "worldly wise; experienced in worldly affairs." This doesn't seem to suffice, for there are many people who have had many worldly contacts and are as naïve as children. This is often startlingly true in New York City.

I believe the truly sophisticated of a type worth admiring must have more than just "worldly wisdom." They must have a certain polish and suavity. They need a touch of intuition so that they can always be ready to say the right thing and to meet situations gracefully. A sense of proportion and balance is needed, too, for true poise.

Today's specimen of handwriting, taken again from my mail, reminds me of a handwriting that once advertised a certain brand of cigarets. These particular cigarets were supposed to appeal to the distinctive and the sophisticated. I remember noting at the time that the handwriting was very well chosen.

The most outstanding trace of sophistication in this beautiful specimen is the capital I, made as an upright stroke.



This capital I denotes simplicity and sophistication. Usually it implies an exceedingly uncommunicative personality as well. Everything in the handwriting accents reserve. Sophisticated persons are not apt to be confiding. They listen rather than talk.

Notice the capital M made of three upright strokes and one horizontal, revealing a cool efficiency that is stressed by the backhand slope of the precisely made letters. This particular M is much in favor with a well poised and artistically sophisticated younger generation.

Today's specimen has a beautiful sense of form and proportion. Can't you visualize the fastidious but cold simplicity and assurance of the writer's personality? Artistic, literary, musical, cultured in the finest sense of the word, and completely self-possessed.

An unsentimental but charming person wrote this handwriting, I am sure, and one who belongs in the highest classification of the sophisticated.

This is a different writing in many ways from that of another person I remember who made the "sophisticated I." The rest of her writing was smeary and I happened to know that she lived in rather a turmoil. Even among the sophisticated there are variations of type. Every handwriting is different.

Pre-Christmas Gayeties Vital as Day Itself

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

When I was a child I remember with what a combination of pity and horror I used to regard some of our little neighbors. Their lives seemed too utterly drab—I couldn't quite see how they could endure it.

And why? Because their Christmas only lasted for one day. I suppose in their way they looked forward to it—but to us, who were somewhat in and out of their houses, everything seemed quiet and dull and without signs of anticipation of this glorious holiday.

Not for them the buying of rosy, glossy bunches of holly on frosty afternoons—not for them the wandering between fragrant ailes of trees, as the lights began to come out, choosing the straightest and most symmetrical. Not for them the thrill of having the grocer hang the Christmas wreaths over their arms to be carried home. Not for them the looping of green ropes over mantels and doorways transforming the house.

In their homes there was none of the delicious excitement of quickly covering up secrets you were working on as some special member of the family came in—or rescuing a telltale list from prying eyes. There were none of the cozy conferences over "What shall we give mommy?" or "Do you imagine daddy would think a necktie just useful?" In their house no box was packed for loved ones far away.

To them getting their presents wasn't a breathtaking ceremony—they just rushed down in the early gray of Christmas morning and took their things from under the tree.

No Christmas carols sounded for days ahead of time in their houses and Christmas dinner was apparently just one more meal, without jovial table decorations or the saying of a grace to make this meal quite different from any other in the whole year.

If ever there was a lovely holiday it's Christmas. It has everything—fun, material pleasures, and spiritual beauty. To get out of Christmas all there is in it we need to spread it out for days before it actually arrives For the children especially this multiplies many times its delights.

If you have your children say the Christmas dinner grace and would like a new one, we have a booklet of prayers and graces which will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Now—a SAFER Treatment for CHILDREN'S COUGHS

MOTHER: the weapon that your child MUST have for fighting coughs and colds is a vitamin —Primary Vitamin A. Doctors call it the "Anti-Infective" vitamin.

Now, for the first time, you can get Primary Vitamin A in an inexpensive, pleasant remedy —Smith Brothers Cough Syrup.

Smith Brothers Cough Syrup soothes and checks the child's cough quickly. In addition, its Primary Vitamin A aids the child to drive the infection out of the system faster. And it raises the child's resistance against dangerous re-infections with new coughs and colds.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

BRILLIANT DEFENSIVE PLAY.

I know from their letters that the readers of these articles are eager that I should discuss all angles of bidding as I would handle them. I gladly comply; but we must not overlook the importance of defensive play, so today I will give you a hand from actual tournament play.

North is declarer at four spades. Opponents have bid and raised hearts, and South always passed. North went to four spades on his own hand; he felt that they might conceivably make four hearts against him, while he could not be badly hurt in spades, and a misplay by the enemy might give him the critical trick or tricks even if his partner's hand were useless.

The Play.

A heart is opened and ruffed. North sees that his only hope is an even split in diamonds and a situation where the opponent winning the second diamond lead cannot lead a trump for fear of trapping the queen. He leads the ace of diamonds. East did not shoot the ten out quickly. He thought first. He saw that if he was put in the lead on the next trick with a second diamond he could not afford to lead a trump to prevent a diamond being ruffed; nor could he see how to put West in to make a trump lead through the declarer in time to prevent the ruff of a diamond. On the bidding North almost surely held the ace of clubs.

The Master Play.

So East decided that the only entry card his partner could have was the jack of diamonds. He therefore unblocked by playing the queen on the ace. North now led a small diamond, and East played the ten. West grasped that his partner was making a magnificent play in order to enable West to get in the lead; and overtook the ten with his jack. Now he played a spade, preventing declarer from ruffing a third round of diamonds. Thus the contract was defeated a trick. Declarer lost two diamonds, a spade and a club.

There Was a Reason.

You will acknowledge that there was no fluke about this magnificent play when I tell you that the East player was Phil Leon and the West player no less than Sam Guggenheim, both of Cleveland. This is one of the greatest pair of partnerships in the history of tournament auction. In the auction pair championships of the time honored American Whist league, and later in those of the younger American Bridge league, this formidable pair were almost invariably first or second. For sound tactics and brilliant card reading they have no superiors. Today's hand is an excellent example of their splendid partnership coördination. Next time that you hear any boasting to the effect that "We can play them as well as any one; if we had the time or inclination to play in the national championships, we would give the headliners a ride," prepare this hand in a duplicate board and slip it into the party so that the confident pair play the East and West hands. If they let you make four spades have your oration all prepared and let it rip. "Elementary, my dear Watson," might be your theme—and April 1 would be a good day for this stunt.

Cooking Editor Relays Tricky News on Milk

Passes on Intriguing Bits About Dairy Food.

"All-in-One-Dish Meals," a booklet of 22 recipes, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Chew your milk well, darlings," is the way Danish mothers put it as they hand their offspring their daily slabs of milk. And it's no joke, we assure you. For in Denmark, it seems, milk is often dried and pressed, to be sold by the inch!

And here's another newslet from the dairies: Have you ever heard of "plastic cream"? Neither had we until recently. But it develops that this odd name is applied to unripened, 80 per cent butter fat cream which is, at present, canned and sold in substantial amounts in the east. It differs in flavor from sweet cream butter in that the plastic cream has not been ripened and still contains considerable amounts of milk.

Or it seems that a girl now can make her own cream—coffee, whipping, plastic, or what will you have? The trick is done with a new kitchen gadget which turns butter and milk into real cream with astonishing ease and economy. This astounding "mechanical cow" has been a tremendous success in England, where it was invented, but has only recently arrived in Chicago's loop. It is a moderately priced, molded aluminum affair which looks a shade like a meat grinder, with a lever handle instead of a crank. The idea itself is simple. After all, cream is only milk and butter fat. This cream creator puts milk and butter back together under pressure—and the result is cream. It's not a substitute, but cream itself. Tests show that, with the average family, the savings will repay the cost of the machine after a few months' use. Saltless butter may be used, or by a simple adjustment of the machine regular butter may be quickly desalted and made ready for use. Either bottled or evaporated milk will do the trick. Complete instructions turn up with each machine.

There's a new matrimonial affair in the vegetable family—between the cabbage and the radish! The two now have been crossed by botanists and a new vegetable obtained—the radish-cabbage.

And now something else to cheer about! Remember the days when we battled with ourselves in butcher shops over the matter of high-brow steaks we couldn't afford, and humble chucks and flanks which took just too much hammering and cooking time to bring them into subjection? The battle's over! Shopping about town I've found in numerous markets one of the most intelligent machines I've met. It's a carefully developed, tenderizing device, available at a pleasantly low price to meat dealers and restaurateurs. And the grand news is that Madame Meal-maker will now have the privilege of marching into any market which boasts such a tenderizer, of paying approximately the price she has always paid for the less tender cuts, and of walking out with a mechanically tenderized meat which takes no more preparation, no longer to broil or roast, and no more fuel to cook than would the swankiest of the aristocratic steaks and chops.

What's more, besides costing far less and offering all the advantages of the higher priced meats, these tendered cuts in addition give us an even richer flavor than do their uppity cousins. This is because more of the "meat extractives," which carry the rich meat flavor, are found in the less tender "working muscles" than in any other section of the beef.

There's nothing intricate about the tenderizing machine. It works on the age-old principle of making meat more palatable by simply cutting the fibers. We've smashed and hacked at our cuts with plates and hammers. This latest arrival at the meat shop does the work at the dealer's, piercing the meat in two directions with hundreds of thin, razor edged knives. This gives it a nice checkered pattern, no layer of uncut meat, no mangled fibers, and lots of surface to catch the rich, golden brown of cooking.

Making Cream at Home

This piece of equipment creates cream from butter and milk. It's easily operated and performs the trick by uniting the two under pressure. Whether coffee cream or whipping cream is desired, there's a good-sized saving in the cost. The gadget is being shown in a Chicago store.

Martini a Hit in His Debut to Chicagoans

BY EDWARD MOORE

Nino Martini, star of the radio and the opera, though not of the Chicago opera, made his first personal appearance in this city last night in a song recital at the Auditorium theater. One begins to wonder why Chicago is on his list only as a place to give a recital, because he is a singer of high order.

He classifies as a lyric tenor—there are apparently few dramatic tenors of the younger generation on the face of the earth today—and his voice is something quite out of the ordinary. It is the kind of voice that is slender in girth but long in stature and exquisite in quality. I, for one, can imagine few qualities of vocal tone better fitted to project Donaudy's "O del mio amato ben" than that of Mr. Martini in his first appearance. It was something that made one understand why he has developed his reputation before coming here, a work of lovely, beautifully wrought art.

He sings the works of various schools and several languages with equal ease and effect. There were two arias on his program, one from Bizet's "Pearl Fishers," another from Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," but mostly he relied upon songs, ranging all the way from the old Italian art songs to what in the last few years have become greatly popular, Spanish folk songs, all of them done with the same lovely quality of voice, the same poised accuracy and sense of lyric values.

Rosalind Kaplan, Chicago pianist, was associated with him on the program, a young musician who used to cause wonder around here as a child wonder, and who has now returned after five years' study in Vienna as a mature, not to say exciting, artist. She is rather certain to be heard from in the seasons to come because of the striking authority with which she plays.

She has a technical development in which to take delight, but, more than this, she has definite and defined ideas in music. In Bach, in Chopin, in Liszt she addresses the keyboard with genuine eloquence, with the forcefulness that means an interesting preconceived notion, with the ease that means technic become expression. She is a personage to be watched.

Show Film of Frontier Nursing Service Today

University of Chicago friends of the Frontier Nursing Service—philanthropical health and midwifery agency operating in an 800 mile region of isolated Kentucky mountain counties—are sponsoring the showing of a film, "The Forgotten Frontier," in the Oriental institute auditorium, at 4 o'clock this afternoon. No admission is being charged, but voluntary contributions of toys will be sent to the Frontier Nursing Service for Christmas distribution.

The Stage

The Old Globe company of Shakespearean players, with its Century of Progress personnel, will begin a run at McVicker's theater tonight with a special inaugural performance of "Julius Cæsar" and "The Taming of the Shrew" in brief form. The program will be preceded by a pageant written by Thomas Wood Stevens, director of the company, with James McVicker, who founded this playhouse in 1858, as the central figure. Regular performances, five a day in conjunction with cinema bills, will begin tomorrow.

The first performance of Edgar Lee Master's drama, "Andrew Jackson," will be given by the dramatic association of the University of Chicago in the Reynolds Club theater on the campus next Thursday night. The play will be repeated on Friday and Saturday evenings. This work marks Master's debut as a dramatist.

The Bell Players, a little theater group in the downtown district, will begin their season next Thursday night with a bill of one-act plays: "The Valiant," "The Florist Shop," and "Lavender and Red Pepper." The players are employés of the Illinois Bell Telephone company; their playhouse is at 311 West Washington street. C. C.

Marina Dares to Be Different in Cloky Gowns with Stripes Like Men's Trousers

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

This is another of the glamorous frocks that are part of the most famous trousseau in the world today—that of Princess Marina. Molyneux designed it, and it carries a real style message. The slim, bias skirt has stripes up the sides—stripes made of silver and black lamé. They strongly suggest the stripes that are placed up the sides of men's dress trousers; and that, my dears, is style news.

This dress carries a perfect formula for chic in the evening. It is made of corrugated black satin cloky and cut quite simply, with a high necked bloused bodice that falls over the tops of the shoulders in suggested sleeves The skirt is streamline, without fancy cut, and the lamé stripes at the sides end above the ankles, leaving a slit below. A striped lamé sash is lined with brilliant petunia red crinkled crêpe, providing one effective splash of color in the black and silver symphony of the gown. The gloves are made of the petunia red crinkled crêpe.

This is a dress that a royal princess and a bride, is going to wear in the most exclusive society.

without scratching the enamel

Brilliant, white teeth. No reason now why YOU can't have them . . . quickly, and without risk of scratching and eventually scrubbing off your precious tooth enamel.

Dr. Owen's Deodorizing Tooth Powder makes teeth white by harmlessly bleaching the stains away with millions of tiny bubbles of oxygen. It contains sodium perborate, one of the most rapid oxidizing agents known, and approved by all dental authorities. You'll see a big difference after the first few brushings.

But more! Dr. Owen's Deodorizing Tooth Powder starts you off in the morning with a sweet, clean breath. It does this by actually removing the dead tissue that coats the back of your tongue . . . the biggest cause of "bad breath."

You can't possibly have an idea of how wonderful, and how reassuring is this feeling of mouth cleanliness until you try this remarkable new kind of tooth powder.

OHIO STATE NAMES JONES AS MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

CAPTAIN ELECT PUT IN RACE FOR TRIBUNE TROPHY

Center Was Iron Man of 1934 Team.

Honor Roll

SEVEN Big Ten schools have named their most valuable players. They are:
Gomer Jones, Ohio State, center.
Duane Purvis, Purdue, half back.
Ed Whalen, Northwestern, guard.
Les Lindberg, Illinois, half back.
Milt Kummer, Wisconsin, guard.
Gerald Ford, Michigan, center.
Pug Lund, Minnesota, half back.

Columbus, O., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Ohio State's football men have a penchant for centers, for today—the second time in as many years—a center was named most valuable player on the Buckeye team.

Gomer Thomas Jones, who wasn't considered good enough for the third team last year, not only was chosen as the single outstanding player on the Scarlet and Gray eleven this season but also was named captain of the 1935 Buckeye team.

Jones is the third lineman to be nominated for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Silver Football by Ohio State. The first was Wesley Fesler, end and half back of the 1930 eleven and ultimate choice for THE TRIBUNE'S major award as the most valuable player. Other Buckeyes named were Robert Haubrich, tackle, 1931; Lewis Hinchman, half back, 1932, and Mickey Vuchinich, center, 1933.

Fails to Win 1933 Letter.

Jones typifies the new deal at Ohio State under the leadership of its new coach, Francis A. Schmidt. The Cleveland junior, who was on the squad last year, couldn't make his letter. He had won his freshman football numerals and sweater during the fall of 1932 as a guard.

In 1933 he played only 34 minutes in three scattered games, and then at guard. In the Virginia game that year, when Coach Sam Willaman used everybody but the water boy in the 75 to 0 victory, Jones played nine minutes. In the Vanderbilt game which Ohio State won, 20 to 0, Jones was allowed to participate for 10 minutes. In the Indiana contest, when the Buckeyes won, 20 to 0, Jones chalked up 15 minutes. For the remainder of the season, he warmed the bench.

The Buckeyes in 1933 had a great pair of guards in Co-captain Joe Gailus and Regis Monahan and Jones hardly had a chance to break into the games.

Schmidt Makes Shift.

Jones played three years at center on the Cleveland South High school eleven, but Ohio State freshmen coaches needed guards and so a guard he became.

Casting around for a center to fill the shoes of Mickey Vuchinich, who played about 450 out of the possible 480 minutes at center in 1933, Coach Schmidt heard about Jones' experience at center in his high school days.

"Play him at center," ordered Schmidt, and Jones was a center from then on.

At the opening of the season Schmidt planned to use Jones as a defensive guard, shifting to offensive center. He developed so fast before the opening game with Indiana, this plan was discarded and Jones played the position for the whole year—in fact he saw more time service for the campaign than any other Buckeye on the team — despite the fact that Schmidt used about 33 players, on the average, for every game.

Breaks Up Plays.

Jones' total time for the season was about 340 minutes out of a possible 480 minutes. Schmidt explained this fact at the annual banquet when he said Jones was "the best 'diagnoser' of opponents' plays he had ever seen," and he "had the knack of forming the proper defensive moves that halted the opponents' play."

Time record for the past season shows Jones played 45 minutes in the Indiana game, made three tackles, and intercepted a pass which he returned 20 yards. In the Illinois contest he played 30 minutes and made two tackles. Against Northwestern he played 43 minutes, making seven tackles. At Western Reserve he played 37 minutes and made four tackles. In the Chicago game he battled for 54 minutes and against Colgate about 45 minutes. He played all but a few minutes against Michigan and about 30 minutes against Iowa until he was injured.

Jones is 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 207 pounds and maintains a residence in Cleveland at 4131 East 114th avenue, but when at school lives at the Pi Kap house. He is taking a course in education with the hope of coaching some time, he says.

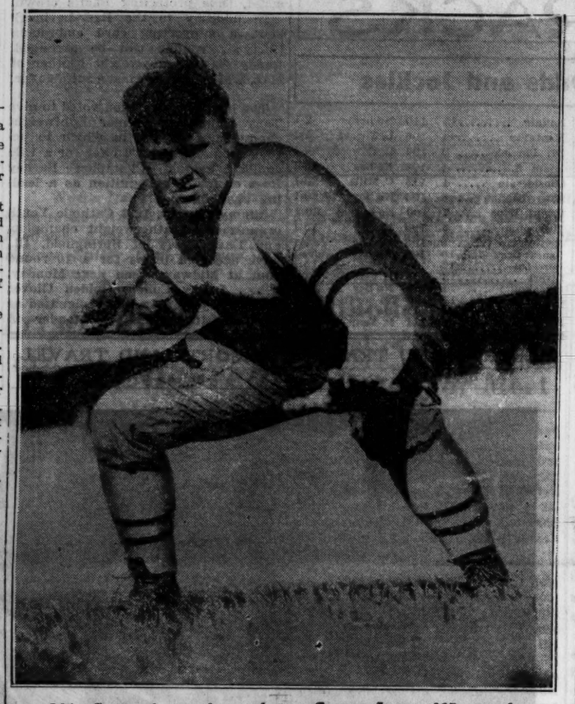
TWICE AN HONOR MAN



Ohio State players have chosen Gomer Jones, 207 pound center from Cleveland, as the team's most valuable player, thus making him eligible for The Tribune's Silver Football award. Jones also is captain elect of the 1935 eleven.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

'BAMA IN ROSE BOWL.

STANFORD'S choice of Alabama as opponent in the Rose Bowl contest on New Year's day at Pasadena was logical. The so-called Crimson Tide is unbeaten and untied. It has the best record, two victories and one tie, in previous Rose Bowl appearances. Its selection leaves no suspicion Stanford was seeking a soft opponent.

Colgate, beaten only by Ohio State, and Pittsburgh, beaten only by Minnesota, were receptive. In each instance scores in their defeats were so close that breaks might have produced a different result. But Colgate and Pittsburgh were losers. No matter how strong they are victory over either of these elevens would not enhance Stanford prestige as compared to the Big Ten, since Big Ten elevens inflicted the setbacks to Colgate and Pittsburgh.

Columbia might have been named on the theory of getting even for the surprise defeat, 7 to 0, which Columbia handed a confident Stanford eleven a year ago. Columbia was receptive. Despite some justification Stanford probably would have been accused of "picking" its opponents, just as the charge was hurled last year. Columbia has a creditable record, but was set down by Navy early in the season.

'Bama's hardest game of the season was against Tennessee, winning 13 to 6. It rolled up high totals against all other opponents, scoring 281 points to 32. Stanford has a clean slate in the Pacific Coast conference but for an early tie with Santa Clara, 7 to 7. It scored 211 points to 14 by its opposition. Alabama is coached by Frank Thomas, once of Notre Dame; Stanford by C. E. [Tiny] Thornhill, once of Pittsburgh.

Dight Daves, Fiddler.

When Dight Daves kinder easy-like picks up the fiddle bow
And then takes up the fiddle, gentle-like as though
It was some old-time friend of his that needed speshul care—
The kind a feller don't meet every time and everywhere;
Then caressin'-like and keerful sweeps his thumb across the strings,
It is plain that he is reckernized for hidden voices sings,
'Nen he gives the pegs just a gentle touch or so,
'Til the onderstandin's perfect twixt the fiddle and the bow.
Then I close my eyes and listen with a soothin' kind of pain
And I follow, rapt and eager, way back down in Memory's Lane.

The Campbell clan is comin' and exultingly sweeps by,
A Scottish laddie greets a bonnie lassie at the rye,
The Fisher's Hornpipe, Money Musk, the Old Virginia Reel,
Each has a speshul message for his fiddle to reveal—
Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot? . . . they seem to go away,
Until, in dreams, they all return as Dight begins to play.
I see the moonlight gleamin' on the fields of spotless snow
And age's somber garments pass and youth and pleasure glow;
Then mid the blessed spell of those most dear I roam
As he shuts his eyes and trembly plays "The Old Folks at Home."

Dight Daves, 'taint likely, will ever own the earth
With its unendin' fullness, but there's other kinds of worth;
And wealth and station cannot buy true friendships nor the things
To soothe a heart and help it like the love that lies and clings,
Which must be his, that radiates and sets my heart aglow
With joy and peace and memories from his fiddle and his bow.

SIX CHAMPIONS FIGHT TOMORROW IN C. Y. O. FINALS

Expect 21,000 to Attend Bouts at Stadium.

Five 1933 Catholic Youth organization champions and one 1934 Golden Gloves titleholder have been able to survive in an original field of more than 2,000 entrants in the fourth annual C. Y. O. amateur boxing tournament, the finals of which will be held tomorrow night at Chicago Stadium.

They are Andy Scrivani, St. Charles parish featherweight; Charles Wozniak, St. Alexander, Villa Park middleweight; Johnny Brown, Holy Angels bantamweight; Ray Wozniak, St. Alexander, Villa Park light heavyweight; John Sittipane, Our Lady of Victory flyweight, and Johnny Noto, Presentation 112 pounder. Noto won the Golden Gloves novice title while Brown and Sittipane earned C. Y. O. class B championships. All six will compete in the championship division on tomorrow's card, which comprises sixteen matches. Eight will be in Class A.

Brown Fights Strong.

Scrivani will fight Tony Carlucci, Lady of Mercy; Charles Wozniak will oppose Bill Fitzgerald, St. Kevin; Brown is matched against Larry Strong, Visitation; Ray Wozniak is paired with Ray McNally, St. Leo, and Sittipane will meet Noto.

Brown and Scrivani won much attention by their impressive showing in this year's Golden Gloves tourney. The former finished second to Patsy Urso of Detroit for the right to meet New York's best 112 pounder in the intercity matches after a hard fight. By his showing Johnny earned a place on the team, nevertheless. Scrivani also was placed on the squad by his good work in the finals at the Stadium.

Both battlers lost three round decisions to their New York opponents, but they have displayed considerable improvement since. As a result Strong, who clashes with Brown, and Carlucci, Scrivani's antagonist, will have to be at their best if they expect to win.

Expect Crowd of 21,000.

The bouts are likely to attract a full house of 21,000, it developed yesterday when C. Y. O. headquarters announced only about 6,000 tickets remain.

Thirty-two of the finest boxers in the amateur field will battle away for the 16 Bishop Sheil scholarships, the C. Y. O. titles, and the Cardinal Mundelein diamond studded medals. The eight winners in the championship class will be taken on a trip to some distant part of the country. Last year's winners went to California, where they engaged the coast C. Y. O. champions.

Out to Break 18,000.

Last year approximately 18,000 filed into the Stadium for the finals. Prospects for a record breaking crowd tomorrow are good, according to Don Connery, ticket manager. Requests for tickets yesterday assured at least a three-fourth sellout, and a complete sellout is not unlikely.

About 6,000 tickets are still available at the Boston store, State and Madison, main floor; the C. Y. O. headquarters, 31 East Congress street, Room 226; Bond's, 25 West Madison street, and the Stadium box office, 1800 Madison street. Reservations may be made by phoning Wabash 1114.

Tonight the 32 finalists will have dinner at the Illinois Athletic club, after which they'll be taken to a show and will then return to the I. A. C. to rest for the night.

PIRRONE SCORES KNOCKOUT OVER WALKER IN 11TH

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Paul Pirrone of Cleveland hit Mickey Walker with two short blows to the jaw in the 11th round of their scheduled 12 round bout tonight, and for the first time in his long career Walker was counted out.

The two smashes that toppled Walker were struck after 2 minutes and 19 seconds of the 11th round. Eleven thousand spectators sat in surprised silence as Referee Spud Murphy counted ten over the ex-champion.

Walker sought to avenge his defeat at the hands of Pirrone on Nov. 12, when he was floored for a count of nine with a terrific blow on the jaw in the 8th round, and lost a 10 round decision despite a late rally.

Walker weighed in at 162, three pounds more than the Cleveland battler.

Horse Show Favorite Loses to Neglected Stablemate

BY FRENCH LANE.

While a crowd of 12,000 gazed down at the goings-on in the show ring, Mrs. Combs, quite striking in her green ensemble trimmed in Russian sable fur, made her first appearance of the year in a show ring in Chicago.

It was an event for harness horses shown in four wheeled vehicles and the lady from Kansas City was at the reins in the gig which her aged mare Adoration pulled.

Drives 19 Year Old Mare.

Adoration, to the horse show fan is what a Cavalcade or an Equipoise is to the people of the race tracks. She has won the blue ribbons at all stopovers between Maine and California, and from Canada to the gulf.

Adoration has lived to the ripe old horse age of 19 years and while perhaps she should have been puttering around like grandpa's aunt putters around with her knitting and her apple fritters she was very spry last night—so spry that Mrs. Combs chose to drive her and she assigned her stable manager Daye Smith, to drive the young mare Captivation, also competing in the Long silks.

Adoration, back in the bright lights where great crowds have cheered her for many years, stepped as proudly as ever in the early stages of the contest. Yet, at the end her youthful stablemate, Captivation, was going in such graceful fashion that every spectator cheered her.

Captivation Is Third.

The blue ribbon went to Captivation. The red ribbon went to Knight Bachelor, owned and driven by Miss Judy King of Atlanta. Adoration—well, they couldn't keep the blue blooded grandma out of the money—she finished third.

Loula Long Combs and a lot of the spectators thought Adoration might have been first and that was the reason Mrs. Combs almost lost her temper. Yet when she found out that her younger mare Captivation had been declared the winner her temper subsided.

Lieut. J. L. Hines Jr. of the winners led in the scoring with seven goals, while Capt. C. A. Wilkinson and Lieut. E. C. Greiner, his teammates, knocked in 3 apiece. C. A. Roovaart

Northwestern university celebrated the opening of its basketball season with a 48 to 33 victory over Carleton college at Patten gymnasium last night. After being held to a 15 to 15 tie at the half way point, the Wildcats turned on the steam in the second period to pile up a comfortable margin and win about as they pleased.

Lyle Fisher, lanky forward, led Northwestern's attack with eight field goals and five free throws for 21 points. Most of his goals were scored on hook shots under the baskets or from set shots near the foul line.

New Players Impressive.

Although the veteran Fisher stole the honors for the evening, the crowd of 4,000 Northwestern rooters was cheered by the performance of seven sophomores. Four of these newcomers were in the starting lineup.

Norm Vance, 6 foot 3 inch guard from Logansport, Ind., who contributed a pair of field goals and conducted himself efficiently on defense, stood out among the first year players in the Wildcat starting combination. Others who displayed promise of making the Purple a contender for the Western conference title this year were Bernard Davis of Chicago, who scored two field goals, Jess McAnally and Leo Grossberg, six foot four inch centers, and Guy Mercer and Babe Bender, guards.

Carleton, led by Capt. Bill Powell, held the upper hand at the outset. The visitors connected with several long shots and took a 13 to 9 lead midway in the half.

Fisher Ties Score.

A free throw by McAnally and a field goal by Fisher from midcourt followed by a free throw by Fisher tied the score. Davis dribbled in to score a push in shot to give the Wildcats a 15 to 13 lead, but Powell scored his third goal from the center of the court to even the score as the half ended.

The Wildcats lost little time jumping into the lead in the second period. Davis' toss from midcourt started them off and they never were headed.

After Northwestern had run up a 27 to 15 lead, Carleton rallied to pull up to within 6 points. Fisher then bagged four baskets to put the Wildcats far out in front. Lineup:

Twenty Grand Starts West for Rich Race

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The Greentree stable's erstwhile handicap star, Twenty Grand, left New York today, en route for the Pacific coast and the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap. The big 6 year old, ensconced in a special, luxurious horse-car, will travel in style. His car is attached to the Broadway Limited and at Chicago will be switched to The Chief, Santa Fe train to Los Angeles.

Big Beau, The Triumvir, Peradventure and several yearlings were included in the Greentree stable's shipment. Trainer William Brennan and Jocky Silvio Coucci accompanied the shipment.

Shows Speed in Trials.

Although he has been away from the races since he was a three year old, Twenty Grand is accorded a good chance in the rich California race. Recent trials at the Greentree farm at Red Bank, N. J., indicate that he still retains much of his speed. His earnings total $260,840, placing him high up on the list of leading money winners. Of horses still in training, Mate and Equipoise are the only ones to top him.

Victory in the Santa Anita handicap to be run Feb. 23, would assure Equipoise or Mate of first place among the money winners, while a triumph for Twenty Grand would place him within striking distance of the $376,744 record now held by Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sun Beau.

Mate to Come Home.

Plans for others of the fifty nominees for the Santa Anita are not yet definite. Equipoise is at present at the C. V. Whitney farm at Lexington, Ky. The Catawba farm's Mr. Khayyam will be shipped west shortly. A. C. Bostwick's Mate was scheduled to leave England today, arriving at New York early next week. Statesman, owned by the Dorwood stable of Victor Emanuel, is also slated to leave England soon, bound for America and the Santa Anita handicap. Faireno, Ladysman, Head Play, and other leading candidates are now in California.

BLACKHAWKS GO OUT ON ICE AND FIND HEAT'S ON

Two Defeats Bring Shift in Front Lines.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Two successive defeats, over a span of four nights, at the hands of the kindly old New York Americans, have placed much heat on the world champion Chicago Blackhawks. This was very much in evidence when the champs took the ice for practice at Chicago Stadium yesterday.

Strangely enough, the big bearing down was done on the forward lines, without much being said or done about the state of the Hawk defense, such as it is.

Among the new combinations tried out in an attempt to bolster the champs before they meet the New York Rangers here next Sunday night was one made up of Johnny Gottselig, Howie Morenz and Mush March, while another which produced a measure of encouragement was made up of Paul Thompson, Doc Romnes and Donnie McFadyen.

Couture, Kendall Out.

The third line was rather miscellaneous due to casualties. Norman Locking, Tommy Cook and Louis Trudel worked together in the absence of Lola Couture and Billy Kendall. Couture has been laid low with an infected tooth, while Kendall was excused because of bruises and a cut on his left foot.

Sunday night's outcome left the Hawks in an absolute tie with the Boston Bruins for the lead of the American division of the National Hocky league and in almost a perfect tie in incidental items. Both the Hawks and the Bruins have won five games and lost three, while tying none, for a point total of 10. Each of the teams has suffered its enemies to score 15 points. The lone difference in the tabulations of the two teams is found in the fact that the Hawks have scored 16 goals to 13 for the Bruins.

And Still No Ties.

A strange feature is that this year's campaign to date hasn't seen a single tie in 35 games, an unprecedented record in major league hocky under the present rules. There has been no rule change to account for the lack of deadlocks of which there were several almost every week last season.

Aside from the fact that the aged Americans made it four straight in the league when they beat the Hawks Sunday night, the outstanding event of the week-end of hocky was the decisive defeat of the previously invincible Toronto Maple Leafs. They went down 3 to 0 before the Detroit Red Wings for their first defeat after winning their first eight games.

Leafs Get 27 Goals.

Opponents of the Maple Leafs have scored as many points as have enemies of the Hawks, fifteen, but the Leafs have rung up twenty-seven goals themselves, as compared to the Hawks' 16 in one fewer games. The Hawks lone meeting with the Leafs, in the Chicago opener, was a sad affair in which the Toronto lads spanked the champs 5 to 0.

Irish on Way West Cheered in Tri-Cities

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The Tri Cities extended their greeting to three native sons this afternoon as Coach Elmer Layden, former Davenport High football star, and the Notre Dame football squad stopped over for a few minutes at Rock Island and Davenport en route to California, where they will meet the University of Southern California Saturday.

The two other native sons were Mike Layden, also a former Davenport High star and a brother of Elmer, and Steve Miller, former St. Joseph of Rock Island player. Both Miller and Mike Layden are back field men on the Notre Dame squad.

A large crowd was on hand at the station. Two local sports writers will make the trip to the coast with the team.

PLAYER FIGHTS FOR LIFE AFTER FOOTBALL INJURY

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Strengthened by the blood of a comrade of many football battles, George Mougin, 26 year old guard of the Charlotte, N. C., team of the American Pro Football league, is fighting for life at a hospital here.

All the members of the Charlotte team and most of the Memphis Tigers, whom they played here Sunday, volunteered their blood when it was known that a transfusion was needed, but Ray Hostetler, Charlotte full back, said he would fight any one who tried to keep him out of the operating room.

Hostetler and Mougin played together on a St. Louis, Mo., high school team. Later they played together with the University of Iowa. Together they joined a St. Louis pro team, and together they enlisted with Charlotte this year.

Mougin, whose home is in Woodward, Ia., was injured in the closing minutes of yesterday's game when he was blocked on a play. It was necessary to remove a kidney. Mougin lay near death, and the transfusion was called for.

Mougin's condition was "very favorable" tonight, a surgeon said, but he added that he will not know until tomorrow, if then, whether the patient is out of danger.

Catholic Prep Basket Fives Get Ready for Meet

Basketball teams of the Chicago Catholic High School league yesterday continued preparations for the first annual preseason tournament under the sponsorship of St. George High school at Evanston Dec. 19 to 23. Fifteen quintets from the league and squads from Wisconsin and Indiana will compete for the title.

John McDermott, star guard, has been lost to the Kelly High school heavyweight quintet because of illness. The team, coached by Mark Singer, has scored three victories, defeating Luther, Argo and Central Y. M. C. A. It will have one of the heaviest schedules in the City league, the squad having carded 12 games in 16 days.

Deerfield's lightweight and heavyweight teams won from Lake Forest academy, the lights, 24 to 11, and the heavies, 20 to 12. Evanston and Tuley divided a double header, the Evanston heavies triumphing, 34 to 20, while the Tuley lights won, 26 to 19.

The Loyola academy bantamweight football team enjoyed one of the best seasons in the school's history. The squad scored 13 consecutive victories, piling up 311 points to its opponents' 58. The team was led by Don McNally, O'Reilly, whose passes to Buckley and Whiston accounted for 120 points, Hack, and Riley.

$900,000 TURF REVENUE IS SEEN FOR MARYLAND

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Judging by reports today on wagering at the Maryland race tracks in 1934 the state will receive approximately $900,000 from the turf sport for the year.

This estimate is based on 100 days of racing at the four major tracks for which the state collects $6,000 daily or $600,000. In addition the state receives $253,077, which is 1 per cent of the total amount of $25,307,790 wagered. Then there is 15 per cent tax on net revenue of the tracks, plus $50 per day license fee for the half mile ovals.

The 25 million dollar total this year is less than half the amount wagered in 1921 and each year from 1924 to 1929, inclusive.

Track owners and operators plan an appeal to Governor Elect Harry W. Nice and the legislature for tax relief. They will ask, it is understood, that the state relinquish the daily license fee of $6,000 and take instead a higher percentage of the mutuel handle.

3 TEAMS HOLD BIKE RACE LEAD IN NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—The teams of Rodak-Schaller, Zims-Kuester, and Dempsey-Thomas shared the lead tonight in the six day bicycle race which drew a crowd of 10,000 to Madison Square Garden.

The field, which originally constituted 15 teams, was reduced to 13 with the withdrawal of Marcel Guimbretiere, the partner of Paul Brocardo. Guimbretiere complained that illness prevented his turning in his best efforts and decided to abandon the race when the team was 16 laps behind the leaders. Brocardo was given four hours of grace in which to find a new teammate.

The Chicago delegation will stop at the Miami Biltmore hotel, which will be the convention headquarters.

GRIFFITH TERMS EXTRA FOOTBALL GAMES "UNJUST"

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Football fans may roar with enthusiasm for post-season football games, but in the opinion of the Big Ten's commissioner of athletics it's a serious injustice to the players involved.

Maj. John L. Griffith of Chicago explained his views as he arrived here today to address a football meeting at the University of Cincinnati.

"From the standpoint of conserving the best interests of the students who play football, I would not change the rule that bars Big Ten teams from playing post-season games either for charity or in the Rose Bowl," Maj. Griffith said.

"As a fan I would, of course, enjoy seeing our champion Minnesota team play in the Rose Bowl New Year's day. That would be great for the spectators and sportsmen, but it wouldn't be so good for the student players."

TEMPLE TO PLAY TULANE IN SUGAR BOWL FOOTBALL

BEARS AIM FOR 3D TITLE IN ROW

Start Hard Practice Today for Sunday Battle with Giants.

The Chicago Bears, undefeated in 13 league games this season which ended Sunday with the 10 to 7 victory over the Detroit Lions, rested yesterday preparatory to beginning their final week of drill for the playoff championship game next Sunday at Polo Grounds, New York. The Giants, winner of the eastern race, are the Bears' opponents.

Unless an upset occurs, the Bears will win their third consecutive championship. In fairness they should have that honor now, for their list of 13 victories includes two over the Giants. However, only a fourth period rally a week ago enabled the Bears to take the second encounter in New York, 10 to 9. Thus, the result in the play-off may be in doubt and advance sales in New York indicate that a larger crowd than watched the 10 to 9 game will be in attendance. More than 46,000 [the season's top] paid to see that contest.

Detroit Second Best.

Runnerup position in point of games won and lost this year goes to Detroit, which lost its last three games after taking 10 contests to keep pace with the Bears. Green Bay's Packers first cracked the Lions' defenses to win, 3 to 0, and the Bears followed with a 19 to 16 victory on Thanksgiving day before 26,000 in the University of Detroit stadium, the largest football crowd in Detroit history.

The Bears will do their hardest work here before leaving for New York. Coach George Halas has not set the date for departure but it will be either Thursday or Friday, depending largely on the desire to practice in New York prior to the game.

Corbett May Be Back.

The Bears' list of invalids was not increased Sunday. The present group is large enough to handicap the Bears in the title game. It is hoped that George Corbett, half back, who received a couple of fractured ribs at Detroit, will be ready to play. Beattie Feathers, the leading ground gainer of the league with more than 1,000 yards to his credit this year, a league record, is working out. It is unlikely, however, that he can play. Dr. Joe Kopcha, left guard, who, like Feathers, was hurt in the last Cardinal game, is definitly through for the year. Kopcha received a broken left hand when he tackled Mike Mikulak.

The Bears finished their regular season with about all the scoring records. They were the only undefeated eleven; scored the most points; had the leading ground gainer, and the individual point scorer. This last honor fell to Jack Manders, whose field goals have been instrumental in keeping the Bears in the lead all year.

Bears Get Rough.

Five 15 yard penalties on the Bears Sunday also narrowly missed setting a league record. The difficulty arose, so the Bears said, because of Ace Gutowsky's roughness when he tackled Keith Molesworth. In retaliation, several players found opportunity to land on Gutowsky and were penalized for roughness.

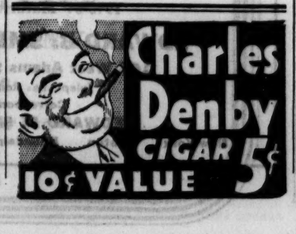
BOSTON GARDEN SEEKS DEMPSEY AS MATCHMAKER

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—While boxing's state of health in Madison Square Garden grows no better, the Boston branch of that organization "is planning to restore the sport there in a big way, or not at all." The quotes are those of a member of a delegation representing the Boston Garden directors that has been on here for several days in connection with a proposition that would make Jack Dempsey the matchmaker of that arena.

Ancil Hoffman, manager of the heavyweight boxing champion, Max Baer, will be associated with Dempsey if the Boston agreement goes through. Although those conducting the negotiations with Dempsey seem to have high expectations of doing business with Jack and would impose no such conditions as caused the former champion to reject a similar proposition from the New York Garden directors, there seems little chance of Dempsey accepting.

Dempsey's connection with the new restaurant which will bear his name, and which will be ready for business around the first of the New Year, would seem to make closing the Boston proposition unlikely.

The informant, however, who seems to be thoroughly acquainted with local Garden conditions, insists that Dempsey is showing interest in the Boston deal.



Rain or Shine, Nagurski Puts Driving Power in Plunges

(This is the second of a series concerning the football career of Bronko Nagurski, star full back of the Chicago Bears' professional team.)

BY WILFRID SMITH.

No better example of Bronko Nagurski's tremendous strength and driving power can be found than in the final professional game at Wrigley field Sunday against the Lions when Nagurski scored the Bears' touchdown in the first period. The field was slow and heavy with mud, but rain, mud, snow, or fast, firm turf are all the same to the battering Bronk.

Ace Gutowsky, Detroit's full back, is a mighty good line plunger. There are others in professional circles, and there have been many in intercollegiate history. However, the difference between Gutowsky et al and Nagurski is that when Nagurski is tackled he almost always carries on. By sheer, brute strength Bronko can smash into a pile of players and come through.

Nagurski Proves His Value.

Consider Nagurski's value Sunday. Exclusive of two punts by Keith Molesworth, Nagurski carried the ball on 14 of the 17 plays used by the Bears until the touchdown was scored. And after George Musso blocked Dutch Clark's punt and recovered on Detroit's 26 yard line, Nagurski hammered to the goal line in seven consecutive plunges.

There was early indication of this phenomenal power during the years Nagurski attended grammar and high school at International Falls, Minn. Bronko was blessed with a sturdy, rugged body which he developed, perhaps unwittingly, by working after school in his father's grocery store and vacation employment in the paper mills, principal industry of this northern outpost of the United States. Bronko's family lived on the outskirts of International Falls, and he used to run to and from school. This, so Nagurski now says, did much to develop his legs and endurance.

Plays on Prep Team.

By the time he was 15 there was none in the border cities who disputed the assertion that Bronko was as powerful as the strongest mill hand. It was logical, then, that Bronko tried out for the International Falls High school football team in his sophomore year, the fall of 1923. At the beginning of that season Bronko was 14 years of age, which incidentally is proof of his rapid advance through the primary and secondary schools.

There were only two high schools in the county and less than 300 students in the International Falls school. Until Bronko joined the football squad no International Falls team ever had scored on an eleven from the range, as the towns of the mining region are known in Minnesota. And this wasn't achieved until 1924.

Plays Tackle and Full Back.

Ralph Baker, a graduate of St. Olaf college [no relation to Ralph [Moon] Baker who then was playing at Northwestern university] was the high school coach. His only problem was deciding where Bronko best could be used. He would have liked to have him carry the ball and at the same time make interference. He compromised this impossibility by having Bronko carry the ball on offense and play tackle on defense.

Bronko weighed about 180 pounds, as compared to his present weight of 230. But Bronk had slight assistance. Bemidji defeated International Falls, 12 to 0; Mountain Iron won, 33 to 0, and the other games also were lost by sizable scores.

The following fall when Bronko was in his third year of high school, the record was even worse. International Falls lost at Bemidji, 52 to 0; was defeated at Chisholm, Minn., 42 to 0, but lost at Buhl only 20 to 6. This was the touchdown, however, scored on an 80 yard drive during which Nagurski carried the ball on every play, which broke the all time record of scoreless defeats by range towns.

Team Loses Again.

Mountain Iron won from International Falls, 6 to 0, and two games with the "Paper Makers," an independent team composed of former border city players, ended the year. In the first the high school received credit for a 12 to 12 tie on an illegal play, as Nagurski recalls now, for the tying touchdown was made by Bronko when he broke through the line and batted a forward pass over the goal line where he recovered and was credited with a touchdown. The play actually was an incompleted pass. The "Paper Makers" won the next game, 13 to 6.

During these two years, Nagurski also played basketball. In his sophomore year [he was center and guard] the team went to the district tournament but lost, 26 to 2, making only two free throws.

"We certainly had the shakes," Bronko recalls, "and I guess it was the effect of getting into a tournament which was unusual for our high school."

Nagurski Goes to Bemidji.

The next year the principal of the school, in order to discipline two of the players, canceled the basketball trip to the tournament. This indirectly led Nagurski to leave International Falls in the fall of his senior year and enroll at Bemidji High school.

Some of Nagurski's friends thought Bronko would be a valuable asset and it was arranged for him to come to Bemidji, where he worked his way through school. International Falls protested Nagurski's transfer to the state athletic association which declared Bronko ineligible because he was a nonresident at Bemidji and did not have one semester in residence.

That winter, however, Bronko played basketball. The team won the district championship but lost in the semi-finals of the regional tournament at Chisholm to Grand Rapids, Minn., 25 to 21.

Enrolls at University.

In the spring, Nagurski competed in track, put the shot, ran on the relay team, threw the discus, and high jumped. But despite his athletic record, there was no great commotion when Bronko decided he would like to attend the University of Minnesota. Football was the most important sport and Bronko never had played on a winning team. He was just another big, strong boy, and these are a dime a dozen in northern Minnesota.

Dr. Diedrich, an International Falls dentist, graduate of Minnesota, interested Nagurski in attending the university. Arnie Oss, one time great half back for the Gophers, met Nagurski and assured him he could find work in Minneapolis. With this assurance Bronko packed his few clothes, and with a meager amount of money, made the trip to Minneapolis and enrolled as a freshman in the school of physical education.

[Another article on the career of Nagurski will appear tomorrow.]

GOOD WEATHER'S NOT SO GOOD FOR SHOOTING GEESE

Birds Are Lazy Unless It's Windy and Cold.

BY BOB BECKER.

The weatherman is a powerful ally of the geese this fall, if you listen to the moans of the boys around Miller City, Ill., which is in the heart of the best wild goose hunting country of southern Illinois. Although the big honkers do not know or appreciate what is going on, the fact remains that on most of the week-ends so far this fall the weatherman has come up with bright, sunshiny, mild days, which keep the geese in their own backyard out of the range of hunters.

When we were in the Miller City territory a few days ago, Paul Ryl, one of the residents of that section, looked at the bright sky, the perfect picnic weather, and the way the geese were given no incentive to work, and remarked that it was the fourth consecutive week-end of beautiful "woodpecker" weather, which is terrible hunting weather. In view of these breaks in the weather the birds have not been dropping to hunters' guns in large numbers. With only two days a week allowed for shooting geese, which in itself is a conservation measure, the birds are being conserved also by the kind of weather that has prevailed on the week-ends.

Have One Lucky Day.

The boys had one grand shoot some weeks ago when it rained and blew. Although it is uncomfortable in the blinds out in the wheat fields, the shooters on one daily fee goose hunting spot bagged 106 birds. To get your limit early in the morning was no trick at all because the honkers didn't want to sit on the refuge and doze through the day. Instead they wanted to move around, go into the fields and fly around the country. When geese do that the percentage is all with the shooter, because once thousands of birds get the urge to leave a refuge and go cruising, many are bound to be decoyed to the fields where shooting blinds are located.

Last Saturday morning the sun came out early and immediately the goose hunters around Miller City started scowling and swearing. We joined in the chorus. Although much of the country north and west of the Cairo district had storms of the type that the hunter wants in order to make birds work, the goose country was bathed in sunshine and thousands of well fed, contented birds did little but just sit all day. A few worked into the fields shortly after sunrise. After that anybody in a blind could go to sleep or read without worrying about being disturbed by wild geese.

It's Easy or It's Tough.

But that's the way goose hunting goes. If you get the weather down there around Miller City there is nothing to it, because of the number of geese in the country. If they work you get four birds in a hurry. On the other hand, if you hit a spell of bluebird weather, few geese will fly and therefore mighty few are shot. Last Saturday just 19 geese were killed on the three big hunting preserves near Horseshoe lake. Compare 19 for three preserves with 106 birds shot on just one preserve during a day and you have some idea of what weather will do to goose hunting.

NORTH CENTRAL PLAYS WILLIAMS IN OPENING GAME

The North Central college basketball team will open its season Saturday night when George Williams college of Chicago visits Naperville. Coach Len Bieber has reduced the Cardinal squad to ten men.

The Cardinal squad will present a team built around four returning regulars. Len Yuknis and Ade Dillon are the forwards. James Thumley, a sophomore who saw action last year, is working as center and Bob Young and Bobby Burns, the latter a freshman, are guards. Hippo Spiegler, a veteran forward, also is certain to play.

Two freshmen, Heilman, who comes from Mooseheart, and A. Shiffler, Naperville, have shown themselves capable and are making strong bids for regular positions.

FEDERAL BONDS FIRMER ON NEW U. S. FINANCING

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—A strong market for long term United States government bonds and a brisk demand for short term treasury obligations, reflecting the favorable reception of the Dec. 15 financing announced by the treasury this morning, claimed most of the attention in the bond market today. Domestic corporation bonds closed irregular, with advances and declines about evenly balanced, while foreign loans finished irregularly higher.

The long term United States government issues were unchanged to 12-32ds point higher, with the single exception of the treasury 3s, which sold off 1-32d. The turnover in the group amounted to $2,178,000, compared with only $719,300 last Friday.

New York Tractions Strong.

Strength in New York Rapid Transit issues was a feature of the corporation group. Interborough obligations closed unchanged to up 1⅞ points at levels at or close to the best prices for the year thus far. Manhattan Railway first 4s and the certificates therefor, moved up 1⅞ and 1¼ points, respectively, to new peaks for 1934. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit 6s, due 1968, series A, declined ⅛ to 104½.

On the average, domestic industrial and utility bonds did better than the rails. A number of speculative railroad issues were off a point or more on the day. Chesapeake corporation convertible 5s, due 1947, closed at 104, off half a point. A new issue of $18,000,000 convertible 5s of the corporation is to be offered soon to retire bank loans.

German and Austrian Issues Firmer.

In the foreign group, German and Austrian loans continued strong. Although the Austrian 7s, due 1943, the issue which has been called for redemption on June 1, 1935, were off ⅛, the 7s, due 1957, jumped 5 points to a new high for the year at 90. Austrian corporation issues were strong. German government 7s rose 1⅜ points and the 5½s were up half a point. The coupons due as of Dec. 1 on the latter issue are to be paid, on presentation, one-sixth in dollars and five-sixths in blocked reichsmarks. In the Latin American section of the list, new highs for the year were established by most of the Argentine issues.

A. E. Staley Mfg.

Investors' Guide: Please send me information on A. E. Staley.—R. E. L.

Answer: A. E. Staley Manufacturing company operates a business originally established in 1897. It manufactures corn products of many types, such as starches, glucose, sirups, gluten feed, etc. Plants are at Decatur, Ill.

Gross revenue figures for 1933 or 1932 are not available, but for the seven preceding years they ranged between $2,000,000 and $5,000,000. Earnings have fluctuated sharply. Net income in 1933 was $1,755,000, or $55.63 per common share, against $464,000, or $5.37 per common share, for 1932. In 1931 net loss was $146,000, against profit of $429,000 in 1930, and profit of $2,105,000 in 1929.

Current position at the close of 1933 was satisfactory. Current assets were $5,517,000, and current liabilities were $971,000. Funded debt was $4,000,000, down $850,000 from the year before.

Stock equity consists of 50,000 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred and 42,004 shares [giving effect to 100 per cent stock dividend in February, 1934] of $100 par common.

Although dividends have occasionally been in arrears on the preferred, they are currently up to date. The bond indenture contains rather rigid restrictions on dividend payments. No cash dividend has been paid on the common since Jan. 1, 1931.

The preferred is medium grade. The common is speculative.

Gross in 1933 dropped 3 per cent from 1932, Charges, consequently, were covered 1.49 times, against 1.55 times in 1932, 1.69 times in 1931 and 1.92 times in 1930.

The $6,261,000 first 5s, due 1979, are somewhat speculative at present.

Texas Corporation.

Investors' Guide: Will you please advise me as to what date Texas corporation paid its last dividend on the common stock? Thank you.—H. K. W.

Answer: Texas corporation paid its last common dividend of 25 cents a share on Oct. 1, 1934, to stock of record Sept. 7.

ALL INDUSTRY ASKED TO DRAFT RECOVERY PLAN

Wide Policy Changes Are Proposed.

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—In an effort to unite industrialists throughout the nation in support of a platform of their own for attainment of national recovery, the National Association of Manufacturers placed a tentative draft of such a platform before the annual meeting of the National Industrial council today.

C. L. BARDO.

Possibly revised after discussions by the council, the plan will be presented to the Congress of American Industry, meeting here Wednesday and Thursday, for further discussion and revision, and then, it is proposed, adoption.

In order that the platform may be truly representative of all American industry, the National Association of Manufacturers has called the congress, to which have been invited all the industrialists of the nation, whether members of the association or not.

High Points of Program.

High lights among the recommendations in tentative form are:

Avoid policies which tend to centralize control over industry, labor, and agriculture and to regiment America.

Maintain the constitutional balance between legislative, executive, and judicial power.

Balance the federal budget, cutting public expenses to fit reasonable taxes.

Withdraw federal aid from states which do not reduce expenditures, excluding relief and bond obligations, to the 1926 level.

Substitute for state sales taxes and federal "nuisance" taxes noncumulative manufacturers' sales tax, collected by the federal government and shared with the states.

The government should return as soon as practicable to a genuine and unrestricted gold standard with a definite content of the standard gold dollar, to remove uncertainties as to the present and future status of money.

Amend the securities act and the securities exchange act to conform with the principles of the British law and practice.

Repeal the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage act.

For Uniform Accounting.

Establish an accurate and uniform system of government accounting for those operations in which the government does engage, as there can be no value in any comparison between the costs of public and private operations unless the government "yardstick" shows "inches" for taxes, interest, overhead and all other charges which private business must take into account.

Abandon all forms of government competition which threaten industry, thwart private initiative and retard recovery.

Encourage local settlement of labor disputes.

Make every organization of employers and employés equally subject to public authority, legally answerable for its own conduct and that of its agents.

Relief must not entice workers from, or discourage their return to, private employment. Relieve distress, not subsidize it.

Two Recommendations.

Appended to this platform are two recommendations, one concerning social security, which is an amplification of what the platform says on that subject; the other concerning what shall be done when the National Industrial Recovery act expires June 16. The proposal is that the labor provisions of the code be continued under one law and administered by the department of labor and that a fair trade practice act, to be administered separately, be enacted providing that submission of codes of fair practice be voluntary with industry and that industries which do not submit codes continue to operate under the anti-trust act and supplementary legislation.

C. L. Bardo, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, laid the platform and appended proposals before those at the meeting, telling them that as business men and as an organization they are on trial, and that they must unite in support of a constructive program.

Other speakers were James A. Emery, counsel of the association, who discussed the legislative outlook in Washington, and John C. Gall, associate counsel, who discussed English labor legislation.

ALDRICH CALLS ON COMMUNITY TO MEET RELIEF

Banker Urges End to Federal Grants.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—By concentrating on direct home unemployment relief and eliminating work relief the budgets of municipal, county, state, and federal governments can be brought into balance and consequently forestall a serious situation, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National bank of New York, stated here today in an address before the Commonwealth club.

W. W. ALDRICH. [Acme Photo.]

"Great progress has been made this year toward the return to normal conditions in economic life and toward the removal of underlying causes of the depression," he said. "None of us wishes to see that progress jeopardized by the pursuit of an unsound policy in dealing with unemployment which, if continued, might ultimately put the credit of the federal government and the stability of the currency itself into danger."

Urges States Meet Own Needs.

He asserted that the state governments must speedily abandon the idea that the federal government is a convenient place to deposit burdens that they themselves are in a position to bear. He said that new sources of local taxation must be found to balance state and municipal budgets.

"It would seem that what is needed is some new instrumentality in each locality, made up neither of politicians nor of social workers, which will study the situation, follow its development daily, and see to it that relief is adequate and economically administered," he said in citing the difficulties in administering unemployment relief.

These local bodies should not actually administer relief, he said, but should be set up by the states to act in an advisory capacity, with power to make investigations.

Could Gauge Problem Better.

The creation of such bodies, he said, would mean a better understanding of the unemployment relief problem and a greater sense of community responsibility, and the tendency to wait for assistance from the federal government would be combated.

"Local agencies," he said, "are the only ones which understand the problems of the unemployed sufficiently to administer relief properly, and local taxation must provide as much as possible of the expense involved so that the responsibility of bearing the burden will be brought home to the community which administers it."

He criticized the philosophy of "priming the pump" as generating fear of increased borrowing and even increasing unemployment through government competition with industry.

Compares British System.

"In England the government has resolutely turned away from this philosophy, has refused to go further into debt, has balanced its budget, and is taking care of the problem of unemployment relief by a cash dole, similar to our home relief, derived from taxation," he continued. "But here powerful forces are constantly at work to bring about heavy public borrowing to make work."

In reply to questions on general business conditions and the possibility of the coöperation between government and business continuing, which he said were encountered everywhere in his trip across the continent, he said that business sentiment as a whole is distinctly better and that the coöperation between business and government will continue.

New U. S. Borrowing Program Is Viewed as Shrewd Offering

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Announcement by the treasury yesterday of its plans for one billion 892 million dollars of financing on Dec. 15 encountered a very favorable response in financial circles yesterday but it failed to answer the questions about the administration's future spending policy that have been plaguing business men for months.

Government bond dealers reported their belief that the issues of bonds and notes would be readily sold. Their favorable reaction was based upon response from banks and other investors, together with the moderate rise in quotations of similar government securities in yesterday's market.

* *

The consensus among the bond dealers was that the financing was the most skilfully planned of any treasury operation for nearly two years.

The offering is to cover two purposes. First, the treasury needs about 992 million dollars to pay off holders of the 2¼ per cent certificates maturing Dec. 15. Second, the treasury proposes to raise 900 million dollars of additional money to replenish its declining cash working fund to cover spending needs of the federal government during the next few weeks.

If the 900 millions of securities offered for cash are fully subscribed for—and bond men predict that they will be—and if all of the holders of the maturing certificates agree to take new treasury paper instead of cash on Dec. 15 it will mean that the treasury will market a total of 1 billion 892 million of securities on that date.

* *

The raising of 900 millions, in addition to the refunding operation, will raise the public debt to a new all time record high of more than 28 billion 500 million dollars, which will be only 2 billion 500 million short of the 31 billion dollars debt with which President Roosevelt has estimated the government would emerge from the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The Dec. 15 operation is divided into bonds and notes. The treasury offers for cash 450 millions of 15 to 18 year 3⅛ per cent bonds, maturing Dec. 15, 1952, but callable after Dec. 15, 1949. It also offers for cash 450 millions of 18 month 1⅛ per cent notes or special 2¼ per cent notes, maturing June 15, 1939, in exchange for their certificates.

Bond men say that the 3⅛ per cent ong term bonds are shrewdly arranged to attract idle funds of insurance companies and other investors and that the shorter term notes will be easily oversubscribed by banks. They add that the exchange offer for the certificates will probably be highly successful because most of these certificates are held by banks and large corporations that will prefer to take the new paper rather than pile up more idle cash at this time.

Observers were unable to see in the treasury's announcement any straws showing the direction of the wind in Washington. If the financing announced for Dec. 15 is to be the last treasury borrowing until March 15, when there are more maturities to meet, it would be interpreted as an indication that government spending was being tapered off and that the administration was going in the direction of orthodox economics.

There was nothing in the announcement or subsequent remarks of treasury officials, however, assuring the business world that the government would not be back for more borrowing before March 15.

* *

If a big public works or relief program is contemplated to make jobs during the winter the 900 millions of new money asked by the treasury would probably not be enough to last until spring.

The treasury still has a billion 562 million dollars balance in its general fund, but 809 millions of this represent "profit" realized from the 40 per cent debasement of the dollar.

Excluding the 809 millions "profit" the addition of 900 millions of new money on Dec. 15 would give the treasury a cash balance of about 1 billion 500 million dollars to work with until March 15. This would probably not be enough to pay for any big make-work scheme to replace the CWA for the coming winter, inasmuch as the treasury for two years has followed the policy of maintaining a sizable cash balance at all times.

GOVERNMENT DEFICIT RISES TO 1½ BILLIONS; IS DOUBLE YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A deficit of $1,432,240,962 was piled up by the federal government in the first five months of the current fiscal year, compared with $772,465,574 a year ago.

A check on the treasury's cash position at the end of November showed total expenditures of $2,892,632,093, of which $1,501,965,244 was charged to emergency recovery costs and $1,390,666,848 to routine government expenses. Against these outlays the treasury had collected $1,460,391,130.

The public debt was reported at $27,298,896,757, compared with $23,534,115,771 just a year ago.

November spending dropped below October's total, the high month for the current year. July's total outlays were $466,000,000, August's $513,000,000, September's $515,000,000, October's $758,000,000, and November's $638,000,000. October showed the largest monthly deficit, $498,000,000.

The Emergency Relief administration with $483,969,231 was credited with the largest emergency spending, though advances by the Public Works administration for a wide variety of activities exceeded $500,000,000. In addition the administration loaned railroads $62,428,000 and advanced the Tennessee Valley authority $13,003,000.

NEW TREASURY FINANCING SETS TIME RECORD

$900,000,000 Loans Sold in Day.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—An unprecedented sale of $900,000,000 in government securities in a single day was revealed tonight when the treasury announced that it had closed the books on its December financing at the close of business today.

Secretary Morgenthau, who made the announcement in absentia, was plainly elated when informed by telephone at Warm Springs, Va., that an all-time record, so far as any one in Washington could recall, had been set in the speed of a treasury financing operation. The celerity with which the $450,000,000 in bonds and $450,000,000 in notes were snatched up by the financial community augured well for the solid position of federal paper, in the opinion of observers here.

Oversubscription Indicated.

The hasty closing of the books indicated a substantial oversubscription of each issue, but the actual amount of bids will not be known until later in the week.

A second note issue of $992,496,500 to be devoted solely to the refinancing of a Dec. 15 maturity of the same amount is being held open for exchange subscriptions. The proceeds from the two cash issues, however, will go directly into the treasury's cash drawer to meet emergency expenses.

The treasury's announcement read as follows:

"Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau announced last night [Monday] that the subscription books for the current offering of 3⅛ per cent treasury bonds of 1949-'52 closed at the close of business Monday, Dec. 3, 1934.

Holds Open for Exchange.

"The subscription books for the offering of 1⅛ per cent treasury notes of series E-1936 also closed at the close of business Monday, Dec. 3, for the receipt of cash subscriptions, but will remain open, together with the subscription books for the 2¼ per cent treasury notes of series A-1939, until further notice, for the receipt of subscriptions for which payment is to be tendered in treasury certificates of indebtedness of series TD-1934, maturing Dec. 15, 1934.

"Cash subscriptions for treasury bonds or for treasury notes of series E-1936 placed in the mail before 12 o'clock, midnight, Dec. 3, as shown by the postoffice cancellation, will be considered as having been entered before the close of the subscription books.

Expect Figures Dec. 6.

"Announcement of the amount of cash subscriptions and the bases of allotment will probably be made on Thursday, Dec. 6."

It was indicated when the offering was announced that the treasury would probably seek no further new money until the regular March 15 financing, although there might be an exchange offering to reduce the $1,870,000,000 in Fourth Liberty loan bonds called for April 15. The regular weekly sale of refinancing bills is expected to continue as usual although they will be confined to actual refinancing.

Applications for the treasury's latest offering of short term paper totaled $236,905,000 of which $75,139,000 was accepted. The bills, dated Dec. 5 and maturing June 5, were offered Nov. 30. The average accepted price was 99.889 and the average rate 0.22 per cent annually on a bank discount basis.

BRITAIN LOWERS RAIL FARES TO SPUR TOURISTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 3.—A great drive to attract tourists to Great Britain next year was launched by the Railway Companies' association today with the announcement that with the beginning of 1935 an all around reduction of fares on all British railways will be effected.

The year 1935 is a jubilee year, and hundreds of thousands of foreign tourists are expected to visit England for the celebrations. Third class, 2-cent-a-mile round trip tickets, available for a month, were tried out this year as an experiment, and now are permanent.

The cheap summer tickets issued during the holiday season also are to be permanent, and will be known as monthly tickets. In addition, these will permit the holder to break a journey anywhere en route to the distination. First class tourist tickets will be reduced by 26 per cent, and third class tickets will be reduced by 18 per cent.

Bancorporation Defendants Lose Point in Fraud Suit

Moorhead, Minn., Dec. 3.—(AP)—District Judge John A. Roeser today denied motions of attorneys defending 16 officers and former officers of Northwest Bank corporation to quash informations on which they are charged with grand larceny and swindling. He deferred motions on demurrers to the informations. The bank holding company is charged with unfair practices in selling stock. Trial of the case against the first defendant is tentatively scheduled for Dec. 7.

Obtain Right to Sue Officers of Paramount

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe today authorized a series of suits against officers and directors of Paramount-Publix corporation and the banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. to recover for stockholders and creditors large sums of money allegedly improperly acquired. The case involves several million dollars.

Judge Coxe authorized the suits on the application of the trustees in bankruptcy, Charles D. Hilles, Eugene W. Leake, and Charles E. Richardson.

The prospective suit against Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is to force that leader among the country's private banking houses to give back profits it made by taking stock set aside by the stockholders for the company's employés.

Report 12,250 Shares Obtained.

Although the amount of such stock acquired by the banking house is not revealed in the papers so far on public record, it was learned on good authority that it was 12,250 shares. The firm got the stock at $52 a share, a price fixed by the stockholders in a plan to give faithful employés additional compensation—although the market price then ranged above $70. If the stock had been sold at about the time it was obtained Kuhn, Loeb & Co. would have picked up about a quarter of a million dollars.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. have been the bankers for Paramount-Publix for many years. Two of its partners, Sir William Wiseman and Gilbert W. Kahn, are on its board of directors. The banking house is now at work on a reorganization plan for the bankrupt film company.

May Sue "Big Five."

A second prospective suit is against the "big five" of the company's officers, Adolph Zukor, Jesse L. Lasky, Sidney R. Kent, Sam Katz, and Ralph A. Kohn. This action will be designed to make them give back compensation for their services in "amounts so great as to require a determination by a court of equity."

It was learned that the amounts which will be specified are $875,000 each in salary and bonuses alone for Zukor and Lasky in 1929. Zukor's share in the employés' stock plan deal by which Kuhn-Loeb profited was potentially more than $1,250,000, as he acquired 60,000 shares at $52. In addition to their share in the employés' stock grants the "big five" split $3,500,000 in cash between them in 1930 before the company went bankrupt, it is alleged.

Suits will be brought to determine whether all the officers and members of the board of directors were entitled to the amounts they took from the employés' allotment of stock.

The stockholders voted for a distribution of 250,000 shares to employés, including executives. The board of directors, however, cut in the officers and executives—most of whom were on the board themselves—for a total of 139,800 shares.

Submits New Plan.

Paramount submitted to Judge Coxe its plan for reorganization. All properties are to be vested in a new company in the new plan, which carries a pro forma balance sheet indicating net worth available to creditors and stockholders of $75,000,000 after suggested new reserves of $14,000,000 and after reorganization expenses.

The new board of Paramount, said the statement, includes Gerald Brooks, Duncan C. Harris, Percy N. Johnston, Julius Klein, Henry R. Luce, Charles A. McCullough, Maurice Newton, Frank A. Vanderlip, and Adolph Zukor. It is proposed that additional new directors also be elected. Judge Coxe set Dec. 27 for a hearing.

N. Y. CENTRAL TO TEST EFFECT OF STREAMLINE SHELL ON LOCOMOTIVE

West Albany, N. Y., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The New York Central's experiment in streamlining, an ordinary locomotive streamlined inside and out, will be put into service in a few days. Workmen today were putting the finishing touches on the smooth steel shell. This was designed to deflect air currents around the bell, smokestack, cab and all other protruding parts.

Instead of building a light alloy train, motor driven, such as the Union Pacific's streamliner or the Burlington's Zephyr, the New York Central decided to experiment with its present equipment. Officials chose one of its crack express engines. Its potential speed was rated as "100 miles an hour and up." What it will be when the engine gets out on the main line with its streamline shell the designers have not forecast.

Chiefly the railroad hopes to secure a reduction in operating costs. There has been no indication that the Central's 70 mile an hour speed limit will be changed.

The light shell, weighing a fraction of the engine's weight, is painted gray. Engine and tank are completely encased, except for the six large driving wheels. These are left open to facilitate lubrication at station stops.

RAILS' OCTOBER PROFITS EXCEED FIXED CHARGES

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Returns to date indicate that the class 1 railroads earned their fixed charges in October by a margin of $7,000,000 to $10,000,000. This would reduce the net loss for the first ten months of this year to somewhat less than $30,000,000. The loss in the first ten months of 1933 was $25,700,000.

October is usually the best month for the railroads. While the returns for last October indicated that the railroads earned in that period their first surplus above charges for any month since June, the showing compared unfavorably with results in the like months in the two preceding years.

Rising expenses in recent months helped to explain the results for October in respect to net operating income. Net operating income for October is estimated at about $49,200,000.

HOLC TO CRACK DOWN ON LOAN DELINQUENTS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Home Owners Loan corporation today served public notice that it has started to crack down on persons who wilfully fail to meet payments on their mortgages to the corporation.

John H. Fahey, chairman of the corporation, said delinquencies to date are less than 20 per cent of the amounts due, but that it had been necessary to institute foreclosure proceedings in more than a score of cases. Then he added:

"The corporation is already proceeding vigorously against mortgagors who are clearly shown to be able to pay their indebtedness but who have deliberately attempted to evade their responsibilities on the assumption that no action will be taken against them."

STOCKS DECLINE; TRADING SHRINKS AS PRICES FALL

Profit Taking Starts List Downward.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 3.—The stock market turned reactionary today and a check of the list after the closing gong revealed losses ranging from a fraction to a point and slightly more in the active issues. Trading was fairly broad, although the volume fell far short of the million share mark.

The market opened uncertainly and turned irregular as steady profit taking induced by the eagerness of traders to realize on their commitments began to drive prices down.

The treasury's announcement of its December financing program was the principal topic for discussion in the financial district. Terms of the offering were regarded for the most part as satisfactory.

Smaller Market Cheers Bulls.

Despite the setback in stocks which was construed as further readjustment of its technical position, the bulls were not disturbed by the absence of buying enthusiasm. The slightness of volume that accompanied the recessions was regarded as a constructive sign by many who felt that the market was entitled to a minor corrective movement.

While the general list was giving way fractionally a few of the seldom mentioned issues were forging into higher ground. One of the outstanding issues of this type was Crown Willamette Paper preferred which chalked up a gain for the day of 14½ points. Other issues which showed gains for the day were Homestake Mining, which increased its value 4% points to close at 380, International Silver preferred and Pere Marquette preferred.

Steels Heavily Sold.

Steel shares came in for a big part of the selling and displayed little or no rallying power throughout the session. United States Steel and Bethlehem showed full point losses for the day, while Republic wound up the day with a minus ⅝s.

The rail shares failed to carry through Saturday's flurry of strength.

The oil issues failed to respond to the effort to end the price war in New Jersey and did little but mark time.

The motor shares came in for some heavy selling but withstood pressure fairly well. Chrysler was the biggest loser, drifting a point lower during the day. General Motors, Mack, Auburn and Hudson lost fractionally.

The public utilities looked promising at times but failed to get far.

The advance in the London price of silver was a tonic to the silver group, International Silver preferred adding an even point to its value.

Liquor shares were dull and easy.

STEEL OUTPUT PLACED AT 28.8%; BEST SINCE JULY

New York, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Another small gain in steel operations to 28.8 per cent of capacity was estimated for the current week by the American Iron and Steel Institute today. This compares with a schedule of 28.1 per cent last week, 26.3 per cent a month ago and 28.3 per cent for the corresponding week last year.

The gain over the previous week was 0.7 of a point, or 2.5 per cent. The estimated production for this week is the highest named by the institute since last July.

COURT TO RULE IF RFC CAN SELL RAIL COLLATERAL

Case Involves Rock Island Reorganization.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—(AP)—In the busiest day of its present term the Supreme court today acted on 17 cases, leaving only 12 that have been argued and have proceeded far enough for decision.

The court agreed to decide whether the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other holders of notes from railroads undergoing reorganization may get their money by selling collateral. The court agreed to review the decision of lower courts barring the sale. The case was brought by the RFC, three banks, and two trust companies holding notes of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, including the Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust company and the Harris Trust and Savings bank, both of Chicago.

Case Involves Nearly 14 Millions.

The RFC held notes involved in this one case aggregating $13,718,700 which matured last March 1. In all, however, it holds railroad notes with a face value of more than $325,000,000. The note holders contended the case affected the rights of the holders of notes of all corporations and companies in the hands of courts for reorganization.

The railroad is in the hands of the Federal District court for Northern Illinois, undergoing reorganization. The railroad is indebted to the banks and trust companies for $4,125,000. Collateral held by the RFC totals approximately $37,000,000 and that by the banks and trust companies $14,400,000.

Review Grigsby-Grunow Case.

The court promised to review a decision by lower courts that the Manufacturers' Finance Company of Baltimore was not entitled to collect 28.3 per cent interest from the bankrupt Grigsby-Grunow company of Chicago. The federal district court in Chicago held that 7 per cent was plenty and the seventh circuit court of appeals concurred. The trustee in bankruptcy declared the finance company had taken accounts receivable as security.

The Union Pacific railroad won a contest with the commissioner of internal revenue involving taxes for 1920, 1921, 1922, and 1933. The railroad sold bonds prior to March 1, 1913, at a discount, paying commissions, and contended it had the right to amortize the losses in paying its federal taxes. The deductions it made on this account during the four years amounted to approximately $309,000.

Rules on Tax Cases.

The court in another suit ruled the depletion deduction of 27½ per cent allowed those operating oil wells in making out federal income taxes must be taken after royalties are deducted and not before. Another decision held that the trustees of the Boston Elevated railway, while employed by the state, must pay federal taxes on the compensation they receive from the state.

Provisions in real estate leases under which the property owner may recover damages when the lease is broken by bankruptcy were sustained by the court.

The Fox Film corporation of New York was granted a review to have decided whether the "block booking" form of contract it is using in renting motion pictures is legal.

CHESAPEAKE CO. WILL USE BONDS TO REPAY BANKS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—A registration statement involving a new issue of $18,000,000 of Chesapeake corporation bonds that will be used to refund the unpaid balance currently outstanding debt owed by the corporation to seven New York banks and trust companies was filed with the Securities and Exchange commission today. The bonds are ten year 5 per cent convertible collateral trust bonds.

This amount of current bank debt represents, according to the statement, the unpaid balance of a bank debt originally incurred in July, 1930, in the principal amount of $32,500,000 participated in by the above banks. The proceeds of this original bank debt were used for the purchase of stock in the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company and Pere Marquette Railway company, and for working capital.

BELGIUM GETS HOLLAND LOAN; EXCHANGE RISES

New York, Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Announcement of a credit of 100,000,000 guilders [$68,056,700] by Holland bankers to Belgium today brought about an abrupt rally in the belga to 23.42 cents, up 6 points from Saturday's close and above the gold import point with relation to the dollar for the first time in a month.

The large loan was, however, a further confession of the critical situation facing the gold bloc with respect to its weakest member, Belgium, and reacted unfavorably upon other currencies of the group. French francs fell ¼ point to 6.59¼ cents, which was once more below the gold import point, and Dutch guilders dropped 2 points to 67.60 cents, which is substantially below the gold import point. The Swiss franc gained 2 points to 32.48 cents, which is about 5 points over the gold import price.

CENT. REPUBLIC REMOVAL ASKED IN TRUSTEESHIP

Removal of the Central Republic Trust company as trustee for a two story business building at the northeast corner of 64th street and Cottage Grove avenue was sought yesterday in Circuit court by Milton Kirshbaum, a bondholder. The building owes $210,000 in principal and interest, according to the bill filed.

It was charged that appointment of a receiver for the Central Republic on Nov. 20 made that company incapable of acting longer as trustee.

WOMEN URGED TO SUPPORT FHA HOME PROGRAM

'Can Put It Over,' Says Martha Holmes.

BY AL CHASE.

It's the women of America that can put over the Federal Housing administration's modernization program, Miss Martha Holmes, FHA speaker from Washington, D. C., told several hundred Chicago club women yesterday at an all day better housing forum at the Hotel Sherman.

Miss Holmes urged her listeners, who represented approximately 75,000 members of various clubs of the city and suburbs, to "eat, preach, and think better housing every day."

"Fix Own Home First."

"Put your own house in order first," she suggested. "When you go home tonight look around and see what can be done to improve it and then go ahead and do it. It's the women of America who can start this modernization movement which is going to get us back on our feet.

"And remember that of every dollar you spend on this FHA program of bettering homes 70 cents goes into the pockets of laboring men. That 70 cents will be spent on food, furniture, gasoline, and other ways that will keep it moving. I believe that the FHA program will get both the country and money moving."

Miss Holmes called attention to the mistaken belief of thousands of families that the FHA is lending money. All funds, she said, must be borrowed from banks or other lending institutions authorized by the FHA to make loans.

Better Designs Desired.

Kathleen McLaughlin of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE decried the lack of a distinctive midwestern architecture. She held out hope for more attractive home designs as a result of the growing interest of women in such things. She pointed out that automobiles got more and more efficient through men's activities, but didn't get beautiful until women took a hand in the motor situation.

Helen Hughes Dulany spoke on modern interior decoration and Percy Wilson, FHA regional director, discussed the five titles of the national housing act, Elmer C. Jensen, president of the Illinois Society of Architects, and John H. Walker, past president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, also spoke. Miss Amelia Sears, chairman of the women's division of the FHA better housing program, presided.

END WIRE FIGHT BY MERGER, URGE POSTAL OFFICERS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 3.—[Special.]—Urging legal authority to merge existing telegraph and radio-telegraph companies into a single organization to be operated under federal supervision, officers of the Postal Telegraph and Cable corporation painted today a picture of the two major telegraph companies fighting each other to obtain business, while telephones, radio and even air mail were attracting the business for which the competition was waged.

The witnesses appeared at the opening hearing before the telegraph division of the federal communications commission, which, under the terms of the communications act, must file a report with congress before Feb. 1, recommending additional legislation.

Col. Sosthenes Behn, president of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation, parent of the Postal units, Commercial Cables, Mackay Radio and All-American Cables, told the commission that the major companies could "get together" and "form a healthy industry to compete with the telephone and air mail" if a consolidation proposal was enacted by congress.

The first step, he said, would be along the lines of the Graham act, enacted in 1921 to permit consolidation of telephone organizations. "But Postal will never enter into any agreement that does not protect every man, woman and boy that is now employed by the company," he asserted.

OPTIMISM ON TRADE WARY ON NRA—HARRIMAN

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 3.—(AP)—An optimistic view of present business conditions and a cautious attitude toward national policies of rehabilitation were bespoken here tonight by Henry I. Harriman, president of the chamber of commerce of the United States. He spoke before a meeting of the chamber's western division, attended by about 1,000 delegates.

Harriman said, "There is much ground for encouragement in present business conditions." The first half of this year showed substantial gains over the same period last year and while the third quarter relapsed somewhat, October gains showed 7 and 8 per cent improvement over October, 1933, he said.

On the other hand, he brought up some questions which he said are of vital import in "choices which America must soon make."

"Are we to sacrifice individual liberty for economic security?" he asked. "Is freedom of action to be bartered for regimentation? Is democracy to be traded for dictatorship?

"The vital question for us is: Can we ride the storm and make the revisions of political and economic policies which the effective rule of an age of plenty requires without bringing the existing order of American individuality, initiative and liberty to destruction?"

CONSUMERS CO. REORGANIZATION HEARING DELAYED

Hearing on the reorganization plan for the Consumers company, large Chicago coal, ice, and building material concern, was continued yesterday by Judge James H. Wilkerson in the U. S. District court until 10 a. m. Dec. 12. Reorganization proceedings have been started under section 77B of the amended bankruptcy act.

Two groups of security holders have voiced their objection to the plan. The protective committee for the first mortgage 6 per cent sinking fund gold bonds, due Jan. 1, 1946, through its counsel, Kixmiller, Baar & Hoffman and Hirsch E. Soble, suggested to the court that it as impossible to get anything out of the plan proposed by the company without more detailed information regarding its financial structure, resources, and potential earning power. A committee of stockholders is pressing for the appointment of a trustee.

WHEAT AND CORN RELAPSE AFTER EARLY ADVANCE

Profit Taking Brings About Fractional Losses.

Initial strength in corn and wheat proved short-lived on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday. Prices soon fell back under the weight of profit taking, although both cereals showed net losses of less than a cent. Oats and rye moved higher. Corn reached new high ground for the season before the bulge was lost. The December delivery reached 93¼ cents, May 92 cents, and July 89⅜ cents.

Publication of the week's visible supply figures around noon was greeted with rather heavy selling. A decrease had been expected in wheat, but a drop of only 539,00 bushels, compared with 2,410,000 last year, caused considerable disappointment. As stocks of wheat at Buffalo moved up sharply many observers believed the report did not reflect the true picture. It was thought this rise was brought about by importations of Canadian wheat, since at the end of the shipping season, which closed officially last Saturday, there were less than 800,000 bushels of wheat afloat on the lakes.

Wheat Imported for Feed.

If this wheat, which will be used as feed grain, was included it will have no effect on the bread wheat situation and many traders saw nothing bearish in the small drop.

Comparative prices of May futures at the close here yesterday follow:

	Monday.	Saturday.	Week ago.
Wheat	$ .99½	$ .99⅝	$ .97⅝
Corn	.90⅝	.91¼	.86
Oats	.53½	.53⅞	.50⅛
Rye	.76⅝	.76	.73⅜
Barley	.80¼	.80¼	.78

Liverpool wheat closed ½ to 1⅛ cents higher, Winnipeg eased ⅛ to ¼ cent, Rotterdam rose 1⅝ to 1¾ cents, and Buenos Aires sagged fractionally.

Cash markets here and in the southwest again were strong. Deliveries of wheat at all North American markets were negligible, affording additional evidence of the satisfaction felt by most cash grain holders with their position. Snows and scattered rains were experienced throughout the belt.

Corn Halts Five Day Rise.

Yesterday's action in the corn pit halted a rise in prices which continued unabated for five days. This steady advance led many to believe some reaction was due and the tendency was to sell long corn and purchase wheat.

Kansas City reported to Thomson & McKinnon that corn in western Kansas is worth about $2 a hundredweight, compared with $1.50 for wheat. A similar relationship prevails in other western feeding areas. These high prices are lessening demand, some dealers report, for feeders are said to be selling cattle and hogs requiring corn and feeding wheat to young stock.

Corn growers who managed to harvest their crops are in relatively better position than wheat producers. Nat C. Murray, crop statistician, said yesterday average prices to wheat farmers in the week ended Dec. 1 were 88.4 cents a bushel, against 69.7 cents a year ago. Corn prices averaged 81.7 cents, against 38.9 last year.

GREAT USE OF WHEAT FOR FEEDING CAUSES DROP IN FARM STOCKS

Large use of wheat for feeding purposes on farms is bringing about a disappearance in farm stocks which apparently is not generally realized by the grain trade, comments Bartlett Frazier company.

"The present year presents a very abnormal situation," the grain firm says. "There is a shortage of all feedstuffs. The price of wheat, despite the fact that the crop was moderate, is below that of corn over a large area of the west and southwest, a condition naturally reflected in the use of grain on hand instead of purchasing and importing high priced grain from other points.

"This extra demand on wheat is likely to continue to be a marked factor in distribution until spring pasturage again is available."

More than 12,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and coarse grains had been sold to the United States up to Nov. 30, including feed and durum wheat, rye, oats and barley, but excluding hard spring wheat for high grade flour, according to the Russell crop reporting agency.

LIGHT RECEIPTS, COLD WAVE SEND HOG PRICES UP

All Classes Hit Highest Levels Since Oct. 9.

Anticipated recovery in hog prices materialized here yesterday. Light receipts, reports of a cold wave on the way from the northwest, and the first advance in fresh pork since the middle of October, were the chief factors contributing to the upturn.

Prices of all classes reached the highest levels since Oct. 9. A sharp advance was scored in light weights as the proportion of these dropped off abruptly. Hogs weighing under 180 pounds jumped 25 to 50 cents, and in some places showed even sharper gains. Other weights came up 10 to 25 cents, with "lard hogs" slowest on the rise, despite the fact that few of these were in the run. Muddy roads and snow were partly to blame for the decrease in receipts.

Regard Big Movement Past.

Some traders believed the heavy movement might be over for the winter and they were large buyers. Yesterday's arrivals here, only 29,000, were about the smallest on record.

Packers paid up to $8.55 for prime 270 pound butchers, including the $2.25 processing tax to the federal government. The average of all droves moved up to $8.15, tax included, while a range of $7.75 to $8.50 embraced most of the 150 to 300 pound averages.

Lambs rose unevenly 25 to 75 cents under brisk competition, best grades of slaughter stock indicating the sharpest gains. Top native and fed westerns soared to $7.65 to packers, shippers and city butchers, the highest prices since Aug. 10. Yearling wethers jumped to $6.60, highest since July.

Cattle Average Higher.

Disagreeable weather slowed early trading in the cattle alleys but later action boosted prices in the better grades. Regular market steers topped the list at $10.25, equaling the highest mark, barring show "culls," since the last week of September. Most steers of beef merit brought $5.75 to $9.25, while only common illbred grassy natives could be purchased under $4.00. Butcher stock closed slightly lower.

Most beef cows brought $2.75 to $3.50, with those on the cutter order at $2.50 and below. Canners and cutters bulked at $1.85 to $2.25. Calves ruled strong to 25 cents higher.

LARD CLOSES IRREGULAR AFTER REACHING NEW HIGH

Buying of a liberal sized line of May lard against sales of July corn by spreaders and general commission house buying advanced lard to a new high for the season early yesterday. Heavy profit taking credited to eastern interests and also hedging pressure, however, filled up the demand and later when corn weakened lard followed and finished 2½ points lower to 7½ points higher.

More interest was shown in bellies with prices unchanged to 12½ points higher at the last. Cash demand was reported as quiet. Cash lard finished at 11.17 cents; loose, 10.65 cents; leaf, 10.62 cents, and bellies at 14.17 cents per pound. Prices follow:

Note—Above prices include processing tax of 2.47c per pound on lard and 2.62c per pound on bellies taxed on produce made since March. Tax is rebated on produce exported, but varies according to the amount, due to the fact that tax was gradually advanced to present level.
